Teachers Federation

Classes on Saturdays he stated disrupted many homes as a large number of children might have art classes, music lessons or dental appointments on that day. He dryly remarked to the teachers "I do not think it would be a financial catastrophe if you teachers got paid for 200 days and only taught 198."

Hon. Keir Clark, Minister of Education, reviewed the teaching legislation passed at the recent session of the Legislature and explained the purpose of it to the gathering. In speaking in general on the matter of supplements he stated that some people still felt that they were a type of bonus paid the teachers by the various communities. Instead of that, he said, they were an integral part of a teacher's salary. The Minister's address appears in full in today's Guardian.

Presidential Report

In his presidential report Mr. Earl Jelley made a strong plea for better public relations efforts by the teachers. He said that without them the prestige of the teacher and the teaching profession suffers and without prestige "Our contribution to the development of children so that they will become good useful citizens is not what it should be."

He also suggested that improved public relations could lead to an improved salary position as people are willing to pay for services that are worthy. "If we are to continue to get better schools, better facilities and improved curriculum it is necessary that the public, the parents, taxpayers, be properly informed of the needs of our schools. The teacher therefore should encourage citizens to study the general problem of education."

Mr. Jelley felt that in order for a child to develop properly there should be close co-operation between the home teachers, the community teachers and the school teacher. He said that in this way the individual pupil, with his problems, may be helped in his development of becoming a useful citizen.

He suggested that in order to do a good public relations job the teacher might frequently find it necessary to take an active part in community activities. The president pointed out several ways in which a teacher could do the job. He stated it must first start in the classroom because pupils could sense if a teacher were interested.

The late Most Rev. Alfred A. Sinnott, first Archbishop of Winnipeg and formerly of Crapaud, P.E.I., whose funeral takes place at Winnipeg on Thursday.

In the work, was able to conduct a classroom properly and if he or she had the qualifications.

He thought teachers should become specialists in their work and to do so must grow professionally. This could be done by reading and experimenting with new classroom methods when others seem to fail. He also said that where parents do not see any need for radio in schools nor see the value of films, libraries, and other visual aids the teacher should use some way of informing them of the activities in a school. Talks to this end might be given at community organizations.

Important Contribution

He said that teachers should feel that they are important people making a worthy contribution to society by doing one of the most challenging and interesting things possible. "I believe the more skilled we become the better teachers we are, and the happier we will be in our work."

In briefly dealing with the work of the Teachers Federation he recalled the aims of it and in view of them asked those present to try to visualize the extent to which they had been carried out.

He listed them as; 1, to promote and advance the interest of education; 2, to raise the status of the teaching profession; 3, to promote and advance the interest of teachers and to secure conditions which will make possible the best professional service; 4, to arouse and increase public interest in educational affairs; 5, to co-operate with other teachers' organizations throughout Canada having the same or like objects, that is: efficient teachers, fair salaries.

Educational Council

Mr. Jelley remarked with pleasure that instead of having only one teacher on the Educational Council there are now three. He also spoke of the greater co-operation.

tion the Federation had received during the past year from the Minister of Education. He said that they had always found Mr. Clark very co-operative and willing to sit around with them and discuss their problems.

The president told of the Federation's salary committee preparing a brief which had been presented. There had been some results, though not as great as expected, but at least it was a step in the right direction.

He added that older teachers who had been in the profession for many years might not live long enough to get everything, "but we are working for the younger teachers and those who will come in later years." He expressed full confidence that the Minister of Education will do everything he can to help.

The speaker also noted the need for more active co-operation between educational authorities and the Federation's curriculum committee. In this respect, he said, rapid strides had already been made but the teachers should have a bit more say in the work of the schools.

Afternoon Sessions

The afternoon sessions were devoted to group instruction in various classrooms of the college. His- tory in elementary and junior grades Mr. David Monroe, director, School of Teachers, Macdonald College, Dr. L. W. These group instruction periods will be continued today and tomorrow with the addition of other subjects for discussion.

The principal address this morning will be delivered by Dr. L. W. Shaw on the completion of registration. This afternoon the teachers will be guests at a reception in their honor at Government House.

Tomorrow morning they will be entertained by the pupils of Notre Dame Academy in a choral reading. The class is directed by Sr. St. Augustine, C. N. D. Later an open forum will be held in the auditorium.

Charlottetown Woman Plays Hostess To Many Canadians In London

By Muriel Narraway (Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON (CP) — A Charlottetown woman's proudest possessions in London are six books filled with Canadian names and identifying comments.

The books owned by Lena McLure list each Canadian service man she has met during two years as Canadian hostess at the Newfoundland centre, the Commonwealth recreation centre just off Trafalgar square. Wives and families are also listed if she has met them.

"The names will bring pleasant memories for years to come," said the soft-voiced Prince Edward Island woman who has met so many Canadian sailors, soldiers and airmen that she's lost count. "Most of the men and women serving in Europe an estimated 10,000 come here some time during a leave," Miss McLure said in a interview.

Open Invitation

"All the boys have my home address and an open invitation to visit. I have a large correspondence and many have promised to visit me when I return to Canada later this year."

Dark-haired, dark-eyed Miss McLure is proud of her family home, Bonnahinley, a large house in southern colonial style, with three acres of grounds at Charlottetown. Her father is silver fox rancher Chester McLure, former Progressive Conservative member of Parliament.

Miss McLure was recently presented to Queen Mother Elizabeth on two consecutive occasions—March 16 at a Dominion Fellowship Trust tea and March 17 at the annual meeting of the Queen Mary Needlework Guild in London, held at St. James' Palace.

Recently she was appointed to the executive of the Associated Country Women of the World, the first Canadian representative so named since 1945.

Miss McLure came to London in January, 1952, to study drama and singing—subjects she has taught in Charlottetown and Toronto. A graduate of the Toronto Conservatory of Music and Boston University, she intends to resume teaching when she returns to Canada at a still undecided date this year.

Construction Of New Wharves Gets Underway

Construction of new wharves at Murray Harbour and Murray River is now underway. At Murray Harbour the east end of the present wharf is being replaced with a new wharf which will run approximately 100 feet east and 80 feet north to provide ample wharfage space for loading ships.

The present east end structure is an old one, and has fallen in disrepair, necessitating the construction of a new one. At the same time it will be extended northward to provide docking facilities for another ship. The contract is let to J. W. McMullin and Son of Upper Gagetown, N.B., who at present are placing the piles for the new wharf which will be raised to the level of the wharf constructed a few years ago. New stringers, wallings and sheathing, together with new crib work will provide a substantial wharf for future use.

At Murray River the firm of R. A. Blyth and Company, Toronto, is engaged in driving the new piles for the construction of this wharf. Mr. J. E. Paddy Lucas, Montague, is operating the pile driving machine. The wharf at Murray River is over 200 feet long and will be finished somewhat similar to that at Murray Harbour.
