

The Hidden Sweetness.

BY MARY BRADLEY.

We need no special grace to see The sweetness that around us lies In homes where happy children live...

Debating for Boots.

There is a tradition in the local shoe trade which connects Edward Austin of Chicago, as a boot and shoe salesman with Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas...

"So you liked Abe's speech better than mine? All right, sir, what is the bill?"

"Ten dollars."

"There is you money."

Five minutes later the irrepressible Austin, rapped at Lincoln's door, and upon entering announced with regret that he had awarded the boots to Senator Douglas.

"Very well, young man; sorry you preferred the Senator; how much do I owe you?"

"Only ten dollars, Mr. Lincoln."

The next morning, when the great orators were paying their hotel bills, the landlord handed each a new pair of boots.

"Why Lincoln," said Douglas "I thought our friend gave you the boots! I paid him ten dollars for them last night!"

Lincoln, roaring with laughter, assured Douglas that he, too, had given the referee ten dollars under the impression that the boots had been won by the Senator.

MANHOOD

How Cost, How Restored.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.
