Catarrh in the Head

Is a dangerous disease because it is liable to result in loss of hearing or smell, or develop into consumption. Read the following:

"My wife has been a sufferer from catarrh for the past four years and the disease had gone so far that her eyesight was affected so that for nearly a year she was unable to read for more than five minutes at a time. She suffered severe pains in the head and at times was almost distracted. About Christmas, she commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and since that time has steadily improved. She has taken six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and is on the road to a complete cure. I cannot speak too highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I cheerfully recommend it." W. H. To the Electors of Charlottetown.

GENTLEMEN,—At the request of many of my fellow citizens I place myself in your hands for re-election to the honorable position of Mayor, and respectfully ask for your votes.

Should you again do me the honor to elect me, I shall co-operate in maturing and carrying out all measures having for their object the good of the community as a whole, and, as in the past, my best efforts shall be given to the administration of the affairs of the city.

I refer you to the City Report for my views on taxation, and would only add that I am fully satisfied that the ordinary expenditure of the city can be met by a reduced rate on real estate and personal property, which rate, with the other sources of available income, will yield a sufficient revenue to meet the liberal basis of expenditure of the past year, and that no department of the public service can suffer thereby.

I remain, Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
W. E. DAWSON.

jan27—135

To the Electors of Charlottetown;

GENTLEMEN—In compliance with the wishes of a large number of citizens, and in response to the numerously signed requisition presented to me, I have decided to nominate for the Mayorality at the forthcoming Election, and would take this opportunity of soliciting your support.

If elected, I shall endeavor at all times to act impartially, giving justice to all, favors to none. It shall be my aim to see that the affairs of this City are conducted with the strictest economy commensurate with its requirements and that the rate of taxation be kept down to the lowest figure consistent therewith.

I shall continue to stand up for the citizen's rights both as regards the Roadway to Victoria Park and all other questions which may arise. I believe that all laws at present in force, or that may hereafter be enacted, should be faithfully carried out.

I am opposed to the expenditure of public moneys in defiance of the well understood wishes of the people.

As I publicly stated two years ago, I believe that good government in civic affairs can only be assured by having a change in representatives from time to time; and having served four years as Councillor, I now respectfully solicit your votes for the office of Mayor.

I remain, Gentlemen,
Your Obedient Servant.
HORACE HASZARD.

To the Electors of Ward Five:

Having been asked by a large number of the electors of your Ward to nominate for the coming Council, I have decided to do so, and now beg to solicit your votes.

I shall not be able to see you all, but having many years' experience in the Council, you may depend on me in the future to protect your interests as honestly as I have done in the past. I am

Respectfully yours,
THOS. MORRIS.

THE ART OF GIVING.

Dr. Parkhurst Asserts That it Must be Learned Just as Spelling Is.

"The Passion of Money-Getting" is the topic of Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst's paper in the December Ladies' Home Journal. In discussing one phase of his theme he says:

A man cannot be trusted to do right in this (the art of giving) or in any other particular till he can do right easily, that is to say until it has become his habit to do right. Giving cannot be left to impulse any more than spelling can be left to impulse. We have seen what might be called impulsive spellers, and they make just the same wretched work with orthography that impulse-giving makes with charity. Nor is the purpose subserved by putting into the child's hands as a gratuity the money that he is expected to bestow as a beneficence. Merely letting money go through his hands will not make him charitable any more than letting water slip through a lead pipe will make the lead fertile. The act that is going to strengthen the little boy-giver or the little girl-giver in the direction of a matured generous disposition must be an act in which the actor feels that he is parting with something that is his own, not something which he is merely handling in the capacity of agent. It is a very common thing, if there is a beggar at the door to whom a pittance is to be given, or a gathering in the church or the Sunday School where the contribution box is to be passed, for the child to obtain from its father or mother the requisite penny, and then for the child and parent both to imagine that the child was somehow involved in and disciplined by the penny's conferment. The child in the Sunday School does not learn to give in that way any more than the child in the spelling class learns to spell by the bare mimicry of the letters that the teacher herself puts into the child's mouth.

We learn to spell by making the spelling-act our act. We learn to give by making the giving-act our act. It is hoped that this truism will touch a vibrating chord in the intelligences and hearts of parents. The world is full of moneyed men, but really, great as is the amount bestowed in benefaction it sustains a very feeble ratio to the amount that men and women bestow on themselves; and it is not because these people are intentionally sordid and have no blood in their hearts, but because years ago, when they were children, their parents imagined that while schooling would be necessary in order to qualify their offspring to read and write, no schooling in particular would be necessary in order to educate them into the far more difficult capability of parting with their own possessions in the interests of and for the bettering of others; safeguarding the lesser, trusting to chance the greater.

An Expert Opinion.

He—A fellow I know bought a ring the other day, and he wants to get a woman's opinion about it.

She—A diamond?

He—Oh, yes. He bought it for the girl he is going to marry.

She—I see. And you have brought it around for me to look at?

He—Precisely. You see he wanted to be sure he was right.

She—Sensible man. He wasn't willing to take his own judgment, but wanted that of a woman.

He—That's it. Will you—

She—With pleasure. Ah, that looks like a beautiful stone. Tell me about your friend. He must be an independent fellow to go off and buy the ring without consulting the lady.

He—He is. He believes that if he hits upon the right thing himself she will respect him all the more.

She (examining the stone carefully and then putting it on her little finger)—And yet he wants to be sure!

He—Yes. He loves her so much that he wants her to be perfectly happy with it.

She—How considerate!

He—He tries to be. What do you think of the ring?

She—It's lovely, but—

He (eagerly)—But what?

She (blushing)—But can't you see it's too small?—Harper's Bazar.

Disagreed With the Author.

A number of years ago Max Muller paid a sightseeing visit to Oxford. After having the various colleges, with their respective lions, exhibited to him, he was introduced to one of the numerous theological men in whom Oxford abounds. Soon he was involved in a discussion over a question of doctrine.

"But you will find it all in St. John," exclaimed the excited professor.

"St. John! St. John!" said Max Muller, reflectively. "Oh, yes! I have read his book, but I do not agree with him."

When a Child Asks Questions.

When a child is old enough to ask questions he is old enough to be answered truthfully and intelligently. There are many things which it is difficult to explain so as to render them comprehensive to a young child, but whatever is said should be absolutely true. "Teaching Truth," a little book by Dr. Mary Wood Allen, is of great assistance. Do not forfeit a child's conscience by an attempt to evade the issue, putting him off with half-truths.

A Curveless Railway.

When St. Petersburg and Moscow were being connected by railway the Czar of Russia was asked to indicate upon a map what course he wished the line to take. Without a moment's hesitation he seized a ruler, and drew a perfectly straight line between the two cities. So, in accordance with the imperial mandate, the railway runs straight as an arrow from St. Petersburg to Moscow.

PECULIAR in combination, proportion and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses great curative value. You should TRY IT.

The Indian contracts this year call for Canadian products, as for example, "all bacon must be Canadian cured." This is news for Mr Charlton. It indicates that Canada is not dependent upon the United States for supplies, as was formerly the case.

ORGANIZING A LITERARY CLUB.

How to Choose a Theme for Consideration—Discuss the Subject, Not the Members.

In choosing a subject to be discussed by your literary club, writes Louise Stockton in the Ladies' Home Journal, be sure it is akin to your interest. If history is chosen, take an epoch, a great movement, rather than long chronological details; if Shakespeare, two or three plays should be the extreme limit for one winter: if literature, a few writers or one school, unless your object is to trace a development. In that event be sure to note well your landmarks and to thoroughly neglect the non-essentials. Do not have too large or too diverse an organization. Never have more fagots than the string will bind. Do not be stingy in providing what is needed. Do not put all the work and all the care on the president. Her office is certain to be arduous; do not make it necessary for her to carry the clock for you. Above all state your opinion before the meeting adjourns and not after, and when you talk it over between yourselves, criticise and discuss the subject and not the workers. This rule will promote harmony and prevent the personal criticism which does so much harm. Upon each member rests the responsibility of success or failure.

He Was Literary, Too.

I was prowling through Mulberry Bend one night to see the darker side of tenement life, when a boy about ten years old came up to me as I stood for a moment on a corner, and queried:

"Gittin' stuff for a sermon next Sunday?"

"No, I'm not a preacher," I replied.

"That's lucky for you! They gin preachers the cold chuck around here. Stranger doin' the slums, mebbe?"

"No."

"Cause if you was I'd whistle for de gang, and we'd be on to you like a house! Gittin' picturs wid a kodack, mebbe?"

"No."

"De last kodack feller down here got away wid his life, but dat was all. Say, Cully was you an artist wid de brush?"

"No, I'm not an artist."

"Cause I wanted to remark dat you might possibly git away, but you'd be lame all de rest of your life! You don't look like one of de purfesh?"

"No, I'm not a thief, burglar or pickpocket," I answered.

"Cause if you was you'd have to whack up half a dollar to buy beer fur de gang, you know, or some of 'em would put de peelers on. What is your pertickler lay, Cully, if it wouldn't break yer neck to give it away?"

"Writing for the newspapers."

"Dat's literary, hain't it?"

"Yes."

"Cully, put it dere!" he said as he extended a hand which hadn't felt water for four weeks. "I'm right in it myself!"

"As how?"

"As I've a sister in a bookbindery, and me daddy runs the engine in a job office. Shake agin, Cully—a literary shake!"

Overdoing It.

"Dear one," he whispered, "do you think if I married you your father would ever forgive us?"

"I'm sure he would, dear," she asserted softly.

"And would he give us a house of our own?"

"I know he would, dearest."

"And would he give us enough to live beautiful on?"

"I am sure of it, Harry."

"And would he take me into the firm?"

"Certainly he would."

"And let me run the business to suit myself?"

"Of course he would, darling."

She snuggled to his bosom, but he put her aside, coldly.

"I cannot marry you," he said, hoarsely. "Your father is too willing to get you off his hands."

A Woman Diver.

There is a professional woman diver now living at Gravesend, Eng. She first went down instead of her husband, who was ill, some years ago, and this she did with such success and intrepidity that she afterwards fulfilled many engagements jointly with him, assisting largely in the construction of a pier at a shipping port. She is not a woman of great height, but of considerable physique, and is not yet forty. She has made as much as $35 in one day, and has chiefly worked near the mouth of the Thames. She confesses to no unusual fatigue, and one of her boasts is that near the Medway she brought up $35,000 in one day.

Battle of the Sleeves.

The battle of the sleeves is on, and the issue is doubtful. The old saying, "Possession is nine points of the law," applies less to any question of fashion than elsewhere, since constant rejection and change rule in that realm. Dressmakers declare that their patrons are tired of the balloon variety of sleeves and are trying hard to introduce a modified style, but the trouble is the big sleeve is too universally becoming to be easily given up. The fictitious breadth of shoulder gives an exaggerated slenderness to the waist which even the newest woman secretly admires and desires.

The Flower Vase.

An exquisite new style of vase is of the most delicate glass. It is in the shape of a flower, or fine weed, as a poppy, or a thistle. The stem has tiny buds and leaves falling away from it, and expands into the open flower, which is, of course, intended for the reception of other blossoms. They are most beautiful when not colored to follow nature, as then they destroy with the tint the contents which they bear.

In essentials the "new woman" may be more literary and more artistic than her mother, but she certainly can do no better for the good of herself and the general happiness of the world than follow in the footsteps of the old, or former, woman.

Potatoes were selling for two cents a sack in San Francisco a weeks or ten days ago, and sold slowly even at that price. The potato crop all over the country last season was enormous, and most growers lost money on a considerable part of their crop. In some regions the potatoes were not taken out of the ground, the price got down so low.

ODDS AND ENDS.

A girl cannot expect a man to be made on purpose for her.

IT DOES THE BUSINESS.

If you want to know what Miller's Emulsion of Norwegian Cod Liver Oil will do for a consumptive patient ask one who has tried it. Ask anyone who has used it in lung troubles of any kind. What they say about Miller's Emulsion shall be its recommendation. It is the finest preparation of its kind in the world, and is worth its weight in gold to a consumptive sufferer, whom it will raise from a bed of sickness to health and strength of body and mind, giving a new lease of life. Thousands testify to the value of Miller's Emulsion. Miller's Emulsion is the great nerve strengthener and blood maker, and cures Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Scrofula and all Lung affections. In big bottles, 50c. and $1, at all drug stores.

The "friendship of chums" can never be arrived at by the man trying to become a woman or by the woman trying to become a man.

Counterfeits

A few years ago a great discovery was made.

Unprincipled persons are trying to prey upon and dupe people who are led to ask for kidney treatment.

Some of the methods adopted by imitators are as follows:

First—To imitate the size, color and shape of Dodd's Kidney Pills and sell them by count.

Second—To put them up to appear very nearly the same and to be offered at the same price.

Third—To hook on the word "kidney" in naming cathortic pills so as to increase sales of mere physic.

Fourth—To give a name so near to Dodd's that unwary people may be deceived and think they are getting Dodd's.

Look out for such dodges. When you want kidney medicine you want the best. And ought not to be the subject for any trick.

So beware.

A girl who cherishes an ideal man that is half a woman courts certain unhappiness.

A Graduate of Toronto University Says:

"My children have been treated with Scott's Emulsion from their earliest years. Our physician first recommended it, and now whenever a child takes cold my wife immediately resorts to this remedy, which always affects a cure."

The happiest marriages are those which develop and intensify the mental distinctions due to sex—not efface them.

Cure of Chronic Catarrh.

A remarkable Cure.—J. W. Jennison Giford, spent between $200 and $300 in conulting doctors; tried Dixon's and oll oth treatments but got no benefit. One box of Chase's Catarrh Cure did me more good than all other remedies in fact I conerser myself cured, and with a 25 cent box ad that.

Every feminine gift has the masculine counterpart, and they are never the same. Therefore, a girl should look for unlikeness, not likeness.

British Empire League.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The lord mayor of London, Sir Walter Henry Wilkins, presided to-day at the inaugural meeting of the British Empire league, formed to continue the work of the Imperial Federation league. Sir John Lubbock, bart F. R. S., M. D., for London university, explained the objects of the league. The Duke of Devonshire was elected president. Among the speakers was Richards Dobell of Quebec, who referred to the loyalty of Canada, and said that the formation of the British Empire league would be hailed with great satisfaction in the dominion.

In love and in marriage it is the ideal which awakens and preserves affection. Every girl should, therefore, find out what is the ideal wife, as commonly accepted by men of worth, and should aim at the ideal.

A Child Cured of Eczema by Chase's Ointment.

"My six-year-old daughter, Bella, was afflicted with eczema for 24 months, the principal seat of eruption being behind her ears. I tried almost every remedy I saw advertised, bought innumerable medicines and soaps, and took the child to medical specialists in skin diseases, but without result. The doctor advised the use of Chase's Ointment, and since using the eruption has all disappeared, and I can confidently say my child is cured.

(Signed) MAXWELL JOHNSTON,

Weak Back for 25 Cents

For two years I was dosed, pilled and plastered for weak back, scalding urine and constipation, without benefit. One box of Chase's Kidney Liver Pills relieved, three boxes cured. R. J. Rmith, Toronto One pill a dose, price 25 cents.

Could not get Insured.

Rejected by Straight Line and Mutual Companies.

But now insured in both.

"Should I die while I am in a position to pay my insurance premiums, my family will owe their support to Scott's Sarsaparilla. Two years ago I applied to two companies for insurance, $1000 in each. My face was a mass of pimply blotches and my urine did not stand the test. One doctor in examining me said I could not pass, but that my trouble was curable. He advised an alterative medicine, and I commenced taking Scott's Sarsaparilla. Both companies rejected me, but four months later, after I had taken five bottles of your remedy I am thankful to say both accepted me as a risk—one being a stock company, the other a mutual. The examiner who previously examined me, remarked "I never saw such a change in any man." This is indorsed by Mr. J. Todd, the popular druggist, corner Queen and Crawford Streets, Toronto.

Scott's Sarsaparilla builds up debilitated constitutions, imparts strength, vigor and vitality, clears and purifies the blood. It cures skin diseases, rheumatism, gout, indigestion and all complaints arising from poor or poisoned blood. Of all druggists, $1 per bottle.

AN ENTERPRISING PASTOR.

He Was Out for the Money and Collected With Ease.

"I have often heard of strange methods adopted by ministers to collect money at churches, but I never heard of anything more amusing than the course of a negro preacher down in middle Georgia the other day," remarked a well-known Georgian recently. "The sermon was over and the congregation sighed with relief at the prospect of getting home soon to get their dinners. But the preacher said the church needed a certain amount of money—I think it was $3.25—to pay expenses, and he said he didn't intend to let the congregation get away without raising it. The money was due and the members of the church owed it to the Lord, he said, to pay the debt.

"He ordered a collection of subscriptions, but before doing so he had all the doors barred and fastened the windows. He declared that he did not intend to let the brethren get out until every cent of that money was in hand or the value thereof in chickens, butter or eggs.

"On the first count it was found that $1.65 was the pile. After singing another song and offering another prayer, another subscription was taken, and the amount went ten cents over $2. There was another round of prayer and song, and the subscription went up only a few cents more. After going through this process several times the amount was finally raised, but it was sundown before many of the members got home that afternoon, having four or five miles to drive."—Atlanta Constitution.

Depending on Circumstances.

Old Tom Logan, who stood at the head of the Oregon bar for a great many years, was an inveterate wag as well as a most brilliant and able lawyer.

One day Logan was arguing a case before Chief Justice Greene of the Supreme Court of what was at that time the Territory of Washington; opposed to him was a backwoods lawyer named Browne. Logan continually referred to the counsel on the other side as though his name was spelled "Browny," to the evident annoyance of that gentleman. At last the judge interfered, remarking:

"Mr. Logan, this gentleman's name is spelled 'B-r-o-w-n-e,' and is pronounced 'Brown,' not 'Browny.' Now, my name is spelled 'G-r-e-e-n-e,' but you would not pronounce it 'Greeny,' would you?"

"That," replied Logan, gravely, but with a merry twinkle in his eye, "depends entirely on how your honor decides this case."—New York Mail and Express.

His Ticket Saved Him.

Mileage tickets in Berlin go by the name of "kilometerheft," and the stamped stubs show exactly where and when the holder of the ticket was at any given time and place. This is what saved the drummer for a Carlsruhe firm the other day in a predicament. Just as he was climbing into a train leaving for Mannheim he was arrested. An awful crime had been committed a few hours before in the Haardt forest, not far away, and the minute description of the perpetrator tallied exactly with the appearance of the unfortunate drummer. Then the ticket came to his rescue. That furnished an undeniable alibi for him, as it showed him to have been 100 miles from the scene of the crime at the time of its occurrence. The proof was furnished so promptly that the drummer did not even miss his train.—Boston Transcript.

The Conquest of the Moments.

If you would make the best use of your time, says a writer in Current Literature, look after the minutes. Keep a strict account of every hour of your time for a single week, setting down the exact manner in which every hour is spent, and see whether, when you come to review the record, you do not find it full of admonition and instructions. In this simple way one can readily understand the secret of his want of time. He will discover that he has given hours to idle talk, to indolence, and to inconsiderable trifles, which have yielded him neither profit nor pleasure. What is the remedy? Arrange your work in the order of comparative importance. Attend first to the things which are essential to be done, and let the unessentials take their turn afterward. The difference in the amount of work accomplished will be astonishing.

Timely Precaution.

"Have you thought about doing any Christmas shopping yet?" asked Mr. Hunnimune.

"No, dear," was the reply, "it is a little early for such preparations, isn't it?"

"M'yes. But it's as well to take time by the forelock, you know. Have you a memorandum book?"

"Yes."

"Well, you might jot down these little points. Here's the brand of cigars that I prefer. They cannot by any possibility be purchased at a bargain. Here is the number of slipper that I wear, and you might make a note of the fact that my preference in neckties is dark red, with a small black figure, also that I do not need any suspenders."

And she thanked him, and wrote it all down, thereby saving no small share of future regrets and embarassments.—Washington Star.

A Difference.

Elder sister—Come, Clarence, take your powder like a man. You never hear me making any complaint about such a little thing as that.

Clarence—Neither would I if I could daub it on my face; it is swallowing it that I object to.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavored beverage which may save use many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame." Civil Service Gazette
