Jobs Plentiful In New Zealand

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — New Zealand employers are in the midst of a cut-throat scramble for workers. It is a regular phenomenon each year in the second half of January. The result of the contest means a prosperous or difficult year for many firms.

New Zealanders do not observe staggered vacations. The whole staffs close down at Christmas and does not get back into gear again until mid-January after summer holidays.

Large numbers of workers take the opportunity to change jobs, especially in the case of girl factory workers. They know there are dozens of jobs available from which to choose, so they please themselves whether they go back to the same job, and when.

Often they stay on holiday until they begin to run short of money. Then they find a job with friends met on vacation, or at the same factory as some new boy friend.

A 20-page daily paper in Auckland recently carried 34 pages of closely-set help wanted ads. In addition the same paper carried numerous display advertisements appealing for workers. Many offered bonuses or other incentives above the standard wage.

Still No Trace Of N. B. Plane Missing With 3 Men Aboard

By DON HOYT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONCTON (CP) — RCMP Friday continued checking dozens of reports in hopes of finding a lead to the fate of a Piper Tri-Ceap missing since Tuesday in the central-southeastern New Brunswick area with Municipal Affairs Minister T. Babbitt Parlee and two civil defence officials aboard.

The disappearance remains unsolved as a two-pronged RCMP-led search party tries to localize the search either in the Minto area, northeast of Fredericton, or at Havelock, 25 miles southwest of here.

A false alarm late Friday sent an RCMP patrol scurrying on whether the St. John River near Fredericton to check a 140-foot long crack in river ice. Possibility that the plane tried to land and plunged through river ice was discounted. A Thursday report of "intermittent smoke" in the Grand Lake area of Central New Brunswick proved futile when a woodsman told RCMP he lit two fires to keep himself warm.

REPORTS "AUTHENTIC"

Sgt. W. R. Bryenton, chief of Havelock operations, said Friday he is convinced of the authenticity of reports that a low-flying plane buzzed the area Tuesday night between 9 and 10 p.m. AST. The plane was due here at 10 p.m. after a one-hour flight from Fredericton.

RCMP headquarters in Fredericton said Friday the day-long air-ground search turned up no new clues.

"We plan on searching the Durham area Saturday," the spokesman said. Two loggers reported hearing a plane flying low over their cabin about 9 p.m. Tuesday night. Durham is near Fredericton.

Plans for the Havelock search were indefinite late Friday. Rising winds and a light fall of snow could affect the hunt.

Shortly after Havelock searchers wound up, a woman in Kent county reported she heard a crash Tuesday night shortly after seeing a plane's lights. The report was checked early today.

Weather during the search has been comparatively mild.

Mr. Parlee, 42, Howard Smith, 36, deputy co-ordinator of civil defence for the province and L. C. Russell, 39, southeastern zone training officer for CD, still are given a fair chance of survival.

Expect Defence Expenditures Down Slightly For Next Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence expenditures will be a slightly less burden on the Canadian taxpayer in the fiscal year starting April 1, 1957.

Estimates of government spending, tabled Tuesday in the Commons, show that the administration plans an outlay of $1,722,000,000 for defence in the 1957-58 fiscal year, $22,300,000 or three per cent less than the appropriation for the current fiscal year.

Defence spend givill amount to 37 per cent of total government expenditures compared with 40 per cent in the current year and other recent years.

There are only minor adjustments in appropriations among the three services. If anything, the army comes out a little better than the navy or the RCAF compared with recent years.

MORE MONEY FOR ARMY

The estimate for the army is $478,838,000, some $2,000,000 more than in the 1956-57 fiscal year. The appropriation for the navy is down some $15,000,000 to $309,040,000 and for the air force down about $28,000,000 to $844,758,000.

However, the RCAF will get more money for aircraft and engines—$215,630,000 compared with $197,024,000 in the current year. The air force now is in the process of re-equipping its nine home defence squadrons with a more modern version of the CF-100 jet interceptor and four of its 12 Sabre fighter squadrons in Europe with the more expensive CF-106.

The decrease in the defence budget stems mainly from completion of the major part of the mid-Canada radar warning line stretching along the 55th parallel from the Labrador coast to the Peace River district of northern Alberta.

REDUCED $76,726,000

The RCAF, responsible for construction of the line, received $144,509,000 last year for buildings and signal equipment. This will be reduced to $76,726,000 in the 1957-58 fiscal year, representing a saving of nearly $68,000,000.

However, this saving and others on capital items will be eaten up to some extent by pay increases granted last year to the armed forces and civilian employees of the defence department.

For instance, pay and allowances for the 117,000 armed forces personnel will come to some $391,000,000 in the next fiscal year compared with some $353,000,000 in the current one.

Throughout the services, expenditures for equipment will generally be less except for RCAF aircraft.

The appropriation for naval ships, for instance, is down about $5,000,000 to $55,000,000 and for naval aircraft down $6,000,000 to $25,000,000.

The estimate for civil defence is unchanged at $7,010,000.

Mr. Jones outlined the different ideas which have been developed and helped to produce a record attendance of 2,207 at last year's two Charlottetown clinics.

The total enrolment almost equaled that of the previous year when three clinics were held. New projects for the 1957 clinics were discussed and met with the approval of the committee. The dates for the next clinics in Charlottetown were set for the week of April 29th.

Mothers' Auxiliary Hold Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Mothers' Auxiliary of the Holy Redeemer Cubs and Scouts was held in the Community Center on Monday, January 21st, with the president, Mrs. J.H. Maloney in the Chair. Mr. Frank Costello and the assistant scoutmasters and a number of leaders were in attendance.

Mrs. J.F. McGuigan read the minutes of the annual meeting held in February 1956 and the minutes of the last monthly meeting. Mrs. Wilfred Duffy read the Treasurer's report, giving a bank balance of $251.17. Mrs. J.A. McMillan and Mrs. Blanchard moved the adoption of this report.

Mrs. Maloney read the report for the past year, stating that it had been a most successful and active year. The first Foster-son Banquet had been held in February with 128 guests present. A largely attended square dance had contributed over one hundred dollars to the funds. A card party, sale of candy, catering for a square dance and a penny auction had all been successful ways of raising money.

In December a Christmas party for the cubs and scouts had been held, complete with Santa Claus and a gaily decorated tree. A Banquet had been conducted the leaders at the Queen Hotel as a small token of thanks for the work they had done with the Cubs and Scouts. Reverend Father Allan had been appointed Chaplain of the Cubs and Scouts.

Mr. Frank Costello in his report as Scoutmaster announced that a mimeographed report of the year's activities would be available for each member at the next monthly meeting of the Auxiliary. He stated that the fourteen leaders met monthly to discuss their work with the Cubs and

Tornadoes Kill At Least Eleven

GANS, Okla. (AP)—Winter tornadoes, spawned by a cold front crashing into unseasonably warm air, ripped into Oklahoma, Arkansas and Missouri Tuesday to kill at least 11 persons including eight in this farm community.

Three persons were killed and four are missing after a tornado destroyed homes in two Louisiana sawmill towns of Princeton and Bellevue.

Another tornado later Tuesday swept over part of Kennett in southeastern Missouri, destroying some homes, uprooting trees and tangling power lines. One injury was reported.

At least two twisters were reported in Arkansas and three more in Oklahoma.

Dozens were injured as the out-of-season twisters spun through the area.

A Kansas City Southern train speeding through Gans, an eastern Oklahoma town in the Cookson Hills, at 6 a.m. with its whistle blowing full steam may have saved many others from death or injury.

It was reported that many sleeping citizens were aroused by the whistle, then saw the turbulent weather and headed for storm cellars.

Four minutes later the tornado struck.

Gans, with a population of about 600, is near the Arkansas line 15 miles from Fort Smith.

W.C.T.U. NOTES

"Reducing the number of Highway deaths is of prime importance but we must also pay greater attention to reducing the injury rate. It is about time we stopped imitating an ostrich with his head in the sand and recognize that drinking-drivers and drinking pedestrians are a grave hazard on our public ways. To eliminate this menace we must have greater police protection and the imposition of stricter penalties by the courts. Is it not about time that we took off our rose-colored glasses and took a clear look at this problem in its stark black and white realities?"

"Investigations show that in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in 50 per cent of the highway fatalities during 1956 either the operator or the pedestrian, and sometimes both, had been drinking. And I am well satisfied from information given to me by responsible citizens and drinking drivers that if it were careful, thorough investigation is made a majority of the states will find the same high incidence of drinking as a factor in their fatal and non-fatal accidents."

"The National Safety Committee for Traffic Safety has given out a statement, endorsed by the President's Highway Safety Conference, regarding drunk-driving driving while under the influence of an intoxicant is much more hazardous than the Ameri-

Harris Ducks Tax Cut Questions

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Harris ducked a Commons question Wednesday on whether there will be tax cuts in his 1957-58 budget to be delivered this spring.

J. N. Macdonnell, Progressive Conservative financial critic, said Mr. Harris showed generosity in spending in his annual estimates tabled Tuesday and wondered whether there was any generosity left for tax reductions.

"I think this is the first voice that has been raised on the other side of the House in favor of reductions," Mr. Harris replied.
