THE TARTE-LAURIER CAMPAIGN.

It is just as we expected. Mr. Tarte's Patrie does not approve of the Liberal Conservative candidate for Queens. The selection of Mr. Hetherington by the convention at Gagetown has sent the Montreal organ, purchased for Mr. Tarte by Mr. Greenshields, into more extensive and elaborate hysterics than those displayed by the St. John organ of Mr. Blair, for which also Mr. Greenshields helped to pay.

La Patrie of Tuesday devotes its leading editorial to the Queens convention, and mixed it up with a general attack on Tories Orangemen and fanatics, generally. This is the way the tirade begins:

"The Tory party is the party of intolerance. The Orange lodges are Tory committees. From Clark Wallace to Hugh Graham we discover in the camp of the enemy the elements of hatred against the French province of Quebec."

With this lurid beginning La Patrie proceeded to say that the Tory chiefs are all "intolerants." "Clark Wallace never opens his mouth without insulting the French-Canadians." Mr. Haggart, Mr. Sproule, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Taylor and others cordially detest us and prove it on every occasion." Not content with these slanders on some of the fairest men in Canadian public life, La Patrie opens fire on Sir William Meredith, who has not been in politics for several years. Perhaps no man in Ontario is more universally respected than Chief Justice Meredith, who lately had the honor of unanimous election to the position of chancellor of the Provincial University in succession to Hon. Edward Blake. But the best that Mr. Tarte's organ can say of him is that "for fifteen years in Ontario the Tory party was directed by Sir William Meredith an eater of the French, and all his efforts tended to snatch from our compatriots of the neighboring province their separate schools and their language."

Next La Patrie attacks the Liberal-Conservative press, mentioning a number of Ontario papers, which it describes as organs of Sir Charles Tupper and insulters of French-Canadians. Particular mention is made of the outrages of these journals on the question of the contingent.

"Chiefs and organs," say La Patrie, are possessed by the same fanaticism. Clark Wallace is to-day the high-priest of intolerance, and at the same time the right arm of Sir Charles Tupper." All this is preliminary. The culmination of the crime of intolerance is the nomination of Mr. Hetherington. That candidate has the honor of a place before Sir William Meredith, Sir Charles Tupper, Mr. Foster and other fanatics.

La Patrie proceeds: "The bad element so far prevails among Mr. Bergerson's allies that they choose as a candidate for Queens the famous H. B. Hetherington." This is intended to turn the French-Canadian vote against the excellent French-Canadian member for Beauharnois, who refused to follow Mr. Tarte or to condemn the Canadian intervention in the wars of the Empire.

The Tarte organ prints once more the falsehoods about Mr. Hetherington's speech in the parish of Bunswick. The slanders, proved on the oath of many witnesses to be false, are all set forth. Mr. Hetherington is accused of saying that the next election would not be run between Liberals and Conservatives, but between Protestants and Catholics, and to have declared that the people of the maritime provinces must prepare to conquer Quebec. Mr. Hetherington is also described as the "chief organizer of the Tory party," but whether for the province or Dominion La Patrie does not say. It does, however, solemnly assure the gentle Quebec readers that Mr. Foster himself had charge of the convention at Gagetown.

Then comes the appeal to race and religion. Hear La Patrie: "The province of Quebec, to protect its best interests, must refuse all support to the party of these fanatics. We have nothing to gain, but everything to lose, if we give arms, influence and power to this gang of fanatics.

Public order, the welfare of the country, national prosperity, demand that we should leave in opposition the demagogues, the producers of national and religious hate."

One more turning to Mr. Bergerson, who is as good a French-Canadian and Catholic as Mr. Tarte, La Patrie accuses him of a loss of moral sense because he allies himself with "Clarke Wallace and his savage band."

This at first sight is amusing. But it has a serious side. We should have had the same thing if any one else had been nominated in Queens, for La Patrie slanders Chief Justice Meredith, Sir Charles Tupper, Mr. Foster and Hugh John Macdonald, who are not "Orangistes," just as it does Mr. Wallace, or Mr. Taylor, or Mr. Hetherington. It had the same sort of attack on the premier of Manitoba when he turned Mr. Greenway out. The same appeal to the people of Quebec to rise as one man and protect themselves from the enemy was made over the election of Mr. Flemming in Carleton.

Every nomination and every election is a text for La Patrie, Le Soleil and Mr. Tarte in their appeal to the people of Quebec to vote in a solid body against the Tory fanatics, and to turn out of parliament every French Canadian Liberal Conservative, because they are all allies of the alleged intolerants.

Such appeals must have their effect. Coming day after day to the same people, they work on their pride or their fear or their naturally jealous regard for their own creed and race. These appeals are intended to hold the province of Quebec for Sir Wilfrid Laurier in spite of the faults and offences of his government. The premier sees these papers every day of his life, and encourages this miserable campaign. He sees in it his strongest hope, perhaps his only hope of continuing in power. The premier says that he deprecates sectional and sectarian canvasses. So he does elsewhere than in the province where they do him good.

Such language as we have quoted may be found in any issue of La Patrie. It is the material on which Mr. Tarte feeds the fire of suspicion in his own province. This is the purpose for which La Patrie was bought by the ministers, with Mr. Greenshield's money.

This business is grossly unfair to the French-Canadian people. They are naturally a cordial and friendly race, free from bitterness and willing to live on good terms with others. In politics they would, if left to themselves, vote for the man and the party of their personal choice without regard to these false issues raised by the government. But he continual appeals on these false issues serve to divert their minds from the real questions and to make them think that they are surrounded by bitter and selfish enemies.

The purpose of the appeal is to drive from public life the few remaining French-speaking Conservative members who include in their numbers some of the ablest and most worthy and broad-minded men in this country. There are no better men in parliament today than Mr. Bergerson, Mr. Casgrain and Mr. Monk, and none who have enjoyed more of the respect and esteem of those who know them. These men cannot be attacked on their own record of character. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his master can only hope to destroy them by making the more simple believe that they are a lied with "eaters of the French," such as they describe Sir William Meredith.—St. John Sun.
