LOVE-IN-A-MIST.

Love-in-a-mist in every garden grows
Beside the hollyhock, beneath the rose.
Love-in-a-mist makes every rose less gay
And takes the lily's gold and leaves her

gray
And turns the poppy pale as winter snows.
Sir Hamblebee will none of it, but goes straight for the sunflower in the garden close.
And spiders' webs of silver will not stay
Love-in-a-mist.

Who gathers it we wish not, nor who sows,
Nor to what end its misty blossom blows.
Only its blue eyes meet us day by day
Till half we wish the mists would blow away.

Who knows true love, be sure he also knows
Love-in-a-mist.
—Norah Hopper.

HOTELS IN GREECE.

Single Rooms Are Rare, and the Furnishings Are Painfully Scant.

In Greece the hotels of the interior follow one general type—the Italian. There is no common sitting room. Why should there be? There is no office, but that does not seem to interfere with the presentation of bills. The ground floor is given up to a cafe or restaurant, if the innkeeper goes into that line of business. Very often, however, the master of the Apollo has only rooms to let. The sleeping apartments on the floor above are often approached by an outside stairway, and, as is to be expected in a southern climate, they are scantily furnished. Overfurnishing is a vice anywhere. Under a southern sky it is a crime, of which the Greeks are not guilty. There is usually a mirror, though that tribute to human vanity is sometimes lacking, and, like the Turk, the solitary Turkish towel bears no brother near his throne. The bedstead is invariably of iron and does not offer the same vantage ground to the assailants of sleep as a wooden framework would do, but the cushions are there, and the walls are there, so that small comfort is to be derived from that slight reduction of possibilities.

As in primitive United States within my memory, single rooms are rare. Two, three, four, five beds are put in one room or strung along the corridors. A fastidious person who desires to occupy a room alone has to pay for all the beds therein. In some places special charges are made for sleeping in the daytime, and there is a fixed rate for sleeping on the floor. That a man should wish to be private when he is asleep seems absurd to a race that sleeps at any time and in any place irrespective of on-lookers. But in this whole domain we Americans, who submit to the abomination of the Pullman sleepers, have no right to find fault with any other nationality—we have no right to be fastidious about undressing in the eyes of the world, and a large charity ought to cover the divergencies of different regions and different periods in this respect. In the good old times people used to go to bed utterly devoid of raiment, and the bedclothes, as we call them still, were the only clothes.—Professor B. L. Gildersleeve in Atlantic.

WHAT WOMEN WEAR.

Bodices closely fitted with a long point in front are a feature of the new evening dress.

One special novelty in parasols is called the "sunburst" and is almost Japanese in shape, as it is flatter than the other styles.

Pretty shirt waists are made of pink blue and ecru linen, with either ends or tucks run in to form the yoke or set in up and down the front.

Cloth coats trimmed with lace are novelty in jackets, which is indeed an innovation, and the lace appears on the large square collars of the empire coat.

Red foulards, red dimities and lawns are liberally sprinkled through the stock of summer materials, and the large white polka dot on a blue ground is one of the new patterns.

Picture hats with an abundance of ostrich feathers and flowers for trimming will be much worn this season, and there are long plumes among the feathers which are arranged to fall over the brim.

Black silk shirt waists with two or three side plaits of some bright color are in on either side of the front and a tur over collar and cuffs of kilted silk of the same shade are very attractive as well as useful.

A new cycling skirt has two straight plaits in the back which are made separate and partially detached, so that they fall gracefully on either side of the wheel, and beneath this is a regular skirt at the back which completes it to a walking skirt as well.

Tucks are all the rage surely, since they appear in thin gowns, silk gowns and all other materials which can possibly be used for the spring and summer wardrobe, except perhaps chevrot and serge, and they are in all widths and all forms, both crosswise and up and down.

The newest evening dresses have trimmed skirts and finely plaited ruffles of taffeta or lace, or both combined, set on in groups. It is an old fashion revived. Narrow gauge ribbon, with a satin edged plaited into ruchings and set on in series of five, five inches apart, in waved lines, is another new and old skirt trimming.—New York Sun.
