CONTINUED.

For the second time was the admiral punched and tapped and listened to. This time, however, there could be no question of the qualifications of the doctor, a well known fellow of the College of Surgeons, and his report was as favorable as the other's had been adverse.

"He has the heart and chest of a man of 40," said he. "I can recommend his life as one of the best of his age that I have ever examined."

"That's well," said Mr. McAdam, making a note of the doctor's remarks, while the admiral disbursed a second guinea. "Your price, I understand, is £5,000. I can communicate with Mr. Elberry, my client, and let you know whether he cares to touch the matter. Meanwhile you can leave your pension papers here, and I will give you a receipt for them."

"Very well. I should like the money soon."

"That is why I am retaining the papers. If I can see Mr. Elberry today, we may let you have a check tomorrow. Try another pinch. No? Well, goodby. I am very happy to have been of service." Mr. McAdam bowed them out, for he was a very busy man, and they found themselves in the street once more with lighter hearts than when they had left it.

"Well, Westmacott, I am sure I am very much obliged to you," said the admiral. "You have stood by me when I was the better for a little help, for I'm clean out of my soundings among these city sharks. But I've something to do now which is more in my own line, and I need not trouble you any more."

"Oh, it is no trouble. I have nothing to do. I never have anything to do. I don't suppose I could do it if I had. I should be delighted to come with you, sir, if I can be of any use."

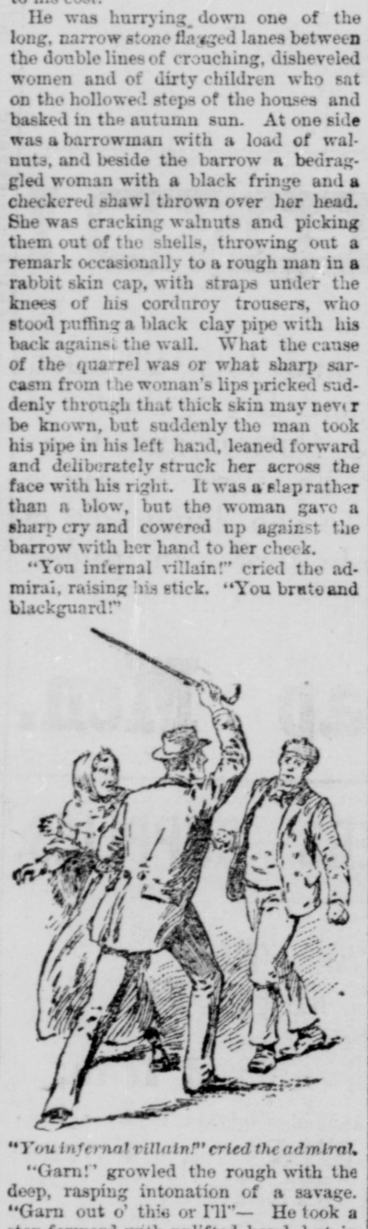
"No, no, my lad. You go home again. It would be kind of you, though, if you would look in at No. 1 when you get back and tell my wife that all's well with me and that I'll be back in an hour or so."

"All right, sir; I'll tell her." Westmacott raised his hat and strode away to the westward, while the admiral, after a hurried lunch, bent his steps toward the east.

It was a long walk, but the old seaman swung along at a rousing pace, leaving street after street behind him. The great business palaces dwindled down into commonplace shops and dwellings, which decreased and became more stunted, even as the folk who filled them did, until he was deep in the evil places of the eastern end. It was a land of huge, dark houses and of garish gin shops, a land, too, where life moves irregularly and where adventures are to be gained—as the admiral was to learn to his cost.

He was hurrying down one of the long, narrow stone flagged lanes between the double lines of crouching, disheveled women and of dirty children who sat on the hollowed steps of the houses and basked in the autumn sun. At one side was a barrowman with a load of walnuts, and beside the barrow a bedraggled woman with a black fringe and a checkered shawl thrown over her head. She was cracking walnuts and picking them out of the shells, throwing out a remark occasionally to a rough man in a rabbit skin cap, with straps under the knees of his corduroy trousers, who stood puffing a black clay pipe with his back against the wall. What the cause of the quarrel was or what sharp sarcasm from the woman's lips pricked suddenly through that thick skin may never be known, but suddenly the man took his pipe in his left hand, leaned forward and deliberately struck her across the face with his right. It was a slap rather than a blow, but the woman gave a sharp cry and cowered up against the barrow with her hand to her cheek.

"You infernal villain!" cried the admiral, raising his stick. "You brute and blackguard!"



"You infernal villain!" cried the admiral.

"Garn!" growled the rough with the deep, rasping intonation of a savage. "Garn out o' this or I'll"— He took a step forward with uplifted hand, but in an instant down came cut No. 1 upon his wrist and cut No. 2 across his thigh and cut No. 3 full in the center of his rabbit skin cap. It was not a heavy stick, but it was strong enough to leave a good red weal wherever it fell. The rough yelled with pain and rushed in, hitting with both hands and kicking with his ironshod boots, but the admiral had still a quick foot and a true eye, so that he bounded backward and sideways, still raining a shower of blows upon his savage antagonist. Suddenly, however, a pair of arms closed round his neck, and glancing backward he caught a glimpse of the black, coarse fringe of the woman whom he had befriended. "I've got him!" she shrieked. "I'll 'old 'im! Now, Bill, knock the tripe out of him!"

Her grip was as strong as a man's, and her wrist pressed like an iron bar upon the admiral's throat. He made a desperate effort to disengage himself, but the most that he could do was to swing her around so as to place her between his adversary and himself. As it proved it was the very best thing that he could have done. The rough, half blinded and maddened by the blows which he had received, struck out with all his ungainly strength just as his partner's head swung around in front of him.

There was a noise like that of a stone hitting a wall, a deep groan, her grasp relaxed, and she dropped a dead weight upon the pavement, while the admiral sprang back and raised his stick once more, ready either for attack or defense. Neither was needed, however, for at that moment there was a scattering of the crowd, and two police constables, burly and helmeted, pushed their way through the rabble. At the sight of them the rough took to his heels and was instantly screened from view by a veil of his friends and neighbors.

"I have been assaulted," panted the admiral. "This woman was attacked, and I had to defend her."

"This is Bermondsey Sal," said one police officer, bending over the bedraggled heap of tattered shawl and dirty skirt. "She's got it hot this time."

"He was a shortish man, thick, with a beard."

"Ah, that's Black Davie. He's been up four times for beating her. He's about done the job now. If I were you, I would let that sort settle their own little affairs, sir."

"Do you think that a man who holds the queen's commission will stand by and see a woman struck?" cried the admiral indignantly.

"Well, just as you like, sir. But you've lost your watch, I see."

"My watch!" He clapped his hand to his waistcoat. The chain was hanging down in front, and the watch gone.

He passed his hand over his forehead. "I would not have lost that watch for anything," said he. "No money could replace it. It was given me by the ship's company after our African cruise. It has an inscription."

The policeman shrugged his shoulders. "It comes from meddling," said he.

"What'll you give me if I tell yer where it is?" said a sharp faced boy among the crowd. "Will you give me a quid?"

"Certainly."

"Well, where's the quid?"

The admiral took a sovereign from his pocket. "Here it is."

"Then 'ere's the ticker!" The boy pointed to the clinched hand of the senseless woman. A glimmer of gold shone out from between the fingers, and on opening them up there was the admiral's chronometer. This interesting victim had throttled her protector with one hand, while she had robbed him with the other.

The admiral left his address with the policeman, satisfied himself that the woman was only stunned, not dead, and then set off upon his way once more, the poorer perhaps in his faith in human nature, but in very good spirits none the less. He walked with dilated nostrils and clinched hands, all glowing and tingling with the excitement of the combat, and warmed with the thought that he could still, when there was need, take his own part in a street brawl in spite of his threescore and odd years.

JUDGE NOT.

Oh, men who are good, who are honored
and great,
Be kind to your brothers of lowly estate.
If masters, then be not in tasking severe.
If rulers, then rule men in love and not fear.
And if ye be fathers, wise, learned and
strong,
Lead the little ones tenderly, slowly along.
Ere you sneer at the humble or punish the base,
Pause and think for awhile, "Put yourself
in their place!"

Fair lady, so haughty, so chaste and so cold,
Kept safe from harm in love's sheltering
fold,
Ere you turn from your frail, erring sister
with scorn,
Think how she was tempted and how she was born.
Her ruin may date from a smile or kind
word,
The first that her poor hungry heart ever heard.
Then pause ere you taunt her with sin and
disgrace—
How if you had been tried? "Put your self in her place!"

Proud man, whom the white robes of
ermine enfold,
As you weigh others' sins in the balance
you hold,
Ere you crush the last spark in a h[illegible]t
doomed to bleed,
Let mercy come in for a moment and
plead,
Ere you sentence "for life" a poor brother
to dwell
With the ghost of the sins that shall people
his cell,
Think why you are honored, and he in
disgrace.
What is hid in your heart? "Put yourself
in his place!"

"Put yourself in their place!" Yea, have mercy on all
Who through love or through hate, good
or evil shall fall;
Who knows in the light of a judgment
divine,
Which soul shall be whitest, the sinner's
or thine!
Fear to judge lest you [illegible] and at the heavenly door,
To see [illegible] and publicans go in before.
While you cover with guilty confusion
your face,
And cry, when too late, to be put in their place?

Paine's Celery Compound Saves From Death

Mrs Pelletier, of Quebec, Suffered Continuously for Fifteen Years—Was Paralyzed on Right Side for Six Years—Endured Terrible Agonies Night and Day—Three Bottles of Nature's Healer Gave Grand Results—Paine's Celery Compound Restores the Sick.

MRS. L. PELLETIER.

"I take great pleasure in letting you know all the good that I have derived from your Paine's Celery Compound. For fifteen year I have been a dyspeptic, and have tried a great many medicines without any good results. I was also paralysed on my right side for six years, and was unable to write or do any work. Last winter I was confined to my room with pains in my stomach, back and head, also with inflammatory rheumatism. A friend brought me a newspaper and directed my attention to the almost miraculous benefits that resulted from the use of Paine's Celery Compound. I then decided to try three bottles and have, from the use of the remedy, experienced grand results. The pains have dissappeared and I feel a great deal stronger. I fully believe that I have at last found the precious remedy. I owe you unbounded gratitude, and will proclaim it to all the world, so that our poor suffering humanity may drive all the benefits that your medicine can give. It certainly has no equal in merit as reliever of pain."

This is the testimony of Mrs. L. Pelletier 56 Bridge Street, Quebec; her portrait appears above.

A more decisive victory over disease of long standing has never been put on record by any other medicine. Mrs. Pelletier's experience of failures and success carry to all sufferers a weighty and important lesson of warning and encouragment—warning against wasting time and hazarding life with medicines that prove failure—and encouragement to use nature's true restorer, Paine' Celery Compound.

Mrs. Pelletier's plain and honest testimony should influence and guide thousands of sickly, weary and diseased men and women in Canada.

Mrs. DeWet—"There, Reginald, are those Rigby Waterproofs I have been telling you about. Can't you see how stylish and comfortable they look?—and they are just lovely for winter weather. You always wait till everybody else in the world adopts a new thing before you will believe in it. We really must have them at once."

Mrs. Uptodate—"Dear me, what a sight those DeWets are, out on the street a day like this without Rigby Garments. It takes some people a lifetime to learn how to be comfortable. Just think how we used to swelter in those horrid Rubber Waterproofs, and such smelling things."

GRATEFUL, PLEASING RELIEF AFTER MANY DAYS.

How a Queens County Man Found Permanent Healing.

His Own Experience Tells Fully and Freely some Truths which all Readers of this Paper Should Know.

Here and there, in almost every town of our province are "chronic" cases over which doctors disagree; cases that become worse year after year. It is to reach such that the gentleman to whom these lines refer, and whose portrait is here given, has written the story of his case.

Mr. Branscomb's home is in Chipman, Queens Co., N. B. It was there that a representative of the Groder company called upon him, Sept. 1st, of the present year. His greeting was most cordial. He gladly acknowledged his thanks, giving expression to the following statement:

"It is five years since I first became afflicted with a form of indigestion. Last winter it became more severe, developing into chronic diarrhœa. I cannot tell you how much I suffered for SIX LONG WEEKS. It seemed as though relief could not be found. You will remember how I told you of my condition and asked your advice about taking a bottle of GRODER'S SYRUP. You told me that the medicine was a laxative and might not meet my needs. I delayed buying for a few hours until I began to hope that it would help me. Even my clothes seemed a burden because of bloating of stomach. It was with difficulty that I kept about sufficiently to attend to my business.

But I am a well man now from the use of your remedy. In three days after I bought GRODER'S SYRUP the terrible pain and distress across my stomach were removed. My bowels rapidly assumed a natural, healthy condition. Now I eat and drink as well as I ever could. I have gained constantly in flesh since March last. I am perfectly cured.

It seems a duty for me to state my case fully, that others who suffer as I did may know where to find a cure."

Truly yours,

E. A. BRANSCOMB.
