The Divorce Bill.

The bill now before the Senate provides that suits for divorce may be tried in the following courts:—Ontario High Court of Justice, Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench, British Columbia Supreme Court, Prince Edward Island Supreme Court, Northwest Territories Supreme Court. Each of these courts will, if the act passes, have power to dissolve marriages or grant legal separation as in ordinary cases within the jurisdiction of such courts. They shall have power to dissolve marriages on the application either of husband or wife on evidence of adultery, or wife desertion without reasonable cause for a period of five years. It is provided that legal separation shall be granted on grounds of cruelty. It is, however, provided that if the plaintiff is found to have committed or condoned adultery, or if collusion is proved, or if there is any unreasonable delay in bringing the action, that the court may dismiss the case. The court may order the husband to pay such lump sum of money or annuity to the wife for her natural life as shall be deemed reasonable, and it is given full power as to the custody and maintenance of children. The principles of practice and the rules touching divorce of the British courts are to govern the new court until other regulations are drafted. Any barrister entitled to practice in the respective courts shall be allowed to appear in a divorce suit.

A Corn Famine.

THE POOR OF GERMANY SUFFERING FROM THE HIGH PRICES.

Advices from Berlin are to the effect that the price of grain continues to rise, and that in some of the more densely populated localities the scarcity almost amounts to famine for the poor. It is said that vast quantities of grain are stored at various places on the Russian frontier, awaiting the lifting of the duties, in order to enter the German market. Capri fears that this Russian grain would come in such quantities as not only to supply present needs, but also to destroy the future trade in German corn.

Every day along the Russian frontier throngs of Germans pass over the line to Russian villages in the vicinity, and there make purchases at much cheaper rates than in Germany. They are permitted to cross the frontier without the annoyance of an inspection, provided their purchases come within a certain amount made free by law. This amount is, however, quite large enough for a family for a day or two.

They Don't Speak as They Pass By.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Empire remarks: "The happy family is once more at loggerheads with itself. Last night Mr. Charlton introduced a bill to amend the election law. Of course Mr. Charlton doesn't know as much about law as he does about semi-profane stories, but that was no reason why Mr. Davies should have curdly informed him that the bill was no good, and ordered him to withdraw it. Naturally Mr. Charlton was incensed at the high dictatorial tone assumed by him of Prince Edward Island, and though he obediently withdrew his measure, he also put on his hat and left for home, mad all through. To-day Mr. Charlton has spent the day glaring at Mr. Davies and evidently meditating a dire revenge. Were it not for Mr. Charlton's well-known pacific disposition one might fear bloodshed."

The Plan of Campaign.

The details of the Irish plan of campaign fund show that of the total £121,000 contributed £80,000 were collected in Australia, £30,000 in America and from all other sources £11,000. In legal business connected with the fund there was expended, £47,000 on buildings and other various expenses in New Tipperary £40,000 and on other objects £3,000. The balance of £27,000 after deducting the missing £3000 which was obtained through a forged receipt, and £3000 which is said to have been paid out under the plan of holders of large campaign farms, is all that the tenants in Ireland have received. Should the Paris fund be released and added to the present surplus of the campaign it would not last nine months.

GROWTH OF LONDON.—The census of London shows a population of 4,211,056—an increase in the last ten years of 395,485. In 1801 the population was 858,863. The increase during the last 20 years has been greater in the suburban districts, the rate there being calculated at 68 per cent., while that of London proper has been only 36 per cent. What were a few years ago only hamlets are now populous towns, and so great are the facilities for transportation that they are reached as easily as a city merchant can get from his office to the Bank of England.

A GOOD MEMORY FOR FACES.—"Excuse me, sir, but haven't we met before? Your face is strangely familiar."
"Yes, madam, our host introduced us to each other just before dinner."
"Ah, I was positive I had seen you somewhere. I never forget a face."—Brooklyn Life.

Additional particulars of the flood in Farm Creek and Coppens Creek valleys, near Peoria, Ill., on Thursday night show that the farmers for 5 or 6 miles up the river and for two miles back to the hill, lost all their crops. In many places the water is yet standing 9 feet deep over the corn fields. Along the Toledo, Peoria and Western Railway there is a terrible scene of wreckage. Household furniture of all kinds, wagons dead cattle, fences, etc., are piled ten feet high against the railway trestle. The loss is enormous.

MANY prominent men are now being carried off by the ravages of la grippe. When we consider that by using Campbell's Quinine Wine as a preventative we can ward off the attacks of la grippe, we would advise you to purchase a bottle from your druggist.

Literary Notes.

If it is true that "not one American in a hundred knows how to take a vacation," the July number of the Ladies' Home Journal has a distinct educational value, for it quite overflows with new and good counsel for summerings; beside the hints for "The Mother in the Country," to which many clever women have contributed, there are helpful words from Mrs. Margaret Bottoms and Dr. Talmage; while in the bright page for "The Woman in the City" the lot of the stay-at-home is shown to be not so dreadful after all.

An entertaining series of articles on "Life in Acadia," by the Rev. Arthur Wentworth Eaton, will soon be begun in Harper's Bazar. The first paper, giving an account of experiences in "The Garrison Town of Halifax," is published in the number issued June 19th, and the remaining instalments will appear at fortnightly intervals.

Literary Industries, a new volume by Hubert Howe Bancroft, is announced as nearly ready for publication by Harper & Brothers. The work is largely autobiographical, and contains the story of the conception of Mr. Bancroft's great history, the manner of its composition, and the methods by which the materials for its completion were collected. There are many interesting reminiscences also of the famous men with whom Mr. Bancroft was from time to time thrown in contact, and numerous literary digressions, which give additional zest to an already entertaining narrative.

The race question, the persistence of ancestral traits, the transmission of character, the re-appearance of types after several generations, are some of the subjects with which W. D. Howells will deal in his novel, "An Imperative Duty," to be begun in the July number of Harper's Magazine.

They Laughed Too Soon.

HANLAN TELLS HOW HE FIRST ASTONISHED THE OARSMEN.

My first great race was also my first great victory, writes Edward Hanlan in the Ladies' Home Journal. When I arrived at Philadelphia, in 1876, there were assembled all the great oarsmen in the world. I became a laughing-stock for them because of my style of rowing and my rigging. The prevailing rigging for sculls then was the eight-inch sliding seat; oars, ten feet three inches long, with blades five-and-a-half inches wide, and foot-board having an angle of twenty degrees. I went there with twenty-six inch sliding seat, nine-and-a-half foot oars, with six-and-a-half-inch blades, and an angular foot-brace of a forty-degree angle. When the race came off I won by several lengths. Since then, this rigging has advanced the speed of racing a minute a mile. I then went to England, and they laughed there; but I beat them out of sight. All England then used my rigging. I met Trickitt in England and won $500,000 for my friends on this race. I then went to Australia and was defeated by Beach through a collision with a steamer. The Australian climate undermined my constitution, and I was defeated several times there, but I could never get the Australians to meet me in neutral waters.

Prophetic Words.

In a brilliant speech delivered in the Legislative Assembly of Canada, just thirty years ago (1860), Sir John Macdonald referred to the terrible struggle then going on between the Northern and Southern States. He used this remarkable language:—

"I still look hopefully to the future of the United States, for I cannot but remember they are of the same blood as ourselves. I believe there is a vigor, a vitality, in the Anglo-Saxon character, and Anglo-Saxon institutions in the United States that will carry them through our Mother Country in days of old. But while in sympathy with them, I must say, let it be a warning to ourselves that we do not split upon the same rock which they have done. . . . The true principle of a Confederation lies in giving to the general Government all the principles and power of sovereignty, and that subordinate and individual states should have no power but those bestowed upon them. We would then have a powerful Central Government, and a powerful Central Legislature, and a powerful decentralized system of minor Legislatures for local purposes. . . . We are now approaching to a population of $3,000,000 of people. We are now approaching the population of the United States at the time they declared their independence; we are standing at the very threshold of nations, and when admitted we shall occupy no unimportant position among the nations of the world. . . . I hope, for ages, for ever, Canada may remain united to the Mother Country."

These words were prophetic, the opinion expressed clearly showing that Sir John Macdonald was then formulating a policy, which was crystallized into the British North America Act, and came into active operation on the 1st of July, 1867.

News Notes.

Berlin is having a spell of chilly, wintry weather, and the council has voted 3,000 marks to heat the asylums for the homeless.

The typewriter was supposed to be an English invention, but it appears that the originator was a Frenchman of Marseilles, who devised this apparatus as far back as 1833.

A Paris despatch says: The tribunal of the department of the Seine sentenced Turpine, Trifone, Fossier and Feuvrier each to four years imprisonment, and in addition imposed fines of $400, $600, $200 and $40 respectively, for their connection with the sale of the secret of the manufacture of melinite, the new French explosive, to the Armstrong gun manufacturing company. The four men are also deprived of civil rights for five, ten, five and two years respectively.
