

MR. & MRS. A. R. YOUNKER AND ATTENDANTS

Couple Will Reside At Oyster Bed Bridge

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. Mr. Moase of the parsonage at Hunter River, when Violet Katherine, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Whitlock, Hunter River, became the bride of Arnold Ralph, son of Mr. Elmer Younker and the late Mrs. Younker of Oyster Bed Bridge.

The bride looked lovely in a street length gown of sapphire bridal satin with white accessories. Her corsage was white carnations. The bride was attended by her sister Jean who was attired in a street length gown of ivory Chromspun, with blue accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. The groom was ably supported by his cousin, Myron Younker.

A reception was held at the home of the bride. After receiving congratulations of those present the bridal party retired to the living room where a delicious buffet supper was served to immediate relatives and friends. For her honeymoon trip the bride donned a floral sheath dress with a dusky rose coat. After visiting points of interest in the Maritimes, Mr. and Mrs. Younker returned to their home in Oyster Bed Bridge where the groom is a prosperous farmer.—Photo by Meyers.

MARY HAWORTH Here Are 3 Suggestions

Dear Mary Haworth: What is your opinion of a May-December romance—where the woman is in late thirties and the man is in his early twenties? There is about 17 years' difference. Nobody seems to think it so terrible for an elderly man to marry a young lady. But just let the situation be reversed and the woman's relatives and friends are in a uproar, as in my case. Tell me, just what is so terrible about the bride's being 17 years younger than the bridegroom? Being older, it should be easier for her to be a better motherly figure, and all men want to be treated and waited on like children.

It seems, while referring to them rather scornfully as the supposedly erroneous ideas of other people. You are afraid of general ridicule if you marry the boyish candidate for your hand; and also you are afraid of being proved wrong in your investment of hope as the marriage is tested by time. As for how to decide in a case of the kind, I think the principals will have to take the burden of decision upon themselves. If they can't decide, they aren't qualified to marry.

OTHER-SON LOVE

And, don't you think that the laws one hears, to beware of some religious differences, is a lot of nonsense and much ado about nothing?—when you can get the person you want and the things you want? Even though there isn't that bill of young romantic love in your heart, don't you think the attachment of a mother-son love is a stronger bond to hold a marriage together?

As of now, you are fighting the negatives, instead of organizing the positives, as regards your wish to marry a younger man. You are trying to line up, and demolish, society's favorite arguments against a woman's "robbing the cradle." And in so doing, you put yourself on the defensive, even in your own thinking—which is not a constructive approach to a difficult undertaking.

MATURE APPROACH

Thus we find you shrill, apprehensive and definitely inclined to act impulsively, without real conviction—at the present writing. A really mature woman, facing the dilemma, would be calm, composed and alertly aware of risks involved, while nonetheless determined to press towards the prize of the life she wants—if she were "of one mind" with the man in the case. In honesty I can't either encourage or discourage marriage such as you contemplate. The chances of eventual disunity are probably great. But if you have the temperament and the spiritual balance to live happily in the now—instead of worrying tensely about tomorrow—you might find that the blessings of this exceptional companionship would endure and multiply. Morgan-Dalzell Wedding Is Solemnized In Toronto

At 2.00 o'clock on the 29th March, the double ring wedding took place, quietly, between Ellen Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edson W. Dalzell, New Annan, P.E.I., and Leonard, son of Mrs. Blanche Morgan of Toronto and the late Mr. Herbert Morgan of Southampton, England. The ceremony was performed in Glenview Presbyterian Church, Toronto, by the Rev. Gardiner C. Dalzell, B.A., brother of the bride assisted by the resident minister of the church, the Rev. Kenneth

M. Glazier, Ph.D. Given in marriage by Colonel M. C. G. Meighen, O.B.E., the bride was attended by Miss Jennifer Becks as maid-of-honour. The groomsmen were Mr. Ray Morgan, brother of the groom, and the ushers were Mr. Alan Morgan, also brother of the groom, and Mr. Alan Whipp. The bride wore an exquisite Bois de Rose lace dress. It had a close fitted bodice with same colour chiffon yoke ending in elbow length sleeves, with a Peter Pan collar of lace. The bouffant skirt was scalloped at the hemline. A bandeau of Bois de Rose velvet leaves with touches of diamante, and matching rose shoes completed the ensemble. She carried a simple spray of pink carnations.

The maid-of-honour wore a cream silk dress featuring the new Chemise look, with a French cream rose pinned at the neckline, and a large black picture hat and black suede shoes. Mrs. Harold Cotnam, taking the place of the mother of the bride in her absence, chose a dress of pink and tan print with pink accessories and a corsage of pink feathered carnations. The mother of the groom wore a grey-blue two-piece dress with white accessories and a corsage of white feathered carnations.

A small reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Levett, Toronto for the immediate relatives and friends. For her going away outfit, Mrs. Morgan chose a two-piece turquoise silk dress with a small flowered hat of matching tones. The happy couple left for a brief honeymoon in New York City, and are now back making their residence in Toronto.

THREE SUGGESTIONS

But to help them gird up their souls to meet the challenge of choosing their course, may I suggest: 1. The principals should be, first of all, old enough to know their own minds. Some persons mature early, and others late, on this score. 2. They should be endowed with a fair measure of intelligence, mental health and self esteem; should be able to form convictions and be true to them. 3. Then, if they consider they have good and sufficient reasons, that makes sense to themselves, as to why they belong together as man and wife, they should quietly promote a plan of mutual accommodation, and let the world wonder and headshake, if it will.
