NEW DRIVE

north of the city. He quoted one Allied officer as saying he was convinced the Chinese do not plan to assault Seoul at this time. Hwachen reservoir is a unit of the power grids of North Korea that fed electricity to devastated industrial sections of North Korea as well as to Manchuria.

When the Chinese entered the war last fall, there were some contentions and Red propaganda to the effect that they were protecting their Yalu River power grid. The Yalu dams would be easy targets for Allied air attack, but have not been bombed. The river separates Manchuria from Korea.

No Sign of Chinese

AP correspondent George A. McArthur reported three columns of Allied tanks and infantrymen saluted out of the Seoul defence perimeter early Tuesday. By noon they had driven forward an undisclosed number of miles without finding the Chinese hordes massed there only the day before.

It seemed clear that the Reds had pulled back to the north, out of range of massed United Nations artillery and supporting gunfire of warships. Censors deleted any mention of distances the main Red force had withdrawn.

Heavy censorship was lifted sufficiently to disclose that the U.S. 1st Marine Division and the 27th Commonwealth Brigade, composed of Canadian, Australian and New Zealand units, plugged a gaping hole on the central front April 23 to stave off disaster. The 10-mile deep hole was punched through the ranks of a Southern Korean division noted for its gallant fighting.

St. Paul's Laymen's Association Holds Annual Meeting

The annual and final meeting for this term of the Laymen's Association of St. Paul's Church was held in the Parish Hall last evening. The attendance was fair, considering the many other attractions.

The usual supper meeting, catered by the ladies of the church, preceded the business meeting, and as usual the repeat was special, and the justice done was ample. They were warmly thanked for both the special food and the splendid service by the President.

Andrew Likely injected a little song treatment into the atmosphere which was just what the boys required after a hearty meal, and the music of Ann Worthy filled the gap which made the structure secure.

Rev. J. T. Abbott spoke briefly outlining the duties and service possible for laymen to undertake. He considered that laymen should at all times be ready and willing to offer their services to the church, and that such associations as the laymen could provide the necessary leadership for a good staple brand of fellowship on the one hand, to be assisted on the other by the frequent gift of spiritual and devotional effort. The success enjoyed by the laymen during the past year could be credited to splendid co-operation with the above ideas in view. He hoped for a continuation of reported success as there was plenty of work to do.

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and adopted. The annual report of the President was then presented. It contained a short resume of a busy, well balanced, and satisfactory term. He referred to the many projects and undertakings carried out during the year as well as the assistance the association had given other church organizations. These had all been successfully achieved and had furnished pleasure and satisfaction to the members in work so necessary to the advancement of church interest. The report was listened to with much interest, and a unanimous vote of appreciation was tendered the President at its conclusion for the special service he had personally rendered, culminating with such splendid results. He made fitting reply to these complimentary remarks.

The report of the nominating committee was presented. As no further nominations were made from the floor, the report was adopted as presented. Officers: Patron, Right Rev. R.H. Waterman D.D., the Lord Bishop of Nova Scotia; Honorary President, Rev. J. T. Abbott; President, Mr. Frank W. Jelks; Vice President, Mr. J. L. Clarke; Secretary, Mr. Charles W. Jamieson; Treasurer, Mr. R. E. Kemp; Executive: Messrs Arthur H. Duvar, H. Edvard Miller, Fred J. James, Robert J. MacKenzie, Laymen's Association, Mr. E. V. Bell, O. W. Lockyer; Representatives Affiliated Laymen's Council, George S. Ryan, A. J. Haslam.

President DeBlois transferred his mantle to his successor, Mr. Frank W. Jelks, who concluded the business remaining. After arranging for several matters needing immediate attention such as the annual Sunday School picnic which it was decided to hold on June 23rd next, the scouts and the Youth Centre at Crapaud, the meeting closed with prayer by the Rector.

Use Of Liquid Fertilizer Is Raised In House

OTTAWA, May 1 - (Special) - Federal agricultural authorities have not discouraged the use of liquid fertilizer, Agriculture Minister Gardiner today told W. Chester S. McLure, Progressive Conservative member for Queen's. He admitted however that there had been some controversy over the matter, and this was given rise to Mr. McLure's question.

"The Department has not discouraged the use of liquid fertilizer," Mr. Gardiner said. "However, there was controversy over some of the claims made by the manufacturer regarding its use, such as the treatment of the grain before sowing. The Experimental Farms service conducted a large number of tests in 1950 and found that such treatment did not give significant results to the farmer, and this information was made available to the public."

Mr. McLure had been told by a number of his farmers constituents that broadcast sponsored by the Federal Department of Agriculture had cast doubt on the value of liquid fertilizer. This had surprised them and they had asked for an official pronouncement on the matter. Some farmers were concerned that doubt had been cast on the efficacy of liquid fertilizer in order to encourage farmers to buy the more expensive chemical fertilizer in powdered form.

From Mrs. Gardiner's answer on the floor of the House of Commons, it would appear that the department has no prejudice against the liquid fertilizer except in the specific case he mentioned.
