Psych club news

In September of 1987, the Psychology Club was resurrected from the grave it had occupied for several years. At that time, the active members had decided not to attempt to achieve the status of a "true" club in the eyes of the Student Union (this includes creating a constitution and having it approved). Due to time commitments all around they choose to have a revolving executive who would share the responsibilities of each post. This worked well for most of the year and allowed the people involved to gain valuable experience in the running of such an organization.

This year, however, we feel the time has come to begin putting down roots. Many of the present members who have worked at keeping the club going will be graduating in May. Thus, it is important that this year's frosh, sophomores, and juniors get involved in what goes on in the ground floor of Memorial. At the last meeting, held Monday, October 31st, it was decided that a group of five members, including one first-year student and one junior, would set about drawing up the club's constitution. In addition, club executive nominations and elections will be held during the next meeting, scheduled for Monday, November 14th, in the Psychology Lounge.

Among the things which were discussed at the first meeting as projects for the year are a movie pub, a car wash in the spring, a volleyball team, and club t-shirts. Other suggestions are welcome, so come to the next meeting and get involved. We want to hear from you!

Students Attend Science Conference

This weekend, two students from the Math and Computer Science Department attended the APICS (Atlantic Provinces Council on Science) conference at TUNS. It started on Friday morning with a programming competition where Chris Vessey placed second out of almost forty participants. These participants included third, fourth and fifth year Computer Science majors from all over Atlantic Canada. These students were presented with four problems to solve in seven hours, at the end of which only fifteen had submitted solutions, six of which were accepted as the correct solutions to the problems, and of those three had to be selected as the best solutions of those submitted.

The following day, the participants and the professors that accompanied them were invited to attend a series of informational meetings intended to introduce new concepts to students and professors, such as new languages, or research currently being carried out, as well as to shed some more light on older concepts such as the coop program.

In all it was an informative and interesting weekend that allowed students from different universities to share ideas and experiences, and for professors to meet old friends or make new ones. The two day conference was attended by students Chris Vessey and David MacKinnon and professors Wayne Cutcliffe and Stephen Howard.

History Society

Hello again History Majors. Well History was made at the University during the past two weeks of the federal election campaign as all the Island candidates winning in the federal election participated in a forum held on Oct. 22 in the Steel recital hall. It was the first forum of its size in an election campaign on PEI. Congratulations are in order for those who organized this informative debate. We in the History Society were in attendance to witness this truly historic event in Island politics and were pleased to see such enthusiastic participation by students and candidates alike.

The election itself carries with it some very historic issues and will certainly be one of the most important elections in Canadian History, promising to alter the course of Canada, for the better or worse. I would urge all students to exercise great prudence in choosing which person you wish to represent you in the decision making process for the next four years.

We would like to welcome to our executive, Mike Woodman who will be our new Vice-President. We are sure his efforts will be an asset to the Society.

An order for crests and jackets will soon be sent. Those wishing to order either on should contact Darin MacKinnon or Matthew Haltscorey on campus or at Society meetings. Meetings once again are held in the History Lounge on the third floor of Main on Wed. 1 pm.

This page is humor for the sake of humor. The opinions expressed here are not necessarily the opinions of The Gem or the Engineering Society and may not necessarily be opinions at all. Any fools who take this page seriously and offend themselves should start trying to develop a sense of humor.

Greetings! And welcome back for another fun-filled issue of View From The Top. This week, we have been flooded with questions and we've decided to present some of those questions and our responses.

DEAR HORNY

Dear Horny,

I just had sex with a 13 year-old. Am I in trouble?

Mary Anne Haller.

Dear Homosexual Virgin,

Gee, I don't know. What kind of dog was it?

Dear Horny,

I am a third year Arts student here at UPEI. I understand that when a cat falls, from almost any height, it usually lands on its feet. I also know that a heavily buttered piece of toast will always land butter-side down. What I want to know is what happens when a piece of toast is taped to the back of a cat with the butter side up?

Dear Shit-for-Brains,

After reading your letter, I myself experimented with my neighbour's cat (which I can't stand). After several tosses, I have concluded that if you throw a cat at a wall instead of the ground, it will not land on its feet. I found this to be the case whether or not I had stapled the bread to the cat's back. As for the height, I found that above about 3 stories, it didn't matter whether the cat did in fact land on its feet.

Dear Horny,

I'm confused about the definition of what an Artsie is. I thought an Artsie was a person who took Political Sciences, or a twit with a dick length less than 2 inches. However, after reading your page (View from the Top), I had the impression that all non-Science students were referred to as Artsies. Being a Business student (Frosh), I became worried. Please define for me what an Artsie is, and if I am one, is there any hope for me.

Confused Frosh, Business

Dear Confused,

If I were a Business Frosh, I would be worried too. Face it "Permutation Face" you're just another Artsie Scum. Sorry kid.
