Alberton and Vicinity
Mr. D. B. Nicholson left on June 23rd to attend the annual convention of pharmacists of which he is president.

Miss Rita Ahearn of the teaching staff of Summerside School has arrived at her home in Alberton.

The Misses Ann Profit and Colleen O'Brien, Alberton, are visiting relatives in New York and other American cities.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Green and little daughter have arrived by air from London, England, for two weeks' visit at the home of her mother and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Leard, Alberton.

An educational paper, "Every Child Has A Gift" was read by Mrs. Ralph Fraser of Montrose Institute. The fact that each child does have some distinctive gift or talent was stressed, also the need to discover it, stimulate it, and encourage its development.

Mrs. Nell Matheson, convener of agriculture, was welcomed as the first guest speaker. She made brief but enlightening comments on Associated Country Women of the World, Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, Tweedsmuir competitions, Canadian Association of Consumers, and the need for re-organizing the constitutional set-up of Institutes.

She also spoke of soil conservation in which women may take the first step in their own gardens.

A sing-song, led by Mrs. Manning with Mrs. C. W. Hayes at the piano, made a pleasant interlude.

Miss Barbara Smith gave a brief, informative talk on the work being done by the Dept. of Health through its sanitary engineering division.

Mrs. Malcolm MacLeod's presence at the convention was an unexpected pleasure. Her ability and vision personality, her ability and vision make her a most welcome speaker on any occasion.

In the few minutes at her disposal she gave a message to be remembered. Its substance was that while the A.C.W. cannot prevent war, it can promote world peace. As women from many countries meet together, they become friendly, come to understand one another's problems and way of life, and find that in the really vital things there is little that separates them. Women the world over are more alike than unlike.

Mrs. Manning also made good use of her time as she dispensed information on Institute work and services and concluded with a most interesting and stimulating demonstration of home dressmaking. Plans for next year's convention were announced by the president and the delegates adjourned to meet again at 8 P.M.

During the supper hour, "The Inner Woman" was fortified by quantities of good things furnished by ladies of Alma, Brooklyn, Fort-une Cove and Mill River Institutes.

Opportunity was given, too, to view the handiwork display which included woodwork, leathercraft, shellwork, pottery, hooking, quilting, embroidery, crocheting, tatting and many other interesting and beautiful articles. Of rare interest were a pair of beautiful mittens from Labrador and, from the other side of the world, a beautiful set of pyjamas, kimono and slippers from Korea.

KEEPING BUSY
MISSENDEN, England - (CP) - Mrs. Clement Atlee, wife of the former Labor Prime Minister, now has a spare-time job in a food office in this Buckinghamshire town. She said "I volunteered with others to keep the office open. Otherwise people would have had to go to Amerham, five miles away.

REPORTS PRESENTED
Reports of Institutes work in the district covered a wide range of useful activities, much of it in aid of local schools. One could not but be impressed by the degree to which schools must benefit from the interest of Institutes. Schools houses have been provided with large amounts of equipment and numbers of prizes and treats have been given to the pupils. One Institute remembered the teacher with a gift at the end of the school year.

General Institutes have participated in home nursing and first aid courses, in various Red Cross activities, in giving assistance with hot lunch programs, etc. All have contributed gifts to a large number of commendable charitable organizations. Sick and shut-in folk have been remembered.

One Institute sponsors Boy Scouts and Cubs, has been instrumental in making preparation for the annual Red Cross blood donor annual Red Cross courses in swimming and water safety, and is responsible for having a Red Cross loan cupboard in the area.

Money for all the good work done by Institutes has been raised in a variety of ways. A number of (and sometimes their husbands) to well merited turkey dinners. Mrs. Russell Leard of Fortune Cove, Mrs. Charles Johnston of Brooklyn and Mrs. Erskine Clark of Dock were appointed to the resolutions and courtesy committee.

Mrs. A.C. Green, Red Cross convener of Alberton Institute drew attention to the Red Cross loan cupboard from which anyone may borrow equipment for home care of the sick, and to the Red Cross blood donor clinic which is held in Alberton on August 8th from 2-4 p.m. She asked each Institute to appoint one or more members to make a person to person canvass for donors in their own district in an effort to attain the goal of one hundred donors.

S'side Concern Doubles Hospital Fund Donation

At the opening dinner last evening tendered to the Prince County Hospital Fund workers, it was announced by Mr. Donald Baker that the original decision to donate the sum of $2,000 by the firm of Simmons and MacFarlane had been voluntarily increased yesterday to $4,000.

S'side Cadet One Of 50 To Take Special Course

Air Cadet League headquarters yesterday released the names of 50 outstanding air cadets who will attend a seven weeks' technical training course at R. C. A. F. Station, Trenton, commencing on July 7th. The lads were chosen on a merits basis from air cadet squadrons in all parts of the country.

Representing Prince Edward Island will be Air Cadet J. H. Gallant of No. 53 Squadron, Summerside, the squadron which is sponsored by the Summerside wing of the R. C. A. F. Association. This squadron was the winner again this year of the Group Captain Lewis trophy for proficiency. Purpose of the special course is to stimulate a greater interest among air cadets in the ground crew aspects of aviation.

It will also provide advance training for senior cadets, who, for medical reasons, are unable to qualify for R. C. A. F. flying scholarships. Successful graduates of the course will receive a bonus of $100 for their seven weeks' work.

While at Trenton the cadets will undergo "service familiarization" training and will also study the various technical trades required to keep airforce aircraft in operation.

A series of visits to aircraft manufacturing plants and other points of interest is also being arranged.

Prof. Latherin To Speak At Borden
Mr. Norman MacLeod, secretary of the Prince County Fish and Game Association said yesterday that arrangements had been made with professor Tom Lotherin, professor of biology at Prince of Wales College to address the members of the association at their regular meeting tonight in Borden.

Professor Lotherin has been secured by the Provincial Department of Industry and Natural Resources to do research work this year in matters relating to trout angling and upland game birds. He has had extensive experience in this work and has addressed many Fish and Game Associations on wildlife.

RCAF Benevolent Fund Manager Visits S'side
Air Commodore D. E. MacKell, C.B.E., of Ottawa, manager of the R.C.A.F. Benevolent Fund, arrived at R.C.A.F. station, Summerside on a goodwill tour of Island branches at their regular meeting tonight in Borden.

Air Commodore MacKell, who spends six weeks each year visiting the far flung branches of the Benevolent Fund, will be in Charlottetown today to visit the provincial chairman and the committee established in that city.

He is a family man and with his wife, resides in Ottawa. They have two children—a son, Peter, a lawyer in Montreal, who formerly served with the navy; and daughter, Sally, who graduated this month from the Ottawa Civic Hospital, and who is now nursing in Ottawa.

He is the only man to date who has enlisted in the ranks of the R.C.A.F. and risen to the rank of air commodore.

In World War I he served in the artillery, and with a twinkle in his eye, claims to have gone overseas as a corporal and returned as a private.

He is thoroughly conversant with the misfortunes and tragedies that can befall members and ex-members of the R. C. A. F., having been associated with the personnel branch which is responsible for solving the multifarious problems that arise both in peace and war.

In an interview with a Guardian representative yesterday afternoon Air Commodore MacKell gave a most interesting review of the work done by the R.C.A.F. Benevolent Fund of which he is manager.

He described the fund as an independent non-share, non-profit company, and pointed out that it was not a government agency. He said the fund had existed for many years, and in 1944 became incorporated.

The aims and objectives of the company is to assist by financial and other means, R.C.A.F. veterans, serving personnel and dependents of R.C.A.F. personnel who may have encountered hardship or who may be in distress.

A small organization exists in Ottawa, and are assisted in their work by some 160 committees in every part of Canada to look after the veterans and their dependants.

At each one of the regular R. C. A. F. stations there is a committee composed of officers and others to take care of the needs of the serving personnel.

On R. C. A. F. station Summerside, this committee consists of Padres Fee and O'Hanley, of C. A.D. O., S/L Piroth, and Accountant Officer F/L Lief.

In Summerside the committee consists of Dr. Simpson, chairman, and J. Hubert Hall, secretary.

In addition there is a chairman in every province, and in Prince Edward Island he is H. C. Bourke, Charlottetown, who is responsible for organizing the province into various sub-committees.

S'side Nursing Sister Is Mountain Climber

Climbing a chimney forms part of the mountain climbing instruction given R. C. A. F. para-rescue students. Crevices in the hard rock faces of sheer mountain cliffs are negotiated by inching upwards using feet and back. Shown roped together as they ascend Morrow Peak at Jasper National Park are medical assistant Corporal D. Nivins, Goderich, Ont. (bottom), Nursing Sister Flying Officer E. K. W. Hampson, Summerside, P. E. I., and Squadron Leader (doctor) K. W. Hampson, Sanford, Man. (top).

140 Attend Hospital Fund Dinner At S'side
Last evening in the Summerside Baptist Hall, 140 volunteer workers for the $25,000 Prince County Hospital completion fund attended a splendid banquet served by the Baptist Ladies' Guild and signified their willingness to support to the limit the public campaign which opens today and closes on July 17th.

The objective of the four areas of the $25,000 Prince County Hospital completion fund attended a splendid banquet served by the Baptist Ladies' Guild and signified their willingness to support to the limit the public campaign which opens today and closes on July 17th.

The balance of the amount is expected to be realized from the doctors' subscriptions and those of the special gift committee.

Mr. William A. Currie, chairman of the Summerside area presided and said how much he appreciated the amazing turnout of the workers from the outside section. He said he believed that this carefully chosen group would carry the project through to success.

A civic welcome was extended by Acting Mayor T. D. Morrison, who wished the campaign every success.

In the absence of Mr. J. F. Arnett, chairman of the Board of Trustees who is ill in the hospital, Mr. Donald Baker delivered the president's message which reviewed the history of the hospital from the time it was opened forty years ago down to the present day.

Mr. Arnett's message expressed confidence that the objective would not only be reached but over-subscribed and he advised the workers to impress on the public that "It is not only a privilege but a duty to give to your own Prince County Hospital Completion Fund."

At the conclusion of the message spontaneous applause broke forth all present in appreciation of Mr. Arnett's courage in carrying on his duties even from his sick bed and a message of gratitude was conveyed to him from the gathering to his room in the hospital.

Mr. Baker then went on to narrate the outline of the building plans and the absolute need for the erection of a training school and home for nurses. "If we are going to compete with other centres," he said, "we must provide suitable quarters for these nurses and facilities for them to carry on their high calling."

The chairman of the various areas spoke briefly and each expressed confidence that the work would be carried to a successful conclusion in his area.

WOMEN IN LEAD
For the first time in history the United States now has more women than men, about 100 women to 99 men.

longest list of the Korean war, reporting 46 casualties—six killed, 38 wounded, and two injured in action. (There were no Prince Edward Island names on the list.)

Fishermen Concerned Over New Moss Gathering Method

Lobster fishermen at Miminegash are concerned as to what effect the Ran-A-Tan, a specially equipped launch for the harvesting of Irish moss will have on the fishing grounds in the area. They are apprehensive of the opinion that the equipment used by the boat will make a clean sweep of the Irish Moss with resultant poorer fishing. The launch is now at Miminegash preparing to commence operations shortly, with Mr. John P. Smith of Weymouth in charge.

Mr. Smith has had considerable experience in this way of gathering moss, having supervised operations of a similar vessel in the eastern United States for some years. He states that the fishing will not be damaged in any way.

The power sled which is drawn over the sea floor cuts the moss at one inch from the bottom which allows it to continue growing. He also mentioned that lobsters are just as plentiful in areas where there is no Irish moss at all, and therefore the harvesting of the larger tonnage which is expected with his equipment could not possibly effect fishing of any kind.

Chosen To Represent PEI In Cadet "Exchange Visit"

It was announced yesterday by Air Cadet League headquarters that Air Cadet Kenneth Perry of No. 53 Squadron, has been selected as the cadet who will this year represent Prince Edward Island on the annual "exchange visits" trips to the United States, United Kingdom and Western Europe this summer.

The selection has been made after months of careful screening and the cadets are selected on the basis of individual merit from squadrons from all parts of Canada.

The lucky 59 will represent Canada's 18,000 air cadets in the latest "exchange visit" scheme. He will represent the Air Cadets League and the R. C. A. F. During the month of August, 26 of the chosen cadets will make an exciting tour of the United States with stopovers in New York, Washington and Florida.

Another 25 cadets will tour the British Isles and two cadets each will visit Norway, Sweden, Holland and Denmark.

While on tour the youthful goodwill ambassadors will visit advanced flying stations, aircraft manufacturing plants and other centers of aeronautical interest in the host countries. They will mingle freely with other youths of their own ages at dances, parties, and informal receptions planned in their honor. At several points on each tour they will enjoy the hospitality of private homes.

While the Canadian cadets are spanning continents, the Air Cadet League and R. C. A. F. will entertain reciprocal groups of British and American Cadets as well as eight special young guests representing the air minded youth of Norway, Sweden, Holland and Denmark.

The Canadian exchange cadets were selected because of their outstanding air cadet records, with scholastic attainments, athletics and character also being considered.

Ring Reminiscences
which was thirteen miles on this side of Dawson — a total distance of 317 miles.

We had to lay up for a half day enroute at a road house on account of my strained knee joint. If there are any weak spots in one's anatomy, the long trail will show them up. Travelling by White Pass stage was surely "de luxe" transportation. The big sleighs weren't covered but the passengers were well supplied with fur coats and charcoal salamander foot warmers. There are many ways to beat the northern low temperatures.

The driver of a six horse team stage was a "personage". He generally felt his own importance too. Drivers of six horse teams announced their high status in the "mule skinning" profession by taking three rolls in the legs of their horses — for all the world to see. They seemed to have a sublime indifference to the welfare of mules on the trail. They went along about a ten mile an hour jog and musers had to hop out of the way quickly or be knocked down and run over.

One day a driver went very close to me at a good fast clip. I kept out of the way just enough not to be struck and to see if he would make an effort to give part of the road. He cantered by, apparently totally oblivious to any peril that I made a mental resolution, (as John Macdonald of Boularderie C.B. said "I made a swore") that the driver who disregarded the amenities of the road, I would haul his nose to the ringbolt so to speak.

The next, Jehu, was no better than the other. I made a grab for the rein of the leading horse on the high side and brought the whole caravan to a quick stop. Perhaps it was a case of "fools rush in where angels fear to tread", but I was quite confident of the ability to stop them. I had caught two runaway horses when cutting a track on Park Avenue, New York City, during the winter of 1904-1905. The suddenness of it all seemed to paralyze the driver. He was speechless.

The passengers in the stage were too far back for me to see their reaction. If there had been some "quick trigger" miners from California or Nevada aboard, I would have been in a bad position. They were all speechless. They thought it was a genuine "hold up". When I said to the driver, "How much of this road do you think you own?" I could see his chest heave with a sigh of relief. I then proceeded to give him a lecture and admonishment on the prior rights of pedestrians on the King's highway. I think it must have gone "over his head".

Following Other Countries
"For these and other reasons, following the example of other free countries like the United Kingdom and France, the Government proposes to take no action at this time against Dr. Endicott for his public support of the Communist Party line in the allegations, such as the libellous and false assertion that the United States, operating as part of the U.N. forces in Korea, is waging germ warfare.

Each of Dr. Endicott's statements and each act of publication or distribution of these pamphlets is a separate episode in the operation of the tools of the Communist Party in Canada. The fact that the Government does not think that it is upon balance wise to prosecute for these acts now does not mean, of course that Dr. Endicott and the publishers are being absolved from responsibility for their acts. Each of these acts has been noted and if the time should come when it seemed wise to prosecute, each of them will be taken into account."

British Foreign Office Employee To Stand Trial
LONDON, June 26 - (Reuters) - A picture of a shy, young man whose sympathies drifted to Russia because he felt the was a "mistake" among his own people was sketched by the prosecution today when William Marshall, 24, was charged with betraying his country's secrets.

Marshall, a former radio operator in the British Foreign Office, denied the charges, but a magistrate committed him for trial by higher court in a few weeks' time. It promised to be Britain's biggest trial since Klaus Fuchs was sentenced to 14 years for giving atom secrets to the Russians.

The public was given no hint of the information that Marshall is alleged to have passed to Pavel Kuznetsov, second secretary at the Russian Embassy, at a series of futile meetings in the London suburbs.
