Canadian Navy Adopts Revised Personnel Structure

OTTAWA (CP) — The Royal Canadian Navy has adopted a revised personnel structure which will be introduced in progressive steps over a period of years, naval headquarters announced Wednesday.

The announcement said the new structure is adapted to the increasingly technical nature of naval weapons and equipment and the navy's particular needs.

Most officers, under the new regime, will be on the navy's general list. They will be given a broad, basic knowledge of the various specialties of the navy and more advanced training in particular fields.

The general list will include a restricted duty section, composed of a comparatively small number of highly-specialized technical and administrative officers. Naval headquarters added, however, that existing demarcations between branches in the service will in time disappear.

SPECIAL LIST

The special list will include chaplains, doctors, instructor officers and others with a special knowledge whose training was received largely outside the naval service and who will not be expected to assume command.

The limited duty list will consist of men with long experience commissioned from the lower deck. Such officers will have the opportunity to transfer to the general list if they qualify.

The announcement said the increased complexity of equipment requires an increase in the capabilities of men on the lower deck. The existing trade structure is to be revised to train men in both the maintenance and operation of weapons and equipment, while continuing to develop and use special skills wrere necessary.

The committee report calls for classification of recruits into trade after they have served for a while and their capabilities have been assessed. Recruits now choose a trade or branch on entry, although this can be changed after ... service.

REFLECTED IN RESERVE

The statement added changes in the personnel structure of the RCN will eventually be reflected by changes in the organization and structure of the naval reserve.

Naval headquarters said the new structure results from a study of the present personnel structure made by a special committee. The committee obtained views of personnel ranging in rank from able seaman to admiral.

The committee also studied the army and air force, the Royal and U.S. Navy and ... guard structures before preparing its report.

AMONG THE FARMERS

Federation of Agriculture Newsletter

IN THE NEWS

On December 2 Farm Forum will highlight current issues in the farm field. It is hoped that by that time farm policies regarding cash advances on farm stored grain, freight rates, support prices, etc., will either be under consideration or have been agreed on by parliament. Either rightly or wrongly farm people are awaiting with considerable interest just what may come out of parliament in the way of policies to improve the position of agriculture. Farm Forum will the night of December 2 attempt to analyze some of the proposals.

During the period of 50 to 60 years ago when the rural community depended to a great extend on its own resources for cultural and social activity many rural halls were built in this province. Some of them saw only limited use, in fact there is one and it still stands that is reputed to never have had a gathering of any kind in it. Many were used in a limited way and disappeared, others still stand and have limited use, still others and many of these are of recent construction are genuine assets.

A percentage of the halls are unsuited for any useful purpose being drab, drafty, cold spartan in every respect and calculated to freeze any enthusiasm which might be developed at any meeting or gathering. Any meeting is more likely to be successful if the surroundings are warm, cheerful, bright, clean and comfortable. In short, there is a far greater possibility of thawing people out in such surroundings.

Seating is one matter of importance. In many cases a long hard bench securely attached to the floor makes it difficult to socialize in any way and condemns everyone to observe the backs of those in front, only the front row is spared this spectacle but frequently something substituted for it is even worse. Better surrounding and a more cheerful atmosphere will produce better meetings and better results.

HOG FACTS

1. The average price for hogs in the Maritimes over past ten years has been higher than anywhere else in Canada.

2. The price of Hog Grower in the Maritime is the same as it is in Saskatoon.

3. The Maritime Provinces produce 167,000 less hogs in a year than we eat.

QUESTIONS

Why don't Maritime Farmers raise more hogs?

Would hogs fit any farm in your community where they are not already kept?

If you were keeping hogs would you rather buy or sell weanling pigs? Why?

The above are some of the questions which study groups will be considering when a number of individuals will meet on Tuesday, November 26 from 2.00 to 2.30 p.m. to take part in an experimental use of television as an agricultural extension medium

FARM SAFETY

The opportunities for getting hurt are numerous and constantly increasing on the average farm. Many of the accidents that do occur are probably the result of hurry and carelessness. In too many cases the farmer rarely thinks of a program of accident prevention. However, in many parts of Canada and the
