

U.S. Officials Believe Mao Is Still Firmly In Power

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP) — Top U.S. officials believe that Communist party chairman, Mao Tse-tung, still is firmly in power in China. But they think the party itself is badly split and that discord involves some of the men closest to Mao.

New evidence irreconcilable divisions among the Peking rulers was found in the disclosure that Chinese leaders now are trying earnestly to put the brakes on the massive Red Guards movement before it is even a month old. They may be trying to halt it altogether.

The drive of the student groups forming has been seen here as a calculated move by Mao to purge the sprawling Communist party organization in mainland China of dissident elements. It has been identified recently with Mao and with Lin Piao, currently China's top military leader and strategist.

Despite this sponsorship, the Red Guards now have been told to suspend action in rural areas and avoid interfering with industrial production.

war they do not in fact want. The best top-level judgment in official quarters here now is that China has no current intention of getting into the Southeast Asian conflict as a belligerent.

MAO IS BOSS

Mao's role in the current crisis in China is considered by U.S. authorities to be that of supreme boss and mastermind. Despite his mysterious absence from Peking for several months last winter, an absence generally attributed to serious illness, U.S. authorities now believe Mao's mind is clear and capable even though his physical condition generally is not good.

Still some authorities are beginning to wonder whether he may be suffering with delusions of various kinds, chiefly because of his prolonged campaign to deify himself.

Another set of issues has centered around the Chinese Communist break with the Soviet Union and the loss of assistance in military supplies.

There has been dispute, too, over whether the Red Army should be primarily professional or primarily political. Some top generals have lost their jobs because they would not yield to "Mao's thought." But Lin Piao follows the Mao line completely, so far as the outside world knows.

Lin Piao emerged as No. 2 man only a few weeks ago in the midst of worldwide speculation about a struggle for power because of Mao's falling health. His position now appears to be entirely secure, but U.S. experts believe the power structure has been so badly shaken that new changes in top personnel could occur at any time and quickly.

Officials recalled here that such talk in China has been declining since early this year. Either Chinese leaders found it was not effective in helping them control their own people or that it was not deterring the U.S. from its Southeast Asian course.

Or perhaps they feared they would talk themselves into a

Cyprus Faces New Tension

NICOSIA (AP)—Tension has gripped Cyprus and United Nations peace force chiefs said here they are worried about deterioration of the situation on the island.

The village of Arso, 15 miles southeast of Nicosia, is the tensest spot. More than 300 Greek and 300 Turkish-Cypriot inhabitants exchanged gunfire around midnight Saturday night in what peace force sources described as "a pointless and hazardous outbreak of firing."

There were no casualties. Tension has been at the breaking point in Arso for 10 days, since the murder of a Turkish-Cypriot and a reprisal attack which killed one and wounded two other Greek-Cypriots.

The American team of Kenneth also of Gloucester, beat Steve Nickerson and David Swim of Clark's Harbor, N.S., by about 100 feet.

The time over the half-mile junior course was six minutes 48 seconds. The weather was ideal with a 15-mile-an-hour windblowing along the course.

The Americans have held the junior title since 1964. However, the senior crown has only left Canada hands three times since the races were started. Sonny Heisler and his brother Garnet lost to the American team in Gloucester last June 25. This was the first time since 1959 the Canadian seniors had relinquished the title.

WAS ORDERED BY MAO

The new high command line given in an editorial in the official Peking People's Daily could in fact mean an unexpectedly sudden end to the frantic experiment apparently ordered by Mao as he sought to infuse China's 700,000,000 people with a new revolutionary zeal.

So far the Chinese propaganda connected with what Peking calls a "cultural revolution" has been relatively free of the usual threats of war between China and the United States.

COUPLE WED IN MID-AIR

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Two aerialists exchanged marriage vows Saturday dangling on a ladder beneath a circling helicopter, hundreds of feet above the ground.

"As performers, we wanted to do something that nobody else had ever done," said Frank Clark, 36, speaking for himself and his bride, Ruthie Enford, both of Chicago.

The ceremony took place before thousands of spectators at the Western Fair, where the couple, billed professionally as Francarro and Estreleta, have been performing their mid-air acrobatics daily.

Rev. Jonas Shepherd, a local Presbyterian minister, who had agreed to conduct the service, said prior to the ceremony:

"I think they're very sincere. I wish every couple I talked to before marriage had as good an attitude."

The couple, fitted with earphones to hear the minister's words, used a microphone for their responses which were heard in the grandstand and throughout western Ontario on a radio hook-up.

The rings for the double-ring ceremony were attached to their wrists by a thin string.
