WEDDED LOVE

And if the husband or the wife
In home's strong life discovers
Such slight defaults as failed to meet
The blinded eyes of lovers:
Why need we care to ask? Who dreams
Without their thorns of roses?
Or wonders that the truest steel
The readiest spark discloses?
For still in mutual suff'rance lies
The secret of true living;
Love scarce is love that never knows
The sweetness of forgiving.
—John G. Whittier.

OF INTEREST TO MILITIAMEN.

Something About the 82nd Battalion and the Guard of Honor.
(Canadian Military Gazette.)

The efficiency returns of rural corps, published in this issue, show considerable discrepancy in marking in different districts. It was understood when inspectors of infantry were appointed, that there would be some uniformity in the value of credits, but by this return it would appear that the 82nd Batt. is far more efficient than most of the Ontario and Nova Scotia corps. For instance the 82nd Batt. figure of merit is 164.56, while the 45th Batt. is 132.52. A glance at the condition of the 45th Batt., as shown by the last Militia List, corrected to Oct 1, may give the cause for their not coming up to the Prince Edward Island standard. The establishment calls for two majors; there are none; six captains are allowed; there are only five, and but two of these hold first-class certificates; lieutenants there should be six; there are but four, and three of these are provisional; of 2nd lieutenants every one of the seven are provisional. Yet this is the battalion that the gallant and brave Lieut.-Col. Hughes offered to the Imperial Government, with the object of assisting to rebuild the British Empire and for service in any part of the globe. Surely it could not have been thought that the Imperial Government would avail themselves of Col. Hughes' offer, and it would appear more like a clever "fake" to recruit the 45th West Durham Batt. of Infantry, rather than with any serious idea that his offer of the "45th Victoria Midland Regiment" would see service in any part of the globe other than Kingston. Lieut.-Col. Hughes obtained the Jubilee Medal—in some way—but his name is barren of war services. There is no cross swords to show that he helped to rebuild the Empire during the Fenian Raids of 1866-70, the Red River Expedition, or the North west Rebellion, 1885. The Victoria Warbler tells us that the offer of Col. Hughes has been received and favorably considered by the authorities to whom it was addressed, and at the same time intimates that this same gallant officer sails for Australia via Vancouver in two or three weeks.

The other day when the Governor-General and Countess of Aberdeen visited Charlottetown, a district order was issued for a guard to receive their Excellencies. The order for 100 ranks and file besides the necessary number of officers and a band. It was a pity, indeed, the guard was not up to the standard of excellence befitting the occasion for which it was ordered. The men were of good physique, as most Prince Edward Islanders are, but being drawn from different arms of the service, it looked, to the uninitiated, like a strip of crazy patch work. The blue coats of the artillery, scarlet and gold of the engineers, and the red coats of the infantry, formed up in the other named. The infantry being a rural corps, was armed with long Sniders; the artillery, being also a rural corps, lined up with short Sniders, and the engineers, a city corps, paraded with the Lee-Enfield. Then the unwieldy sword-bayonet graced the muzzles of the artillerymen's rifles; the long, old-fashioned bayonet did duty for the red coated contingent, and the modern short bayonets were, appropos, of course, with the engineers. The only thing which seemed to harmonize, and I am pleased to give due prominence to the fact, were the well blackened boots of both officers and men. I was going to say, too, that the parade wore white helmets throughout; but the band of the 82nd Batt., which was on duty forgot their helmets and were on parade in forage caps. It is not known what His Excellency thought of the guard; but as it passed the keen eye of our D. O. C. without unfavorable comment the general taxpayer at least will have to be satisfied. The guard was in command of a v. b. captain.

That was a proud boast which Mr. Chamberlain was able to make at Glasgow, namely, that since the reform in municipal institutions in Britain not one case of pecuniary corruption in civic government had been disclosed.

THE LATEST EDUCATIONAL EFFORT.

A Distressed Parent with an Unreliable Watch Desires Information

Sir.—Among the many praiseworthy efforts to instruct and amuse the people of our city I trust you will not forget to place the latest educational effort of our worthy School Board,—the Average Time Lesson Table. No false modesty should prevent the originator of this idea putting his name to it. We all feel that we have been late in erecting statues to Froebel, let not Charlottetown miss the opportunity of doing justice to her great educationist. But, Mr. Editor, as guardians, in some sense of public morality, are not our School Board falling into the danger which opponents of the Scott Act attributed to that much-abused law? It was said that the Scott Act caused perjury, will not this ingenious card cause lying, or to put it more mildly, exaggeration? Take my own case. Little Joseph is, I fear, an unworthy namesake of the good youth of Biblical story. His mind is active, but not in the direction of study. When I received his lesson sheet it at once struck me that here was his chance to secure possibly a gold medal from the Board. He will sit for hours with his lesson before him. True, I sometimes discover stray sketches of his teacher, not always flattering, upon sundry scraps of paper, but he is always at work; and dare I say that it is not the effort or his brain to master his work that recalls his teacher's peculiarities? I am bound to certify to his full time. His lessons, I am sorry to say, are frequently imperfect but now that I certify to his diligence, I feel he is beyond reproach. Quantity, not quality of study, is the new departure. My little girl, Julia, is the opposite. She masters a lesson in a few minutes. Her name will go down in everlasting disgrace, unless I can persuade her to dawdle over her books. Perhaps I am mistaken altogether in the object of this new effort. Will the Board kindly explain what is aimed at? Is it the relative value of different studies as judged by the time required to master them? Will some good teacher kindly explain whether I am to credit Joseph's frantic efforts to master the clock under the head of "Time spent on arithmetic?" Should not the parent be asked to sign "To the best of my knowledge?"—I hesitate to say "believe" for I have not implicit faith in Joseph. Seriously, Mr. Editor, could not the Board spend money to better advantage than in such a retrograde movement, from an educational standpoint.

SCORPIONS LOST.—A special despatch from River John to THE EXAMINER announces the loss of the schrs. Vivian and Ceto on Sunday night on the north side of Cape John. The Vivian was owned by Captain Peters and Reynolds Harrington, of Sydney. She was 99 tons, and was built at Lunenburg in 1885. There was no insurance on her. The cargo of coal was for Cape Tormentine. The Ceto was built at Port Medway, N. S., in 1889, and was 95 tons. She was owned by Captain Weatherbie, and was valued at $2200. There was $1000 insurance on her. Her cargo of coal was for Peake Bros. & Co.

WITHIN REACH NOW.

On the first of November a change in the price of The Daily Globe, Toronto, was made, which should greatly increase its circulation.

In the announcement of the change it is stated that the great reduction in the price of paper and the introduction of the typesetting machines have made this possible, but, considering the great expense that will incur in their efforts to secure all the news everyday and the exceedingly full reports that they will give of all important events, $6 a year was not too much to pay. At $4 per year their circulation should soon reach the 50,000 mark, especially as all the departments, including their excellent Saturday illustrated edition, are to be kept up to their present high standard.
