Tribute To Island-Born Statesman Paid Yesterday

The following tribute to the late Franklin K. Lane, prepared by Charles E. Cheatham, LL.D., professor of law at Columbia University, was read at the unveiling of the Lane memorial at Desable on Sunday:

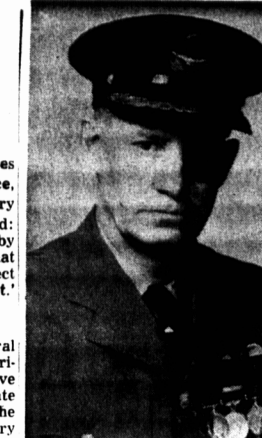

"Prince Edward Island has many claims to fame, in its beauty, its productivity, and its long and colorful history. Its two closest neighbors, rests on an even firmer basis. It was with respect approaching reverence that a young Canadian friend from the other coast in Vancouver said to me: 'The Maritimes produce men.' His mind dwelt on the extraordinary leadership given in Canada by men from the Island and the other Maritimes."

...We should love stability and tradition as well as love adventure and advancement. LEFT ISLAND AT 7 "At the age of seven, Lane crossed the continent with his family and soon settled in the State of California which was to be his home. He attended the University of California, supporting himself by work in vacation and after hours, and graduated from the Hastings Law School in San Francisco. He entered newspaper work, but after some years he returned to law and his practice in San Francisco. It was in public service that he was to realize himself.

"Those were the days when private enterprise, engrossed in developing a new continent, claimed and exercised its fullest liberty even in areas deeply affected with the public interest. Mr. Lane was to have a large share in devising and administering a system of public control which would preserve the opportunities and advantages of private enterprise within the limits set by the public interest. All levels of public life - local, state, national and international - gained from his energy and vision and judgment. In turn, he was city attorney, candidate for mayor and for governor, member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, secretary of the Interior in the Cabinet of President Woodrow Wilson, and a sharer in international responsibilities. I remember him admiring him above all others who worked with Mr. Wilson and wishing as did many others that he could succeed to the presidency of the nation.

"In his long public service he was able to accomplish much and to initiate and stimulate even more. He drew explicitly at times on his first country for guidance, as in his last report as Secretary of the Interior when he urged: 'A constabulary similar to that which has given such perfect order to the Canadian Northwest.' TWO CONTRIBUTIONS "In his service with the Federal government two tangible contributions stand out, perhaps, above the many others. The Interstate Commerce Commission is the oldest of the Federal regulatory commissions in the United States. Fortunately, its powers were made adequate to its responsibilities at the time Mr. Lane became a member of it. He helped to set a pattern of wise administrative action which became increasingly important far beyond the field of transportation when a generation later, a host of new commissions were set up under the impulse of the New Deal and the spirit of war. The second contribution had to do with the companion matters of the conservation and the use of natural resources. After a long period of controversy he was able, here, too, to initiate and carry forward a firm program on which others have built.

"It is impossible to give even a glimpse of Mr. Lane through a few illustrations from his work. Essentially it is this since his public offices did not obscure for him that it is the citizen and not the Government that counts most in his final report as a public official he wrote: 'The greatest things done by our people are not the expressions of government, but the expressions of the adventurous mind to which liberty gives opportunity and occasion gives challenge.' Successful Blood Clinic At Kensington

Donors from Kensington and 31 of the surrounding districts responded admirably to the call for replacements for Prince Edward Island's greatly overdrawn Blood Bank when 221 persons registered at the first of this week's series held at St. Mark's Hall in Kensington. While the response at the afternoon clinic was very disappointing (only 37 registered) the evening clinic at which 184 registered was most gratifying. 28 of the donors were those who reported for the first time and many of these were young people who had just reached eighteen. Today's Clinics are to be held at Monell this afternoon, and at Souris this evening where the objectives are 150 and 200 respectively. It is to be hoped that everyone in those areas who possibly can will take advantage of the opportunity of attending one of the other of these Clinics, and in this way have a share in replacing some of the 1,000 bottles of blood which Prince Edward Island is indebted for at the present time.

Photographers Meet At Amherst

AMHERST, N. S. (CP)—Cameras from the three provinces will begin arriving here Sunday for the two-day annual convention of the Maritime Professional Photographers' Association. Chief speaker will be Paul Hordall of Ottawa, acclaimed as one of Canada's top photographers of children. Social activities are on the Sunday agenda. The delegates Monday will view photos entered in the group's annual print competition, hear talks by noted Canadian photographers and hold business sessions. The convention ends Monday night with the annual banquet.

WHEELS TURN SLOWLY

For years the local parochial church council refused Hoffman permission to unseal Walsingham's tomb. But this year the council agreed to the project. Permission was also received from H. S. Marsham-Townsend, owner of the tomb. But before it can be unearthed the diocesan registrar and the home office must give their permission. Hoffman said, "Things take a long time to move in this country. And I just can't wait any longer. But I'll be back before the end of September. The lawyers said everything should be clear by then."

SAYS DEATH A FAKE

Hoffman says he is convinced that 26 manuscripts of Shakespeare's first folio he buried in a lead box in the tomb of Sir Thomas Walsingham, Marlowe's patron. He believes Marlowe, who is said to have died in a tavern room brawl, actually faked his death and fled England to escape being burned at the stake as a heretic.

Begin Harvesting Nfld. Blueberries

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Blueberry pickers headed for the barrens of Newfoundland Monday to begin harvesting the province's only export agricultural product. But officials here said this summer's damp weather has delayed the ripening of the berries and many are not yet ready. Newfoundland usually exports some 800,000 pounds of blueberries, most of them shipped frozen to the United States.

Anglican Synod Will Discuss Change Of Name

By DAVID OANCIAC Canadian Press Staff Writer EDMONTON (CP)—The highlight of the 10-day session of the 19th triennial session of the general synod of the Church of England in Canada will be discussion of a change of name for the church. More than 300 delegates had arrived Monday for the synod sessions. The general synod, held west of Winnipeg for the first time since it was formed in 1892, is to be launched this morning with a colorful procession followed by a church service conducted by Rt. Rev. C. R. Claxton, Bishop of Winnipeg, England. Among those in the procession will be lay and clerical members of the synod, bishops, archbishops and the primate of All Canada, Most Rev. Walter Foster Barfoot, Archbishop of Rupert's Land. The assembly of archbishops, bishops and representative clergy and laity from the 28 dioceses in the 10 provinces will then start sessions to review the work of the church in the last three years and to lay plans for the next three-year period.

Drama Critic Is Foiled In His Shakespeare Feud

CHISLEHURST, Eng. (Reuters)—Drama Critic Calvin Hoffman—who is convinced a 300-year-old tomb holds evidence William Shakespeare was a fake—sailed for the United States Monday after four months of fruitless waiting. But he said firmly that he will be back within a month to try to settle once and for all his long-standing feud with the bard of Avon—whom Hoffman dismisses as an inglorious "hack-writer." For 20 years Hoffman has gathered information and facts in an attempt to prove the plays attributed to Shakespeare were actually written by his contemporary, Christopher Marlowe. A book he wrote on the theory was published recently. Hoffman says he is convinced that 26 manuscripts of Shakespeare's first folio he buried in a lead box in the tomb of Sir Thomas Walsingham, Marlowe's patron. He believes Marlowe, who is said to have died in a tavern room brawl, actually faked his death and fled England to escape being burned at the stake as a heretic.

WHEELS TURN SLOWLY

Then, according to Hoffman, Marlowe sent Walsingham his plays and Walsingham paid Shakespeare to present them under his name. Hoffman thinks the manuscripts will prove Marlowe was the real author.

A local youth pleaded guilty to breaking, entry and theft was given a two-year suspended sentence and in addition to this was required to enter into a recognizance with two sureties to keep the peace and of good behavior.

Problems Discussed

Continued on page 1. ment is indicated in case of coma" Dr. Edward F. Brooks, Chief of Medicine, St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, said in speaking before The Medical Society at the afternoon session. Dr. Brooks, who was one of the clinical speakers at the afternoon session of the annual meeting, held for his topic "The Comatose Patient." "Only one out of three patients in such a state is truly alcoholic and should only be examined for this condition after a complete examination for other probable causes," the speaker said. Describing the routine to be followed in the organized approach, Dr. Brooks said that injuries, strokes and tumors should be considered and dealt with before moving on to diabetes and kidney ailments and then follow with an examination to determine if the patient uses morphine, narcotics, barbiturates, and finally alcohol. Dr. J. Gordon Patric, orthopaedic surgeon, Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, was the second clinical speaker at the afternoon session. He dealt with backache and the causes, which he described as "due chiefly to structural abnormalities," the mobile portion of the spine up against the immobile while in the act of walking or sitting. "Between each vertebrae there is a disc which loses its elasticity as we advance in age and as these vertebrae protrude and fall to return into place, the sometimes cause just backache and sometimes Sciatica. Over 90 per cent of such cases can be treated considerably by bed rest for a few days, followed by corrective exercises. The remaining few require operations." "Inaction and excess fat are major contributing factors to back-ache," Dr. Patric said. Dr. K. L. Irwin, President of the Medical Society, presided at the business meetings. Dr. Stanley Gilder will be the first speaker at the morning session today when he will deal with "Some points in Writing Scientific Papers." Dr. J. H. Maloney will be chairman at this session. The open forum will be on "Health Insurance."
