A Sight Worth Seeing.

Probably few persons ever saw the breathing apparatus of a human being laid open for inspection. From a hospital cadaver, we once saw the lungs and bronchial tubes removed, and blown up as a boy would a bladder or toy balloon, until the fine bronchial tubes and air cells of the lungs were distended to the fullest extent. In this state the lungs were hardened by immersion in alcohol, so that they remained expanded when the air was let free. With a sharp knife the wind-pipe and lungs were split open, so that it was easy to trace the bronchial tubes gradually diminishing in size from the wind-pipe itself, becoming finer and more delicately branched, until smaller than fine sewing cotton, these tiny bronchi lead into the air-cells beyond, to convey air to sustain life.

Truly a wonderful sight, which we have often recalled during the past winter as we read of the great number of deaths from pneumonia and bronchitis. Nearly 250 deaths in Boston in the month of January.

It seems impossible to most people that so common and simple a disease as bronchitis should cause death at all. But think for a moment, what would happen if the lining membrane of those tiny tubes described above should become much swollen by inflammation, which is likely to occur after any severe cold. The passage of air to the lung cells would be stopped, and the patient die from suffocation as certainly as if a giant grasped his throat.

People should not overlook the irritation or "tickling in the throat," which causes a "hacking cough." Sure symptoms of bronchitis. The irritation being caused from inflammation inside of the wind-pipe, it is useless to take medicines into the stomach to cure it; one might as well eat tallow to cure chapped hands.

The interior mucous membrane of the wind-pipe must be promptly treated, to prevent the downward spread of the inflammation, and effect a cure. On page twelve of a pamphlet published by I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., is printed plain directions for applying Johnson's Anodyne Liniment to the bronchial tubes and nasal passages, to cure cold and bronchitis.

It is a well-known fact, as many persons can testify that this old fashioned remedy will stop inflammation and swelling quicker than any other medicine. all d6i w1i

Why go about hawking and spitting when Nasal Balm will remove very vestige of your catarrh, and thus relieve you of this disagreeable habit? In cases of cold in the head, Nasal Balm gives instant relief, and there is no case of catarrah it will not cure if used according to directions. A single bottle will convince you of its merit. ap13 1w
