No Troubles At Dorchester, Warden Says

MONCTON (CP) — Warden A. McLean of the Maritime Penitentiary at Dorchester, N.B., said Thursday officials are "experiencing no unusual difficulties" behind the prison's grey-stoned walls.

He said an inmate stabbed in the back during a July 26 softball game had been returned to his cell. The prisoner, whose name was not disclosed, was rushed to hospital here for an emergency operation following the incident.

At that time there were reports of unrest among the prisoners. Warden McLean said the situation now was quiet. He did not comment on an investigation into the stabbing incident.

Conservatively Speaking

by Islander

With the barnacle-encrusted Liberal ship of state battered and broken by the storm churned up by Conservative supporters, the political barometer falling further each day and total shipwreck only a matter of hours away, the Liberal captains are reaching for straws in last-ditch attempts to stem the swelling Conservative tide.

Unwilling to match the Conservative pledge to pay all teachers' supplements in full, all the niggardly Matheson regime could come up with was an indeterminate proposal to provide free school books to all children attending grades one to eight. In contrast to the Conservative plan which would lift a $600,000 tax burden from the shoulders of the Province's citizens, the Matheson proposal would subsidize parents to the extent of only $180,000. It is a little better than the paltry $35,000 equalization grants announced last winter, but still not much help.

In addition the Matheson proposal has run into a veritable wall of objection from all sides. Mothers and teachers ask how under this system it will be possible to teach the children to take care of books they do not own. They ask whether the children will be allowed to keep their books at home or be obliged to leave them in school. Such last-ditch proposals are usually up in the air.

In another move indicating just how desperate the Liberal plight is, Mr. Matheson announced Tuesday evening that if elected he would take steps to develop the Irish moss industry, an industry that has been developed constantly by wide-awake Island businessmen during the past ten years. Possibly the leader of the Liberals visited Kings and Prince Counties so seldom that he was unaware that this valuable local industry already existed, or perhaps he has located another outsider willing to accept one-half million dollars of Island money to start a plant.

By the way, speaking of processing plants, it is rumored that the directors of Frosted Foods are anxious to unload. It is reliably reported that an official of another large food company was down here some time ago, took one look at the set-up, and departed for home in haste. Yes, Sir! When the gravy train stops running, most of the operators like to climb off and go look for another.

Did you notice how carefully the Premier and his cohorts steered clear of such big issues as tourists' loans and industrial development? Nary a word about the Souris fish-plant fiasco which cost the government a great deal of much-needed money, or the big tourist loans that were already spent before the Legislature were even asked to grant the authority. Boy! These petty dictators sure think that our Island people are gullible. They will all realize their mistake next Wednesday morning.

How much pavement would have been laid in this Province during the past two years had John Diefenbaker not come to the Province's rescue in the bankrupt days of 1957? Not one mile. The sad state of the Province's finances would have made such work impossible. Only the money made available by the special Atlantic Provinces grant plus the sum promised under the roads-to-resources project has made possible the frantic all-out efforts in evidence the past few weeks.

View Of Statue Suddenly Cures

ROME (Reuters) — An unofficial Italian Catholic weekly, Orizzonti (Horizon), Thursday quoted Padre Pio di Pietralcina, 72-year-old Capuchin monk and "miracle-worker," as saying he felt suddenly cured from a long illness after speaking to the statue of the Madonna of Fatima, Portugal.

The statue has been carried through Italy by helicopter in recent months. It was taken Aug. 5 to the monastery at San Giovanni Rotondo near Foggia, South Italy, where pilgrims flock to meet Padre Pio, who has borne the stigmata — wounds of Christ — for the last 40 years.

The weekly quoted Padre Pio, reported to have been suffering from pleurisy since April, as saying, "A few days ago while the Madonna of Fatima was leaving, I said: 'Madonna, you have come and found me ill. And now are you going away leaving me still ill?'"

"After saying this, I felt a shudder on the back and became pale. Someone asked me: 'Padre... what has happened?'"

"I feel cured since then," the padre said.

Strange Disease Is Still Puzzler

MONTEAL (CP) — Doctors and scientists are still puzzled by a strange malady uncovered in the little town of Farnham, Que., four months ago.

They met Wednesday to study the facts about the disease — said to resemble loa-loa, a parasitical ailment from Asia and Africa. It is also known as loiasis.

"It will take months before we get near the truth," said Dr. Armand Frappier, director of the microbiology department of the University of Montreal.

But in the meantime, he added, the 6,000 people of Farnham should go about their life as usual. They live 45 miles southeast of Montreal.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM

"All those were present at the meeting were agreed that the existing situation in Farnham does not justify any state of alarm," he said in a statement.

Dr. Luc Fortin, the Farnham physician who first suspected a parasitical illness, was at the meeting. He spent four months over his microscope tracking down tiny hair-like worms removed from suspected victims of the disease.

"It may not be loa-loa," he said, "but it definitely is a microfilarial disease."

Also at the meeting was Farnham mayor, Dr. V. L. Cardin, a doctor himself. He has disputed suggestions that the disease is loa-loa.

About five persons were said to have been found suffering from the ailment. In its initial stage, it is like the gripe, with aches and fever. Then when the tiny parasites reproduce near the skin, sufferers have an itching sensation. If they scratch, they get a rash. In the final stage, the parasites enter the blood stream and when they clog the lymphatic blood vessels, the victim's legs and feet become bloated.

The special meeting decided to ask provincial epidemiologist Dr. Roger Foley to continue investigations into the Farnham ailment.

"This is the normal way of doing things," said Dr. Frappier. "People should not be alarmed because Dr. Foley is heading the investigation."

"The analysis of the facts gathered in Farnham does not agree with what is known about parasitic such as loa-loa diseases," Dr. Frappier added.

"Mention of loa-loa did not come from us. Some people seemed to have jumped the gun. It is like going up a road which has not yet been built as we ourselves do not know what this disease is."

He said people suspected of having the disease are being kept under observation — "the normal precaution when the disease is not at once diagnosed."

Stigma Of Gangsterism On New Party, Is Observation

WINNIPEG (CP) — The leader of the Newfoundland Democratic Party said Thursday that if a new labor-backed Canadian political party were formed it would have to overcome the

21 New Cases In Hospital

MONTEAL (CP) — Twenty-one new polio cases have been admitted to Montreal hospitals since Wednesday, raising to 521 the total number treated since the outbreak of an epidemic last month.

The death toll remained at 28, unchanged since Monday.

The city health department reported 224 cases from Montreal proper with eight deaths; 105 from the suburbs with eight deaths, and 191 from outside areas with 12 deaths.

The department, meanwhile, has announced no more first shots of salk vaccine will be given because supplies are dwindling.

Dr. Adelard Groulx, city health director, said lack of the vaccine is not expected "to influence the course of the epidemic."

U.S. Officers Invite Girls Aboard Ship

TORONTO (CP) — The officers of the USS Wilson Wednesday night invited 12 chorus girls from the Canadian National Exhibition grandstand show to have lunch aboard the Wilson Saturday. The girls have agreed to come.

There is some fear, however, that the lunch may provoke jealous officers from the two other U.S. destroyers at Toronto, and preparations are being made to repel boarders.

"We just want to warn the guys from the other ships: Don't try to crash the party," said Lt.-Cmdr. L. J. Hoyt, skipper of the Wilson.

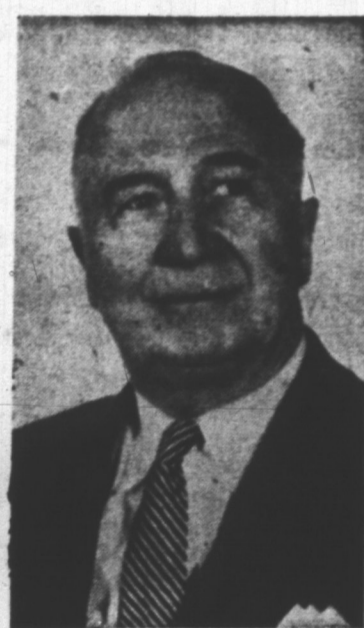

The invitation was made by Lieut. Jack Sullivan, considered the glamor boy of the Wilson, who was delegated to go backstage after the grandstand show Wednesday night and congratulate the girls on behalf of the officers.
