Do you get off on POOPSCREW????!!!!

To quote Bertrand Russell in Bertrand Russell's Beat; "It is permissible with certain precautions to speak in print of 'coitus,' but it is not permissible to employ the monosyllabic synonym for this word."

And so my dear-pissed-off friends, you found the heading shitfuck derogatory, so derogative in fact that some of you had to throw the paper away upon seeing the word. Actually to find such narrow-minded people among university students is alarming. The word is so commonly used, i.e. books, newspaper and in conversation that it has lost a great deal of its original meaning.

What was your first

Election

With students elections rapidly approaching, those seeking positions on the U.P.E.I.S.U. Executive should be aware of the implications of their decision. For this reason, The Cadre obtained a few interesting glimpses of the workings of the present S.U. Executive through the kind assistance of Vice-President Comptroller, Leonard McCardle. Here are some general questions which we put to Mr. McCardle and his replies.

In general, what are some of the duties of the executive's members, other than those listed in the constitution?

Well, besides setting on the Senate and the Board of Governors, executive members also sit on committees of these bodies. This, of course, adds a great deal of time to our schedule which usually averages out to 20-30 hours a week.

What qualifications should members of the executive possess in your opinion?

They must certainly should be flexible in their relations with other people. There are bound to be hassles and disagreements, as in any organization and an ability to give-and-take in this type of situation comes in quite handy. Also, a willingness to make sacrifices is helpful.

Are there any benefits from an executive position?

Well, of course, there is money. The President gets $1,000 a year, the Treasurer gets $800.00, the three Vice-Presidents get $500.00 and the Ombudsman, who is appointed, gets $300.00. Besides this, there is a possibility that with the approval of Council, some members go the executive thought on seeing the heading? 1. The Cadre is polluting the English language. 2. At last, a "dirty" story in the newspaper or 3. Just pass over it as you do when you hear it spoken.

The Cadre had no particular reason to use this word other than to occupy space but from using it we have found out that 1. a large number of people read the Cadre. 2. The students are capable of reaction and 3. A fair number of students are narrow-minded.

However, for those of you that threw away the Cadre on seeing the word, and have vowed never to read another copy of the paper, we sympathize with you. Along with our use of "crude words" the paper also has a great deal of content, and information pertaining to campus activities.

may get $50.00 a week plus summer school tuition, in order to keep things running during the summer. This is something which is a necessity with 800 students attending summer session.

Are there any fringe Benefits?

Yes there are such things as free beer at the Pig'n' Whistle, which may come to six per member per week and one pass per night to Winter Carnival events.

What are some of the irritants in this type of job?

For one thing, your marks will probably suffer. Also, you have very little privacy, what with students and other people continually getting in touch with you for one thing or another.

Finally, what should people expect next year?

Well, it would be nice to have more participation from council members, especially if they really want to represent the students. Also, there are such things as course evaluations and athletic fees which will have to come up for consideration in the near future. People should be thinking about them now.

And when will the new executive take office?

They will come into power around the first of March and the old executive will stay around as consultants until the end of March — to smooth out any bumps which may arise.

The preceding article is a Cadre interpretation of the views expressed by Mr. McCardle in a conversation held February 8 and as such, they are not to be taken as direct quotes from Mr. McCardle.

But for those of you who think the Cadre is lacking in content, why not join the staff or at least write an article for the soap box.

Student participation on the Cadre is improving. For example, we have had a number of original cartoons contributed by a member of the student body and hope to have similar contributions again.

The philosophy department (see Alciphron) is also contributing to the paper regularly and we would like to see more departments do this. Not too academic — your views on the university, students etc.

So students keep writing to us; we appreciate your letters.
