Labor Minister Nicholson relaxes in his Parliament Hill room shortly after the Commons Thursday evening passed the final stage of a bill outlawing the Canada-wide rail strike which began last Friday. The bill was expected to become law the same day with fast passage by the Senate and then Royal Assent. (CP Wirephoto)

Labor President Deplores New Bill

"The strike-breaking bill, introduced by the Pearson government, is a coercive measure which is a credit neither to the government nor Canada," J. C. Carroll, president of the Prince Edward Island Federation of Labor said in a statement yesterday.

"Its main purpose," the Charlottetown man said, "is to force men, who thought they had the same freedom under existing Canadian laws as all other Canadians, back to work without the assurance that they will be justly treated. It must be remembered that the railway workers are engaged in a strike that is entirely legal."

"No Canadian citizen should be placed in a position whereby, when he is fulfilling his constitutional rights under one law, he will be breaking another."

"The purchasing power of the workers is being reduced daily, due to price increases, and they are denied, under the pretext of creating inflation, any chance to achieve parity."

"The propaganda machinery is endeavouring to make second class citizens out of railway workers in particular and all working class people in general."

"The trucking industry experienced a strike of some duration which proves a point. The Canadian Trucking Association Inc., has requested the Federal Government to place the operation of the Borden-Tormentine Ferries under the Dept. of Transport. If it is the wish of the Trucking Association to have these ferries operated by personnel that should not be allowed to strike: a pertinent question would be: How about the present personnel?"

Medical Society Holds Meeting

BATHURST, N.B. (CP) Canada is heading toward Medicare without enough medical manpower, the president of the Canadian Medical Association said Wednesday.

Speaking to the annual meeting of the New Brunswick Medical Society, Dr. R.K.C. Thomson of Edmonton, Alta., said the CMA has made its position on this problem clear.

"We had urged in our presentation to the Royal Commission on health services that it would be wiser to wait and build up our manpower before going into the financial side of Medicare," he said.

Dr. Thomson said the federal government is proposing the introduction of Medicare at a time when experience, research and understanding are necessary.

"Under such a program, we would not make the best use of our medical manpower. The simple reshuffling of available medical manpower in Canada will not be any solution to our problems of providing comprehensive medical care to all Canadians."

REMAINS INADEQUATE

While there had been an improvement in the ratio of doctors to population in Canada, the manpower supply remained inadequate to cope with the anticipated demands of Medicare, scheduled to be introduced July 1, 1967. The ratio of doctors to population has improved from 1 to 989 people in 1951 to one for every 825 estimated for 1965.

He said the improvement is due in large parts to an increase in the number of immigrant positions in Canada. In 1965 there was almost one immigrant doctor for every graduate of Canadian Medical Schools.

He said there has been an improvement in the doctor-population ratio in most provinces although New Brunswick and Newfoundland still remain the worst off. In Nova Scotia immigrant doctors were responsible for an improvement in the ratio.

Declaring there must be an increase in the number of medical graduates, he said it is estimated that Canada will require 23,000 doctors by 1971, 36,000 by 1981 and 45,000 by 1991. The CMA has launched a full-scale study to determine future medical manpower requirements in Canada.

ULTIMATE IN RELAXATION

It might be said Canada's railways offer the ultimate in relaxation these days, in that its probably more relaxing on a train when it isn't moving. The trouble is to find even a stall-train to sit in; none is in evidence along these tracks at Toronto's Sunnyside station, and the station platform lies deserted as the nation-wide rail strike enters its seventh day. (CP Wirephoto)
