

The Daily Examiner

DECEMBER 19, 1884.

Editorial Notes.

Canadian reciprocity would be worth more to the United States, says the Philadelphia Record, than all the other reciprocities which we can hope to arrange for on this continent. It was a mistake to suspend the old arrangement. It is a blunder not to make a new one.

Exports to West Indies from Canada, fiscal year 1882-3 were in value $3,125,031, while the imports were valued at $4,369,260. Of our exports to the British, French, Spanish, and Danish West Indies, $2,361,699 worth was products of our fisheries; $413,203, of the forest; the remainder, with the exception of $70,000 manufactured and miscellaneous goods, consisted of animals and dairy produce or of field products. The exports of New Brunswick thither amounted to only $106,000. Nova Scotia sent $2,855,000 worth, mainly fish. Quebec, about $43,000 worth. Ontario, animals and manu- goods to the value of $13,400.

The Canadian Gazette published in London reports the arrival in England of large consignments of Canadian apples, and says there is an excellent demand for them. To show the superiority of Canadian over the American apples the Gazette publishes the market prices of each; but as the figures are in English currency, we reduce them to dollars and cents for the convenience of our readers:

Table with 3 columns: Variety, price per barrel, price per bushel. Rows include Baldwin, Greenings, Fall Water, N. Spy, Spitz, Phoenix.

It will be seen that in every instance the average prices of the Canadian apples were much higher than those from the United States.

Mr. Stephens said in a late interview that as the outcome of his visit to England the Canada Pacific Railway directors were satisfied of the possibility of making arrangements for the provision of a service of steamers between British Columbia and Japan. This could be done either by arrangement with the existing companies, or by having vessels built especially for their company. Which of these two courses would be adopted he was unable to say, as no decision would be come to on the point until after his return to Montreal. However, it might now be considered certain that a service of steamers between the two points mentioned would be established as soon as the Canada Pacific Railway was prepared to operate through traffic.

Says a writer in The Week: While the hotel-keepers and retailers of Montreal are booming their winter carnival, certain railway magnates look askance at their enterprise. One of these gentlemen, an owner of many square miles in the Northwest, recently observed to an English visitor: 'The trouble of all this carnival business is that it spreads the notion abroad that Canada is an Arctic country. An hundred feet high is as poor advertisement for emigrants. Every man who sends his photograph to England must, even in July, with perspiration thick upon him, don a fur cap and coat, and be sprinkled with salt in default of snow, for the sake of picturesqueness. One of these Carnival collectors asked me for a subscription this morning, and I told him he could have twenty-five dollars if he would get up a series of views next summer of people prostrated by sun-stroke on St. James street. He left!'

An English correspondent writes: 'The German white book, just published, has been the sensation of the week. It shows that the German colonization of Africa has been virtually due to England's hauteur and her posing as the natural protector and proprietor of all newly discovered countries. Bismarck demonstrates that if England had agreed to his first modest request, that German traders be protected in the territories over which England claimed sovereignty, he would have been satisfied. When England established such discriminatory laws as to practically keep her colonial markets to herself, Germany thought it was time to take a hand in the game, and she has done so. These statements have produced many bitter comments from the English papers. The morning papers are full of them to-day, and their echoes are heard from the evening journals. The St. James' Gazette states that on the 4th of February, 1885, Prince Bismarck asked Lord Granville whether the British foreign office would protect German traders in Anglo-African settlements. Eighteen months after, England begged German protection for Englishmen in Africa. The article concludes as follows: 'So close, for the present, the thimble-like chapter of our colonial history. The rebuff, although gallant to our pride, prejudicial to our prestige, and fatal to our interests, is thoroughly well deserved. The German chancellor has treated us with frankness and even with forbearance. Everything which we have to deplore is due to Lord Granville's prostration and uncertainty which is now chronic.'

We are informed that John Newson will remove his Furniture Warerooms before Christmas to his new premises, burnt district, next to St. Patrick's Hall, Queen Square, his old stand, and that he will in the meantime sell furniture very cheap for cash. He has a nice line for the Xmas holidays.

Over seven hundred divorce suits pending in Philadelphia, and yet we read Indiana and Chicago as divorce mills. Isn't it time to halt the velocity of the divorce machine in the city of Brotherly Love? -Philadelphia Times.

A Splendid Success.

TORONTO, Dec. 18. To-day's proceedings of the Convention were even more enthusiastic than yesterday. The Grand Opera House was crowded. Hon. Mr. Chapleau spoke eulogizing Sir John. Premier Norquay was present and spoke. Sir Leonard Tilley made a splendid speech, answering many of Cartwright's questions, and defending the Government's course. The banquet was a most brilliant affair. The toasts were numerous and ably responded to by the speakers present. Altogether the banquet was a grand success.

News from the Capital.

The New Orleans Exposition.

OPENED BY PRESIDENT ARTHUR BY TELEGRAPH—NOVEL SPECTACLE IN WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—There was considerable delay in opening the exercises at the New Orleans exposition to-day. A large crowd of distinguished people gathered at the White House, and every arrangement was made for the presenting of the opening address in appropriate style. The President took his place at the telegraph station, and remained standing there surrounded by his cabinet for over half an hour before the signal given that everything was in readiness was received by the telegraph operator. The signal was received at half-past two o'clock, and in a few moments the address of President Richardson of the exposition, was received. The address of Richardson was read by Commissioner General Morehead, and in reply President Arthur made a brief address, declaring the exposition open, which address was at once telegraphed to New Orleans. Remarks were then made by Senator Logan on behalf of the congressional committee. At the close of his remarks the President touched the button of the instrument at ten minutes past three o'clock, and started the machinery in the exposition buildings.

Graving Dock at St. John's.

The graving dock opened at St. John's, Nfld., last week is 600 feet in the clear on top, and 558 feet on the bottom. Its width in the body of the dock at top is 132 feet, and 50 feet at the bottom. The closing gate is an iron caisson made in England. The pumps are also of English manufacture. The bulk of the materials used and nearly all the skilled labor was imported. All the materials and machinery were admitted duty free, and the site was furnished free of cost by the Government, and has cost, including bulkhead wall, dredging, and necessary sheds and buildings, $550,000, and is to be leased by the contractors for a term of ten years for $15,000 a year. The dock is almost wholly composed of wood, the sides and floor being of southern or pitch pine, and the foundation timbers piles of spruce. The sides and head of the dock behind the woodwork are composed of clay. Beneath the floor has been placed from two to three feet of concrete, and a large amount of similar material is said to have been deposited behind the woodwork and about the entrance.
