ing existing laws, and where he cannot find a precedent, establishes one. Mr. Anglin would search in vain in English Parliamentary history for a case where the Speaker had violated the Independence of Parliament Act. I know of no case where an atonement had to be made for such violation except in the case of Timothy Warren Anglin himself. Mr. DeCosmos, member for British Columbia, has presented to Parliament a petition from working men, asking for protection from

CHINESE CHEAP LABOR.
The petition sets forth the interesting facts that one-fourth of the population are Chinese. That twenty-five of them can live in one house together; the cost of living to a Chinaman is only twenty-five cents a day, whilst men of other nationalities cannot live for less than fifty cents to one dollar per day. There only four married men out of the six thousand resident in British Columbia, and only four real estate owners. They work under one organization and work for a less sum per day than other men. If men of other nationalities work for a smaller sum than usual, John Chinaman will perform the labor cheaper. To prove that they all work under one organization, it is stated that on one occasion, when the local Government proposed to tax them, they ceased work. The protection sought by other working men of British Columbia is that no Chinaman shall be allowed to work on the Railroad, and that some means of taxation shall be devised. At present John does not pay any taxes, having no real estate, and consuming very little dutiable goods he is no contributor to the revenue of the country. It will be no doubt a difficult question for Parliament to deal with. It has occurred to me that the Island Local Government could solve the problem of taxation, as all questions relating to increase of taxes have been made a special matter of study by the members of the Local Government. The Celestial or any one else could not enjoy the same immunity from taxation if located in the Island as the men of British Columbia complain of.

Dr. Mattart moved for a return of copies of tenders and correspondence concerning the last contract on

SOURIS BREAKWATER.
Doubtless there will be some interesting facts for the electors of King's unearthen when the correspondence comes down. I see by the Report of the Minister of Public Works that only 2,500 cubic yards of sand and mud were removed by the dredge while at Wood Islands. If this be correct, the working of the dredge under Captain Williams cost the country a pretty large sum. The dredge is, I understand, doing good work at Montague at the present time.

President Harrison's Hermit Cousin.

There died lately in this neighborhood an aged and eccentric man named Alvin Harrison. He was about seventy-three years of age, and was a cousin of President Harrison. In 1840 he was a promising young lawyer of Ross County, Ohio, and stumped the State in the interests of his cousin, "Old Tippecanoe." Several years thereafter he quit the practice of law and took up the study of medicine. Later on he became engaged to a young lady, and at last the happy day was fixed for the celebration of their marriage. But before the arrival of the eventful day the young lady eloped with a stage driver leaving Mr. Harrison so disgusted with the fickleness of human nature and civilization in general that he turned his back upon the world, preferring a home in the trackless wilderness and barren prairies to one in the busy haunts of refined life. Some fourteen years ago he built a log cabin and took up his abode in Neosho bottoms, some three miles from town. His nearest neighbor at that time was miles away. He lived all alone, and subsisted on a scanty and unwholesome diet of spoiled bacon. The cabin was open and uncomfortable, while he was content with a simple pallet of straw. He drove a team, poor, bony and dilapidated as himself, half starved and clothed in rope and string harness. He had an intelligent expression of countenance, but went about sparsely clad in rags and patches of the coarser fabrics; yet, in the midst of filth and rags, he was recognized as a man above average sense and educational culture, which always brought him respectful deference from all. It is said that, aside from his property here, which consists of three hundred and twenty acres of good land and some personal property, he owned valuable property in Ohio.

Some years ago his brother came to see him, and endeavored to get him to abandon his isolated existence, but all in vain, for he remained alone till the last. When it was found that he was sick, the kind neighbors did all in their power to alleviate his suffering. After his death, a box containing silver and bank notes, deeds, mortgages, etc., was found. Quite a number of standard works on medicine and law were also found.—Oswego (Kan.) Correspondence of the Indianapolis Sentinel.
