N.B. Snow-Clearing Machines Are Going To Great Britain

By CAL HOLLOWAY

BATHURST, N.B. (CP)—Snow clearing machines manufactured in this northeastern New Brunswick town of 6,000 will help keep roads open in Britain's Northumberland County this winter.

Eight Snowblasts—the trade name of the snowblowers—from Northern Machine Works Ltd., will be shipped from here next month to Newcastle - on - Tyne. The order is worth $100,000.

It is the first overseas order received by the local company but about 40 of the machines are in operation across Canada.

Northern Machine Works Ltd., incorporated in 1945, grew from a modest little automobile repair shop started 30 years ago by Mearle Smith of Bathurst.

Business increased at a fast pace during the Second World War and after incorporation the company began the manufacture of earth-moving equipment.

Mr. Smith retired in 1958 and the new management, made up of three local men, switched to the manufacture of snowblowers.

A. J. Senwick, president, worked with Mr. Smith in the early days. The other two men in the company are C. F. Taylor, executive vice-president and J. V. Clinch, secretary treasurer. Mr. Smith is still associated with the business.

LACKED EQUIPMENT

The British order for the machines followed last year's record snowfall in Europe which caught many British towns without adequate snow clearing equipment.

"We hoped to sell four but got an order for eight," said Mr. Taylor.

He said the Snowblast—although based on a Swiss design—is largely the company's own development.

The machines have two sets of rotating cutter blades of a patented helical design. They cut through snow and ice much faster than conventional snowblowers.

Introduced on the Canadian market three years ago, the Snowblasts have been purchased by railways, municipal councils and highways departments from Newfoundland to British Columbia.

Northern Machine Works also manufactures other steel products such as truck dump bodies and navigation buoys. It employs about 75 men and has an annual payroll of $250,000.

Mr. Taylor said the company could manufacture 50 to 75 Snowblasts a year if it had the market for that many. He said he sees no immediate expansion for the company in the immediate future because there is an "extreme lack" of skilled labor in the area.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
2♣	Pass	2♠	2♣
Pass	Pass	Dble.

Opening lead—king of hearts.

This hand occurred during the national championships played in Coronado, Calif., in 1959. The East-West hands were held respectively by Mrs. Dorothy Hayden and Mrs. Sylvia Stein, both among America's highest-ranked women players.

Mrs. Stein opened the bidding with two clubs, an artfeal forcing club. (It was only a coincidence that Mrs. Stein happened to have clubs.) Mrs. Hayden made the negative (also artificial) response of two diamonds to deny positive values.

South now intervened with two spades. Having already indicated a good hand by her previous bid, Mrs. Stein passed at this point. She was in no position to judge how far or where to go, but she hoped that Mrs. Hayden would be able to lead the way to the best contract.

Mrs. Hayden had about the worst hand it is possible to hold in bridge, but mindful of her obligation to keep the bidding open in one form or another, she doubled.

This turned out to be the right decision, since Mrs. Stein passed the double and cashed her seven winners to defeat the contract two tricks — 300 points. It was the maximum score possible with the East-West cards, since the most that East-West could make if left to their own devices was three clubs. Mr. Steins pass of two spades after opening with a strong two bid, was quite unusual, but even more unusual was Mrs. Hayden's double with a worthless hand. Certainly, if ever there was a case for passing a forcing bid, East had the hand for it, but Mrs. Hayden prized her cards sufficiently and had enough faith in partner's opening bid to double.

The East hand was a curiosity in other respects also. The usual definition of a Yarborough is a hand containing no card as high as a ten, but in this case East had no nine or eight either. The odds against being dealt a hand with the highest card a seven are 284,398 to 1.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
