ROYAL FAMILY

"Sir Winston is little weaker," said Moran's bulletin at 9:20 p.m. Saturday. "But he has slept peacefully during the day."

The Royal Family led countless Britons in prayer. The Queen, Prince Philip and the two older children, Charles and Anne, attended service at St. Lawrence Parish Church, near Sandringham, the country palace in Norfolk.

On the instructions of Pope Paul, Archbishop Igino Cardinal, apostolic delegate in Britain, called at 28 Hyde Park Gate with a personal message for Lady Clementine Churchill, Sir Winston's wife.

The pope's message told of his "deep personal concern and of his prayers at this difficult time," an official said.

WATCH ANXIOUSLY
The day began bright and clear but by afternoon the sun had given way to gloowering skies and rain lashed London, adding to a somber atmosphere at Hyde Park Gate where the Churchill mansion stands flush to the sidewalk, anxiously watched by journalists, cameramen and visitors.

"It would be like England dying," one woman said, on the verge of tears.
The narrow street became virtually a working area, littered with television and radio broadcasting equipment, particularly when Moran held his sudden press conference in the rain.

Figuratively, Britain stopped in mid-stride at the shock of the news of Churchill's illness. Young folk, particularly, seem to be learning all over again about the greatness of Churchill.

"By comparison, the burning public issues of the moment seem suddenly of secondary importance," says The Sunday Express. "By comparison, the private cares and burdens of each one of us seem to dwindle in stature."

The Daily Telegraph says that in a sense Britain has already suffered the ordeal of losing Churchill.

"It might even be said we have had it twice"—first when Churchill was defeated at the polls in 1945 after leading his country to victory in the Second World War, and second when, after regaining power, he handed over the prime ministership to Anthony Eden, now Lord Avon.

AFFECTION LIVES ON
"Yet, except perhaps in children, the springs of affection, pride and regret are not dried up. Thousands, young and old, have been standing outside Sir Winston's home."

Lady Churchill, who will be 80 in April, had the comfort of her children and grandchildren in her long vigil. Randolph, 54, Snow Flurries Occur But No Blizzard...

The snows did come, but not the 18 inches that was talked about on Saturday. A total of only six and one half inches was reported down by the Charlottetown Radio Range last evening.

Reports of snowfall from Alberton and Montague were also far short of what was forecast. Alberton area had an estimated two to four inches and Montague reported an estimate of only two inches with Sours about the same.

However, while the snowfall was not great, reports of ice in the waters around Prince Edward Island indicate that it is much heavier than normal.

Capt. E. L. Kelso, information officer with the department of transport in Sydney, N.S., said yesterday that ice in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, particularly the southern section is exceptionally heavy for this time of year.

Capt. Herbert MacKenzie, shore captain for the CN ferries at Borden said last night that the ice in the Northumberland Strait was making fairly fast, but it hasn't slowed the ferry service appreciably yet.

Capt. Kelso also reported department of transport ice-breakers have not as yet had any difficulties escorting ships through the ice packs and so far this season they have escorted 22 more ships than for the same period last year.

The Sunday Times commented: "It was this note, struck by a schoolboy, that was echoed by the scores of journalists and television and radio reporters gathered in London from countries around the world to describe the greatest battle of a man who in his lifetime was read about in history books."

If the schedule holds up, President Johnson—attired in a business suit rather than more formal attire of the past—will raise his right hand to be sworn in at noon precisely.

He will be the best-protected president in American history, covered by rifle-bearing secret service men using TV scanners. His limousine has been overhauled with bullet-proof glass added to the bubble-type viewing dome. His reviewing stand for the parade includes a high wall of armor plate and thick glass—all precautions ordered after the assassination of president Kennedy.

HOPE ITS WARMER
The fervent hope is for a non-recurrence of the bitter cold for Washington—and the snow that smote the capital in 1961.

One newspaper has estimated that a family of four armed with all the official invitations would spend upwards of $1,000 on food, lodging and festivities.

In recent weeks, about 150,000 invitations to attend and participate in the inauguration have been mailed out. Another 50,000 will go out after as souvenirs, because that is all the official invitation is.

It won't get anybody anywhere unless backed by specific invitations to the official events.

Eastern Atlantic Battered By Gales

LONDON (AP)—The worst gales in 10 years battered the eastern Atlantic Sunday, ships foundered and, in England, alone, seven persons were drowned by furious tides.

The Norwegian motor vessel Fossum, two days out from Bilbao, Spain, on her maiden voyage was lost in the Bay of Biscay. Her skipper, Capt. Johann Rye-Holmboe, clung to a frail raft for hours in the icy waters until picked up by the Danish ship Kim. All 27 of his crew were also saved.

Five bird-hunters were missing and presumed drowned in a fast-rising tide in the marshes near Southport, northern England. Two men on a fishing trip drowned in Dover harbor, beneath the white cliffs, when their small boat was swamped.

Gusts reaching 101 miles an hour were recorded at Portland on the southwest coast on the English Channel.

Pearson Suggests Exploring Other Free Trade Avenues

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Sunday it might be worthwhile exploring whether the techniques involved in the U.S. - Canadian motor vehicle free trade agreement could be applied to other industries.

The prime minister and President Johnson signed the agreement Saturday at the LBJ ranch in Texas along with U.S. Secretary of State Rusk and Canadian External Affairs Minister Martin.

The agreement provides for the abolition of North American tariffs for manufacturers of most motor vehicles and original parts. It is expected to boost Canadian vehicle production by about one-third during the next 3½ years.

Mr. Pearson, asked whether the auto pact was a first step towards a North American common market, said the new agreement should be evaluated on its merits before any extensions are considered.

He said, however, it could be worthwhile exploring whether the techniques used in the auto pact could be applied to other industries.

DISCUSSED AIR ROUTES
The prime minister said he and Mr. Johnson discussed current bilateral negotiations over North American commercial air routes, and expressed the hope this will be the next U.S.-Canadian agreement signed.

The president, who has been invited but has not yet accepted an invitation for an official visit to this country, briefed Mr.
