Opening lead—three of diamonds. The final contract was not quite as good as the preferable six no trump contract. For practical purposes, though, six spades was a sound contract which figures to be beaten about every February 29th. South won the opening diamond lead with the ace and led a low spade to dummy's queen, the finest winning. He then played the ace of spades. East showing out, and leap year was upon him. West has two invincible trump tricks and the final slam contract turned out to be invincible. Declarer promptly berated himself for having failed to make a trump safety play by leading the

BEDTIME STORIES

Trouble In A Red Coat

To stir up trouble some folks hadn't been over there before because he had been very busy collecting pine cones from which later he would get the seeds. Now he was on hand to get some of those hickory nuts.

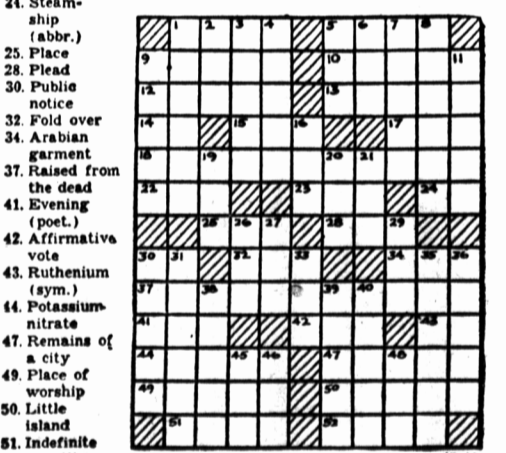

Chatterer is a trouble-maker. He would seem that he never is happier than when he is making a nuisance of himself. He loves to interfere with others, to scream at them and call them names and make things as unpleasant for them as he can. Right away he started doing this as soon as he arrived at the big hickory tree.

It had been a quiet place over there until he arrived. Not it was a noisy place. It seemed as if that tongue of his was never still. He even tried to scold when he had a nut in his mouth. He was impatient. He tried to drive the other two away so that he might have all the remaining nuts for himself. Whenever he saw one of the others climbing up in the big hickory tree to get certain nuts that had not yet fallen, he would race over there and claim that those were his. "Those are mine!" he would shriek. "You have your share already. You were here before I
