"NEVER take a sulky girl to ride in a buggy," says Harper's Bazaar. No; we should prefer a hansom girl in a phæton.—Philadelphia Herald. She ought to have a good carriage, of course.—Grip. Please don't tire us with such puns.

THE St. Paul Pioneer Press says of Professor Buell's exhibition:—"The representations were brought out with such accuracy, minuteness of detail, and true life-likeness, that the beholder was surprised that works of art could so approach the natural. The exhibition included scenes of the most beautiful natural scenery, the finest public buildings, and the most interesting cities of the old and new worlds, as well as portraits of distinguished personages, statuary, etc.

THE telephone is not the succcess anticipated in Russia; and no wonder Just fancy a man going to the 'phone and yelling: "Hel-lo! Is that you Dvisostkiuichsmartoviczski?" "No. It's Zoliemschouskaffirnockemstiffsgowoff. Who's speaking?" "Sozimochocwiertrjuaksmzyskischokemoff. I want to know if Xliferomarskoffiskillma juwchzvastowskskweibierskiis still stopping with Dvisostkichsmartvoicski." Such momenclature over the telephone would tie the wires full of knots and twist the enunciator all out of shape. Until the kinks are ironed out of the Russian names the telephone will not be an overwhelming success in the land of the Czar.

BLABREGA gave a few tests in mind-reading in the Rankin House parlor at 2 o'clock this afternoon. About twenty-five gentlemen were present and were delighted with the result. Miss Lyndon was blind-folded, and while so answered correctly the denomination of coins, numbers on bank bills and various other articles held by the audience. Balabrega then retired and allowed one of the spectators to hide a pin which was placed in a secreted part of a gentleman's coat. The mind-reader then entered, blindfolded, accompanied by the party assisting, and in a very brief space discovered the hidden article. Another pin was hidden in a remote part of John Coombs' Printing Establishment, and was skilfully found. Balabrega's power is truly amazing.
