Montague Legion Ladies Auxiliary

Mrs. Archie Hildey was hostess to the members of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion, Montague branch, at the regular meeting Monday evening. The president, Mrs. Hildey, presided, and the meeting opened with the members observing a one-minute silence. Roll call was answered by thirteen members. One new member, Mrs. McAulay, Brudenell, was welcomed by the president. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Charles Aitken, and were approved as read. The financial report was read by the treasurer, Mrs. Thomas Clair. Mrs. Clair also reported on the success of the card party which was held in March. Plans were discussed for holding a second card party next week and several committees were appointed to attend to the details. Mrs. Clair and Mrs. Aitken were appointed on a committee to see about having some renovations made in the kitchen. Tentative plans were discussed for having a banquet in May, arrangements for which were finalized at the April meeting. On behalf of the Auxiliary, Mrs. Aitken presented Mrs. Byron Stewart with a past president's jewel and pin, as a token of appreciation for her work as president of the Auxiliary in 1953.

At the close of the meeting, lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Margaret MacKinnon and Miss Mary Hemphill. Increased efforts and interest until the lines are run. It is pleasing to note that the condition of Mrs. Lester Gunn of Savage Harbour, is reported as quite satisfactory. Mrs. Gunn underwent an operation at the Charlottetown Hospital during the week.

Mr. Jack Murphy, well known painter and interior decorator of Georgetown, is engaged in painting the interior of the Parochial House at St. Andrews.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm MacLeod of Lorne Valley, were among those attending the educational meeting at St. Andrew's Hall, Mt. Stewart on Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. MacLeod one of the Island's best known couples have many friends in this area who were delighted to have them visit among them.

Miss Margaret Cavanaugh of New Haven, is enjoying a pleasant holiday at St. Andrews, where she is the guest of her sister, Miss Ann Cavanaugh.

Farmers at the moment are busily engaged in hauling home their summer's supply of wood. Ordinarily this work would have been completed before this but severe storms interfered. Mr. Joseph MacKay has his supply home and others will finish this week.

Fair crowds attended the interesting and instructive meetings held in St. Andrews Theatre, Mt. Stewart, on Thursday afternoon and evening, sponsored by the Department of Education. Mr. Bramwell Chandler, M.A., B.L.S., Superintendent of Libraries and Director of Adult Education, was the capable and efficient chairman at both meetings. The afternoon session was devoted mainly to the annual district school meeting and how such meetings should be conducted. Demonstrations of a poorly conducted meeting as well as that of a well conducted one were effective and did more to enlighten the listeners than would have been accomplished by hours of lecturing. The night session opened with the showing of films after which the assembly was divided into groups for the discussion of different problems. Arguments waxed strong and severe before the close as all present were not satisfied that all is well with our educational system. Those meetings are a good thing and the only fault appears to be that they do not receive the advance publicity that their usefulness seems to warrant. Among those attending from the city were Dr. L. W. Shaw, Messrs. Edward MacPhail, Gordon Rice, John Martin and MacInnis.

Mr. Lester Gunn of Savage Harbour, was a visitor to Charlottetown on Sunday, where he visited Mrs. Gunn who is a patient in the Charlottetown Hospital.

Mr. Allen Doyle of St. Andrews, was among the many attending the Ranger-Islanders hockey game on Saturday night.

By Alan Harvey Canadian Press Staff Writer LONDON. (CP)—L'Abbe Pierre, the man who stirred a country's conscience, came to London today and told of plans to push his crusade beyond the frontiers of France—into the shanty towns of North Africa and Algeria. The Franciscan Friar, who now lends money to the French government from the proceeds of his rag-collecting drives, told a press conference he hopes his first group of chifferons—rag-pickers will go out to North Africa in June. "Our work is universal, and infinite," he said. L'Abbe Pierre, real name Henri Groues, is a small man with burning dark eyes, a full black beard and a considerable capacity for indignation. He became a national figure overnight in France during the cold spell of January and February when his appeals for the homeless sent a wave of emotion through the country. "I am the flea whose bite starts the blood circulating," the friar proclaimed—and became the new national saint of France, often compared with St. Vincent de Paul, who worked for the poor.

At press conference, L'Abbe Pierre—looking tired, and much older than his 42 years—pledged that his work will go on. He said he believes it is his duty to "put a spotlight on suffering," to act as the link between the sufferers and those who know that suffering exists but prefer, consciously or unconsciously, to try to suppress or still it. Speaking in French, he added that the problems of modern societies can be solved only "by groups of men prepared to share the suffering and so bring it to light." Asked to differentiate between his own work and that of the French worker priests whose activities were recently restricted by the Roman Catholic church, L'Abbe Pierre said one big difference is that the worker priests are or were wage earners, whereas his group is unsalaried. In reply to a further question, he said he has received a number of letters from would-be supporters in Canada, including promises of money. The friar comes from a wealthy family in Lyons. He gave up the family money to enter the Capuchin order and during the Second World War became a hero of the resistance, running a vicarage in Grenoble which was a centre for false identity cards. He was twice captured and twice escaped.

Aid After Broadcast The work of the friar and his rag-pickers, who now make about $5,600 a month from salvaging and selling art objects at the famous flea market in Paris, was little known until the cold wave this winter. One night the friar went out the air to describe how the body of a woman clutching an eviction order in her hand had been found in the street in the Latin quarter. Soon promises of help were flooding in.

L'Abbe Pierre lives in Neuilly-Plaisance, a slum section of the eastern fringes of Paris, and shares his quarters with homeless families. Tent, rabbit hutch and caravans have been used to shelter people. It is estimated the friar's growing organization has collected some $120,000 in public contributions, some of which is being used to build houses and some of which will be loaned to the government for the same purpose.

Credit is always given here when due and credit is surely due the operator of the snow plough here, when a man suffers a severe heart attack on the way to work that he had not opened to traffic. When we call went through for the doctor the phone operator here also contacted the snow plough operator who in turn headed for the sick man's house, opening the road for the doctor right to the door. No doubt is felt here that the fast action of all those who co-operated in getting the doctor to the sick man in a matter of minutes saved his life and credit is due to them all and especially the operator of the plough for a splendid act.

The good Father who is considered one of Canada's outstanding preachers delivers a daily sermon following mass every morning. Father Sinnott's old home is in this vicinity.

Mr. Herb Trainor received word over the week-end of the passing of his brother, Jack in Worcester, Mass., last week. Jack Trainor was one of the seven sons of the late Tom and Mrs. Trainor of this vicinity and spent most of his life in the U.S.A. His wife was the former Miss Gillian of Peakes station. The older class recall Jack Trainor, but to the younger generation he was a stranger. The sympathy of this vicinity is extended to his relatives at this time.

Mr. P. R. Sinnott was in the city on Friday on business. A contractor and builder Mr. Sinnott, like many other carpenters, has been idle all winter and very little in sight as yet for the spring season.

Despite all the mild weather that has stripped the ice from the ponds and rivers, there is still a heavy coat of ice on the entire bay and fishermen who are thinking of getting their boats out daily for a break-up of course there is still plenty of sea ice along the shore yet and the season may not start as early as expected.

Bristol's outstanding fisherman Mr. H. L. Arnold will be missed from the shore line this spring as he was always first and last at the shore and very successful and that Mr. Arnold has answered the last call since last season.

OTTAWA. (CP) - Agriculture Minister Gardiner suggests that if farmers want cash for some of Canada's surplus grain they should feed it to livestock and sell the livestock. "Farmers can and will obtain cash for some of it by feeding it to livestock," he said in a speech prepared for delivery on the CBC's free-time political series, "The Nation's Business."

Mr. Gardiner touched on farming problems and what the future may bring to guide farmers now preparing plans for spring seeding. He estimated that though his department will have $0,000,000 pounds of unsold butter—the high price support history—at the end of the butter year April 30, this would not be a surplus.

The government would carry the 30,000,000 pounds into the 1954-55 butter year starting May 1. As a price-support measure, the government buys butter at 58 cents a pound wholesale and sells it at a regulated price during the winter months.

"If we let the quantity in our possession get below about 25,000,000 pounds, we have trouble holding the price down," Mr. Gardiner said.

Potatoes Surplus He also said: 1. Canada has had difficulty in marketing surplus table potatoes this year, chiefly because attempts have been made to sell many of them in the U. S. which has a surplus.

2. There also has been difficulty in selling onions, mainly because some provinces increased production last year.

3. All these difficulties emphasized the need for farmers who produce certain farm items for local markets to continue producing for these local areas and not try to produce for outside areas to cut down marketing difficulties.

4. Britain, which once took 70 per cent of Canada's cheese production, now only takes an "insignificant portion." Mr. Gardiner said Britain will take more only if it can be had at less than cost of production in Canada.
