NOTES OF THE SESSION.

P. E. I. STEAM COMMUNICATION.
The Committee on Steam Communication between Prince Edward Island and the Mainland met this morning and examined Senator Haythorne on the subject. Senator Haythorne read a paper, which he had prepared with care, dealing with the whole question exhaustively. He advocated that contracts for the service across the Straits should be let for shortened terms, and that steamers should be placed on the route, thus prolonging the season materially. He believed a permanent service should be established between Georgetown and the Mainland as well as between the Capes. As to the kind of vessel best suited for the purpose, he thought the draught should not exceed from eight to twelve feet. Efficient aid could only be procured by the use of steamers, and if skillfully handled all difficulties would be overcome.

UNGALLANT SENATORS.
The ladies of Ottawa are much incensed at the action of the Senators in shutting the gallery reserved for these honorable gentlemen in the Commons. On the night of the budget speech all the other galleries were crowded to excess, many ladies having to stand, and although but ten or twelve Senators only sat in their gallery, all the rest of the seats being vacant, no one was allowed in. About eleven o'clock, however, some ladies were given special privilege of seats, but there were others who were denied this accommodation, and they were justly indignant at the Senatorial exclusiveness.

A Reign of Terror.
DISCOVERY OF A NITRO-GLYCERINE FACTORY IN BIRMINGHAM—FENIANS AND DYNAMITE FIENDS AT WORK—EXTRAORDINARY PRE-CAUTIONARY MEASURES REVIVED.

The Birmingham police on the 5th raided a suspected locality in Ledsan Street, Lady-wood, and discovered a fenian nitro-glycerine factory in full operation there. The apparatus for preparing and mixing the explosive compound was constructed on scientific principles, which clearly showed its inventor to be not only a thorough scholar in chemistry and machinery but an adept in expedients for preventing discovery.
Among the noteworthy features of the place was a shrewdly devised method for carrying the fumes up the chimney and consuming the odors. It has been learned that the premises in Ledsan Street were taken two months ago by a man named Whitehead, an Irish-American, who had a sign hung out in front of the place in declaring his business—that of a paper hanger.

Whitehead was taken into custody when the police made their descent. A considerable quantity of nitro-glycerine was seized.
Information now in the hands of the detectives tends to demonstrate that the place is a central manufactory of explosives and the most important depot of all infernal contrivances in the kingdom. Whitehead, who is described as about 25 years of age, dark in complexion and with marked American accent, has been in the habit of purchasing supplies of glycerine and acids which were necessary to run the business.

A London semi-weekly newspaper, the City Press, on the 5th, announced that it had received a letter without signature, in which the writer threatened to blow up the government offices. The affair was referred to the police, and late that night English detectives assisted by the Irish Secret Service arrested a man who had a quantity of stuff supposed to be dynamite.
The detectives had followed the prisoner from Manchester, as he appeared suspicious, and when the letter appeared he was at once arrested in the vicinity of Fleet Street.

The army officials at Woolwich are engaged in a chemical examination of the explosive compound found upon him. The police regard the arrest as a most important one.
Precautionary measures have been revived.
Extra attention is being given to the protection of buildings in which are located the offices of the Ministry and of all public officials. Extra sentinels have been posted at Windsor Castle, where the Queen is still resting, and about the Post Office. Keen-eyed policemen and detectives are watching every corner where dynamite fiends or incendiaries could possibly be expected to work.

It was learned in London, on the night of the 5th, that the man first arrested on the night of the 4th, near Fleet street, corner of Strand, giving the name of Ormond, and stating he was a medical student, and subsequently that his correct name was Norman. The first inquiry for rooms was made by an elderly man. The box of explosives was taken to Norman's lodging by a person who looked more like a tramp or a street loafer than a porter or friend of a medical student. It is believed both this individual and the elderly man have been identified in the persons of the two men arrested at Lambeth on the 5th.

One of these men had in his pockets and sewed up in his clothes a large sum of money, a part of which was reported as knocked senseless in a Chicago street last Saturday by a runaway horse and carried into the nearest drug store for resuscitation.
The crowd fell back with exclamations of pity, and a gentleman handed her the old lady's hand-bag which he had picked up after the accident. Thereupon, saying that she would go for the family doctor, she left the store and disappeared down the street.
A few minutes later the old lady recovered her senses and asked for her hand-bag.
When told it had been given to her daughter she uttered the single word, "Robbed!"
and fainted dead away. At last accounts the police were looking for the "daughter."

A marriage has been arranged between Mr. Hugh Northcote, son of Sir Stafford Northcote, and Edith, daughter of ex-Secretary Hamilton Fish, of New York. was taken into custody on the night of the 5th. He came from the United States about two weeks ago. He was found at the rooms of the American Exchange and made no resistance when informed of the errand of the officers. Dalton was confined in jail at Scotland Yard. There was quite a sensation in the Commons when these arrests were announced. Sir William Harcourt, Home Secretary, in a brief speech outlining the facts confirmed that up to this time had been nearly a rumor that Norman had been put under arrest.

He added that 150 pounds of highly explosive liquid had been found in Norman's quarters and that it was stored in skillfully devised rubber bags. He also confirmed the rumor of the discovery of a dynamite manufactory at Birmingham, and that a considerable amount of the same kind of explosion had been discovered in the rooms of the Lambeth prisoners, and that part of the money on one of those men was in American bank notes. That there was a connection between the arrest and discovery at Birmingham and those in London is shown to be a fact by an incident which has just come to light. The Home Secretary during the afternoon sent a despatch to Birmingham asking the authorities to remand Whitehead for a week. The same action will be taken here under the same directions in the case of Norman.

There was renewed excitement in Government circles on the afternoon of the 5th, because of a report from Newry, Ireland, where are situated large government infantry barracks, that the sentinel standing guard over powder magazine on the night of the 4th, challenged a man who was scaling the wall. The sentry fired and gave the alarm. The search for the intruder was fruitless, but the guard was doubled and orders issued to take every precaution to prevent a surprise.

More precautions were taken at Windsor Castle on the 5th. It is even hinted that the whole conspiracy in London and in America will be exposed. Whitehead's examination at Birmingham developed nothing startling.

Diphtheria in Russia.
The ravages of diphtheria in Russia, which have so long defied the efforts of doctors and sanitary committees, have now been surpassed by the fatal effects of scarla-tina. According to statistical papers just published, the mortality in St. Petersburg from diphtheria and scarlatina has continually increased from 1878, until during the past year there were no less than 1,323 deaths from the latter and 1,146 deaths from the former, making the alarming yearly total of 2,469 deaths from these two diseases alone in population of about 800,000.
From other official statistics it appears that during five years there have been 156,027 fatal cases out of 363,018 persons attacked by these two diseases in the empire.

The Golo's remarks on the subject that no war has ever been so disastrous, and that considering the large percentage of young people among the victims (95 per cent) it is really the future of the country that is in question. At the same time the medical statistics do not extend, as a rule, beyond the large towns. In the whole of Russia there are not more than about 14,000 doctors, properly so called. The Empress has given particular attention to the inadequacy of medical aid in contending against the enormous spread of disease, and recently when the Government, instigated by the Minister of War, determined upon abolishing medical schools for women as a precaution against female Nihilism, Her Majesty distinctly expressed herself against the measure. As soon as it was known that the Empress recognized the necessity of female medical education, large sums of money flowed in from all parts to support the threatened institution.

Baron Nordenskjold, who accomplished in his Vega expedition the north-east passage, has intimated his intention of claiming from the Dutch Government the reward of twenty-five thousand gulden offered by the States-General of the Netherlands in 1596 for the discovery of the passage.
From 1596 to 1883 is a long time for an account to remain open. Three centuries ago, when the latitudinal extent of Europe and Asia were unknown and the intervening seas unexplored, the north-east passage, instead of being a scientific problem, was a grave reality on which the Dutch believed their greatness depended. Circumstances have greatly changed since the reward was offered, and although Sir Robert McClure, in 1854, received the reward of one thousand pounds, which, a century before, the English Parliament offered for the discovery of the equally useless north-west passage, three centuries ought to constitute a sufficient gap for an international statute of limitation. Besides, though Baron Nordenskjold accomplished the north-east passage, he can scarcely be said to have discovered it, since, bit by bit, every foot of the sea over which he was so fortunate as to steam in a single ship had been traversed by previous adventurers.

"Mother, are you hurt?" asked an agitated young woman as she leaned over the prostrate form of an old lady who had been knocked senseless in a Chicago street last
into the nearest drug store for resuscitation.
she would go for the family doctor, she left
A few minutes later the old lady recovered
her senses and asked for her hand-bag.
