No Decisions On Nomination To Civic Office

The announcement on Friday by Mayor Henry W. Wedge of his intention to retire from civic politics has resulted in rumors that several prominent Summerside citizens may possibly be candidates in the mayoralty contest netx month.

Names rumored include retiring Councillor W. E. Jenkins, Councillor H. E. Clark, W. A. Currie and W. R. Tinney and no doubt other names will be forthcoming before Nomination Day arrives. These men stated they have made no definite decision as yet on whether they will seek the office of mayor, but Councillor Jenkins said he will definitely be a candidate for civic office, meaning, that if he did not run for mayor, he will seek re-election to the council.

Both Councillor Jenkins and Councillor Clark expressed keen disappointment on Mayor Wedge's decision to retire.

Mr. Tinney said a number of people have approached him asking him to offer as candidate for mayor or councillor but stated he hasn't decided yet whether to seek election to either office.

Mr. Currie said he also had been asked to contest the mayoralty office but had come to to decision.

The name of Geo. Key, Sr. has been rumored as a possible candidate for councillor to contest the East Ward.

The other two retiring councillors, J. L. MacDougall and Clarence Steel have indicated they will seek re-election to the Council. Councillor MacDougall, chairman of the police, fire and abattoir committees has been on the council for two terms and Councillor Steele, chairman of the parks and schools committee has served three terms.

WINTERTIME

concensus of wintertime construction owners and designers in even the toughest areas of this 'tough country'.

"Every man directly concerned in construction — project owner, architect and engineer, general and trade contractor, material and equipment supplier, and all and each of their employees in field, plant or office—is hurt by the springtime crowding of construction starts. Every man in that group owes it to himself and to the construction industry to help 'sell' and push the idea of wintertime construction.

"Everyone — even Canadians generally—is hurt by the springtime crowding of construction starts.

"In the Canada of today, this is an unrealistic, largely emotional and mainly indefensible following of outworn tradition. It is without justification in the new annals of Canadian construction performance against weather difficulties.

NEW COMMITTEE

"A co-ordinated campaign to increase further the volume of wintertime construction — and of wintertime construction employment—was put into motion last October when a joint committee was set up representing leading national organizations of employers, labour unions and the architectural and engineering professions.

"Sponsored by the Canadian Construction Association, the joint committee also represents the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, the Canadian & Catholic Confederation of Labour, Canadian Manufacturers' Association, The Engineering Institute of Canada, National House Builders' Association, The Royal Architectural Institute of Canada, and the Trades & Labour Congress of Canada. The Federal Department of Labour and National Research Council are also actively associated with the project.

"As chairman of this new committee, it is my hope that our main task will prove fairly easy in fulfilment. That main task is to overcome the outmoded notions, still held by many in business and industry management, that construction work carried out in wintertime is inferior in quality or excessive in cost.

"Such views do not take into account the modern techniques which, with few exceptions, permit construction work to be carried out efficiently and economically in winter weather in most parts of Canada.

OWNER IS BOSS

"The timing of construction jobs depends mainly on the advance decisions of owners, and on the advice and advance action of the architects and engineers they engage.

"Last fall's federal cabinet directive to all federal departments and agencies to plan maximum wintertime on-site operation is commendable policy and already being implemented for this winter. Our committee immediately began advocating similar policy in approaches — so far very encouraging — to other government bodies, banks, religious organizations, utilities and large industrial firms. And it is hoped that individual borrowers under NHA new housing and home improvement lending provisions also will be encouraged to have their work done during the winter.

"Other activities approved by the joint committee in its campaign for levelling out the construction program during each year include: (1) The preparation of a booklet describing wintertime construction techniques; (2) A study of methods followed in Scandinavia in making construction a 'year-round' activity; (3) The establishment of local joint committees to promote wintertime construction in their areas; (4) A comprehensive publicity and education program by each of the member organizations of the National Joint Committee."

TIMELY NOTES ON FUR FARMING

Following is a brief account of the special mink auction of the Canadian Fur Auction Sales Co. (Qeubec) Ltd. held in Montreal January 9th. Silverblues and small collection of whites were the best selling items. High shipper' limits on other varieties prevented clearances above the 60 per cent mark. Over-all picture of the market, however, indicates a continued good demand for better quality types. Prices across the board were firm and, as in the case of Cerulean, slightly higher compared to the previous sale. The official report runs as follows: Majestic dark 50 per cent sold, fair demand, better qualities in good demand; ranched standards 50 per cent sold, firm. Autumn Haze, 45 per cent sold; fair demand; pastels, 55 per cent; fair demand, unchanged. Cerulea 60 per cent sold; good demand, better varieties in strong demand at firm to slightly higher prices; sapphires 55 per cent, very firm with good demand. Lutetia and gunmetal, 58 per cent sold; small collection, fair demand, unchanged. Whites, 70 per cent; small collection, fair demand, unchanged. Argenta, 70 per cent; good demand, firm; silverblues, 67 per cent; good demand, also firm. Miscellaneous mutations, 50 per cent, fair demand unchanged.

In the Argenta collection of Canada Mink Breeders (3,325 skins) males were $21 to $37, white females ranged between $12 to $19. Breath-of-Spring males sold between $24.60 and $36 and stewarts $24. Top price in Majestic standards (9,304 skins) was $37.50 for XDK males, and $19.50 for females. Highest price in Autumn Haze (5,322 skins) was $39.50 and in females $22, while top in the independent pastel offering (2,414 skins) was $33 and $17.25 selectively. Cerulean (2,766 skins) males sold $36.50 to $54 and females $20 to $28.50. Highest lot among independent male sapphires went at $50 and females $25.50. A small collection of Lutetia reached a ceiling of $56.50 whole independent gunmetal males were $36. to $43.50.

NEW YORK SALE

In New York last week EMBA mink sale at Hudson's Bay Company was a great success principally because of the buyers interest in Argenta types which sent price levels 10 per cent over those established in December. The Argentas not only climbed in price but turned over at a brisk pace, 94 per cent of the standards, 93 per cent of the stewarts and 86 per cent of the breath of springs selling. The official auction comment is as follows: Over-all results were excellent considering the large quantities offered and in view of continued interest and very active competition.

At the Hudson's Bay sale in London, Jan. 12, wild mink declined 10 per cent from December, 1954 levels. About 50 per cent of the entire mink catalogue was sold. Practically all goods went to Europe. A few hundred commercial skins went to the United States but prices in general discouraged New York interest. In the Anning, Chadwick and Klever sale following H. B. C. Norwegian standard ranch mink was 100 per cent sold at slightly easier prices. Russian standard ranch mink was 15 per cent sold with the auction house noting strong interest but limits above buyers' ideas. The auction house quotes fox selling as follows: white fox 15 per cent sold, where sold unchanged from October levels. Blue fox 100 per cent sold. Sold well. Silver fox mostly withdrawn. Platina and pearl platina with drawn. HBC wild mink LS 1 and 11 dk and dk XL $45.08; LS and Can 1 and 11 Xdk and dk XL $43.48. MR East 1 and 11 Xdk and dk $19.60.

NORWAY FUR SALES

A despatch from Oslo, Norway, January 12, states the January fur sales concluded January 12 with the sale of silverblue and sapphire mink. A total of 13,000 silverblues were offered with males of 85 per cent sold at an average of $24.08 and a top of $32.90. The quality of the collection was described as not quite up to the standard as that offered in December. All of the 2,000 sapphires offered were sold with males averaging $40.64 and reaching a top of $51. The top for females was $28. In both silverblue and sapphire sales the buyers for better strings came from Germany and France and for the cheaper goods from the United States.

A move is under way to have the National Retail Dry Goods Association of the United States plan the installment merchandising of fur garments in combination with other apprel. A combination of the complete fur ensemble and the credit selling approach, it is felt, could well pry loose the dollars from the nation's consumers, and could build volume for retail stores. Advocates of the ensemble-credit theory believe that progressive retailers could reap a windfall by taking a promotional step built on two trends likely to gain momentum in 1956 and the years ahead. The sales is coming slowly, some feel. What it needs is a push by leading retailers. Most appealing to some observers is the idea of extending consumer credit on a coordinated apparel package.

FURS ON CREDIT

Most retailers at present are willing to apply instalment merchandising to big ticket items. And furs are probably the major apparel merchandise sold on current credit plans. The vast bulk of apparel is not sold under extended payment plans other than charge accounts. By focusing attention on easy-payment plans for coordinated apparel packages, it is believed the consumer's desire to buy more freely may be stimulated. The originality of the package approach itself is such as to attract widespread consumer attention, it is felt.

At the Dominion Fur Auction held in Winnipeg last week the 100,000 muskrats were 90 per cent sold. XL and L winters went from $1.30 to $1.40. Beaver was 99 per cent sold with Northern Manitoba's XXL's bringing $32 to $33. All of the 3,500 wild mink was sold. Northern Manitoba's lsts No. 2's males $50 to $53, females, $26 to $29.50; 100 otter were sold with darks bringing $50 to $54 and all of the 100 fisher sold were fine, dark, small bringing $72 to $110.

Final report of the Hudson's Bay Company's sale in London has the following: Standard ranch mink XX dk and dk males $28.56, females $13.20; XXdk males $28, females $13.20; mutations and pastel males $33.40, females $18.60; silverblue males $30, females $18.60; silverblue breath of spring $29.40, females $21.

IS TELEVISION STRAINING YOUR EYES?

by PEGGY LIDSTONE
Home Lighting Specialist

It's a mistake to think that you see TV best in a darkened room. A well balanced amount of light throughout the room provides good seeing conditions for television. Long viewing in too great a contrast of light can cause headaches and eyestrain.

You'll get the best effect from indirect or shielded lighting—or from floor or table lamps placed so that no direct rays of light fall on the television screen and reflect back into your eyes. A quick check with a small mirror placed against the screen and moved from left to right and up and down will reveal any such reflections. These can be quickly corrected by either adjusting the lamps or changing your viewing position.

If you want further information on modern lighting tips write to me, Peggy Lidstone c/o Lighting Institute, Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., 163 Dufferin Street, Toronto, and I will send you FREE a 16 page illustrated booklet "How to Light Condition Your New Home."

Once you have a G-E Red Bowl Heat Lamp in your house, you'll wonder how on earth you ever managed without one! You'll use it constantly to heat up chilly bathrooms . . . soothe muscular aches, pains or sinus trouble . . . to dry hair or personal laundry. And watch Dad use this handy bulb to speed up drying of paint or photographic negatives, supply heat for the garage or cellar workroom. This wonderful household help lasts 6000 hours—yet costs only $3.70. See what luxury a G-E Red Bowl Heat Lamp brings to your home! It fits any standard light socket.
