EDUCATIONAL HORIZONS

Dr. Lloyd Shaw Opens Another Series Of Articles

Again I must express my appreciation to the Prince Edward Island Teachers' Federation for the opportunity afforded me of addressing the teachers of the province through this brief foreword to Educational Horizons. * As I understand it, the ultimate purpose of this column, which appears in the Guardian from time to time under the auspices of your own organization, is to help to provide wider and better opportunities for the pupils in our schools. For after all it is for them the school and its facilities exist.

I suppose, however, that it is upon the teachers a great deal of the burden of providing these better opportunities must lie. If their pupils are to speak correct English, if the pupils are to use initiative, the teachers must also possess it. If the children are to be individuals and not just units in a crowd then individuality must mark the teacher. If courage in the face of the changing world around us is essential, then teachers must be courageous.

Each teacher must ask himself, or herself, the questions. Do I speak and write correct English? Have I initiative? Am I an individual? Am I courageous in facing changing situations?

SPIRIT LINGERS

Someone has said "In every school at least one spirit walks abroad." The spirit may well be that of some teacher whose ideals turned dry bones of the building into the living school. I am sure you will agree that a great opportunity awaits the teachers of today. That opportunity may lie within the school itself, or it may be fulfilled in participation in community effort through such activities as School and Home Association, teacher's work shops, and indeed in making some contribution to this column, Educational Horizons.

I think that we who are engaged in education must recognize our task as a mighty one. This brief introductory statement is intended to emphasize this, and to offer a word of encouragement to those who may be inclined to feel that after all the work of teaching is rather "humdrum" and not of much significance.

WITHOUT SCHOOLS

Try to imagine just what this country of ours would be like if tomorrow every school were to close and remain closed for a generation. What a catastrophe! I think we can understand the statement that we are witnessing a race between catastrophe and education. Teachers must always be able to claim "We are the

Suspects U. S. Of Drawing Plan

CAIRO, (Reuters)—President Nasser said in an interview published in the Egyptian newspaper Al Massa Tuesday he suspected the United States of drawing up a plan with Turkey to attack Syria.

Nasser said his suspicion had arisen out of his experience from the "last aggression" against Egypt—last year's Anglo-French-Israeli attack.

He said the United States is trying by any means to overthrow the present government in Egypt and Syria to obtain conditions for the formation of other governments ready to cooperate in the way Washington wants.

workers of a new dawn, men (and women) who look forward and not back."

May your year be a successful and satisfying one, and may your ambition be to have a real part in Widening Educational Horizons in this province.

This department is conducted by the Prince Edward Island Teachers' Federation. Contributions are welcomed and should be sent to the General Secretary, Estelle Bowness, 98 Prince St., Charlottetown.
