Dr. Prowse's Address

"Yours is one of the exceptional scientific professions, which develops limitlessly," Dr. L. E. Prowse said in addressing the graduates. "Today you are fortunate because the profession of nursing is realizing new fields, as yet untouched. You can look forward to great professional opportunities."

"You can look back as well. Centuries have built your profession. You can look back to Egypt which boasted of its 'Temple Women' or priestesses. Even though Egypt forbade dissection, and therefore surgery, and anatomy was unknown, it is responsible for the first nurses in history."

"You can look back to India, whose records reveal that the rules of asepsis were fully respected and that surgery flourished. In India only men were nurses, while women sang songs and recited poetry to divert the patients suffering."

"Yes, we are even indebted to the savages. The genealogy of many accepted medical and surgical methods today lead back to the strange superstitions of primitive man. The practice of massage arose from pummeling and pounding the patient's body to drive out the evil spirit. The superstition had no foundation but it was continued because the benefits were obvious. You know a poultice and a poultice, knowing the advantage of induced circulation. The savage plunged the patient alternately into hot and cold water, or sweat, or expelling the sickness."

"Thus, we learned the value of baths. The savage tried to burn out the wicked spirit by fire, by hot instruments, and by blistering appliances. Thus we learned the value of counter-irritants. The savage sought to drive out the demon through the orifices of the body. Thus we learned of purgatives and emetics. He tried to frighten away the evil spirit by powerful odors and horrible medicines which would nauseate or kill the evil spirit."

"Thus we learned of strong-smelling disinfectants. This superstition persisted even during the Middle Ages, when the most loathsome drugs, composed of insects and other unpleasant agents were administered to the sick. Undoubtedly it lingers today in the popular fancy that to be efficacious medicine must be bad-tasting."

From Crude Beginnings

"Nursing has developed from the crude instinctive ministrations of our primitive ancestors to a highly organized professional service. In Florence Nightingale, one of the greatest women of all times, and the founder of modern nursing, set the inspirational example. When she performed her great work, Pasteur and Lister were just ushering in the era of antiseptic surgery and sterilization. Yet, even without the aid of medical science, so great were the services of Miss Nightingale that in the Crimean War she reduced the death rate from 40% to 2% in one hospital alone."

"Nursing is often considered to be a subordinate branch of medicine. But nursing history shows that it has had an independent development for many hundreds of years. Medicine has risen and fallen with the spirit of scientific inquiry, but nursing has followed and waves of religious awakening and social and humanitarian effort."

"Thus, while medicine was declining in the early centuries of the Christian era, nursing was just beginning to flourish as a branch of religious service. Certainly the nursing orders of the Church through the Middle Ages enjoyed a greater authority in the care of the sick than the crude barber surgeons who represented medicine. I think that it is fair to say that the nursing profession today is not any more dependent on medicine than medicine is on nursing."

"Fortunately, you need not merely look back upon the history of your profession. History is moving on. You can look confidently towards the future. For your profession has one thing more than any other profession - a future."

Public Health Nursing

"The whole field of Public Health Nursing, yet in its earliest infancy, offers tremendous possibilities to new graduates with vision and the pioneering spirit. Private nursing needs re-organization and constructive leadership, and I feel that a beginning is being made here with the formation of the Community Nursing Registry. There is a crying need for an army of energetic nurses to challenge the illiam Flynn, Harry Corcoran, T. Arthur Campbell, Louis MacDonald, Leo Bradley and Leonard Connolly. Interment took place in the family plot in the Catholic cemetery where service was conducted by Rev. Vincent Murnaghan, assisted by Rev. Vincent Murnaghan."

The inspection was brought to a conclusion when the members of the corps, instructors, the girls physical training class and the inspecting party were the guests of the College for refreshments served in the Vocational Training wing.

During the refreshment period, chief cadet training officer Captain George Hollivell, complimented the corps on their fine showing. "You are 100 per cent better than you were two years ago, and I was very pleased with today's display, it was a pleasure to watch."

Dr. Prowse continued his remarks with some pertinent quotations from Sir William Osler, John Ruskin and Robert Louis Stevenson on the subject of nursing and medical standards. He concluded with warmly congratulating the graduates of 1951, and wishing them every success in their chosen profession.

Comments P.W.C. Cadets On Fine Turnout Yesterday

The Prince of Wales College Cadet Corps made an impressive showing in march past review before Brigadier W. W. Reid, chief inspecting officer for the Corps annual inspection yesterday afternoon.

Accompanied by Lt. Col. A. W. Rogers, officer commanding 17th Recce Regiment and Captain George Hollivell, Halifax, chief cadet training officer for Nova Scotia, P. E. I., Brigadier Reid inspected the company in ranks and then took the salute on the march past held on the college grounds. The company, led by the West Kent School No. 20 Cadet Corps drum and bugle band, made a smart display as they performed their parade duties in close column of platoons and column of route marching.

The company was commanded by Cadet Major Bill McAnew, while the West Kent band was under the command of bandmaster George Hurry. Other Cadet officers and N.C.O.'s of the company were Captain Bob Burke, 2nd in command, Lieutenants Brian Chandler and Bob Hamby, C. S. M. Tom Scantlebury and platoon Sergeants Ian Cameron and Louis Paoli.

Chief Instructor of the Corps is Lt. Col. W. J. McDonald, while Lt. Robert LeClair, Mr. J. Gallant and Sergeant Earl Nicholson compose the rest of the instrumental staff for the Corps. In the absence of Lt. Col. McDonald, Lt. LeClair accompanied the inspecting party. The Corps is affiliated with the 17th Recce Regiment.

Following the general inspection, the Corps put on demonstrations in physical training, first aid, map reading and Bren gun training. All were carried out in the College Auditorium and were conducted in a smooth and efficient manner.

Special P.T. Display

One of the highlight features of the demonstrations was a special physical training display put on by the P. W. C. girls class under Sergeant Instructor Earl Nicholson. The girls put on the display in competition for a special prize donated by Strathcona Trust for the best girls P. T. demonstration in Provincial Scholastic competition. The girls' class went through a series of exercises in an excellent display of precision drill which was a credit to themselves, their instructor and the student body they represent.

At the conclusion of the demonstration, Brigadier Reid made a few brief remarks, in which he congratulated the Corps on their fine showing. "Your display showed a vast improvement over the year ago," he said "and I feel that you are really headed in the right direction of becoming a crack corps. Keep up the good work."

Brigadier Reid also referred to cadet training in general and its close association with present world conditions. "We are living under a dark cloud at the moment, and the extent of that situation gets worse, such training as you have been getting will prepare you for what might lay ahead and you will stand up in good stead. There are many skilled trades in the services today and many opportunities, and if you should be called upon to serve, your cadet training will make it easier for you to attain a key position."

Presents Strathcona Shield

Brigadier Reid then presided over a ceremony in which he presented the Strathcona Shield for marksmanship won by the P. W. C. Cadet Corps rifle team, other marksmanship awards, and first aid badges and certificates. Corps Master Cadet Bill McAnew received the Shield on behalf of the Corps. Other awards were as follows: Highest scorer for small bore shooting, Allison Mutch; First class rifle badges, Robert Hamby, Bill McAndrew and MacDonald Johnston; First aid certificates and badges, Gordon Matheson, Hugh Gillespie, Bruce MacKinlay, Charles MacInnis; Master Cadet Certificate, Ian Cameron; Medical Assistant Certificate, Hugh Gillespie.

The inspection was brought to a conclusion when the members of the corps, instructors, the girls physical training class and the inspecting party were the guests of the College for refreshments served in the Vocational Training wing.

During the refreshment period, chief cadet training officer Captain George Hollivell, complimented the corps on their fine showing. "You are 100 per cent better than you were two years ago, and I was very pleased with today's display, it was a pleasure to watch."

Romance In Grey Winning Play In Jr. Drama Festival

"A Romance In Grey" was adjudged the winning play in the Junior drama playoffs held last night in the Summerville High School auditorium. The winning play was directed by Miss Elaine Harrison and drew a total of 85 marks while the second play "A Perfect Gentleman" scored a total of seventy two marks.

The adjudicator, Mrs. W. E. Scantlebury, Charlottetown, before beginning her criticisms gave a short talk on the value of dramatic participation, congratulating the members of the different casts on the fact that they had the courage and interest to take part in a play, for by doing so they acquired something that older people often wish for, the ability to speak in public.

She impressed on them the fact that in drama the most important thing to strive for is naturalness. In the play "A Perfect Gentleman" she felt that the players were somewhat nervous, while in the winning play this did not become so apparent. However, she conceded to the players in the runner-up play an ability to make themselves heard as they cannot "words across," she admonished. "They are no good if they cannot be heard."

In the winning play she said that the costumes were delightful, the contrasts in types were excellent. Before presenting the two plays in competition a play by the Kelvin Players was put on "The Three Bears Christmas Eve."

This presentation brought very favorable comment for Mrs. Scantlebury and she expressed herself as being much pleased with the efforts of those taking part. Drama festival finals are usually held but last night this usually somewhat drawn out between the boring interlude was overcome by the delightful musical selections by Doug Pineau's Orchestra. These young lads under the leadership of their piano accordion playing leader will eventually go places if they stay together.

The following is the cast of the two plays in competition. The Perfect Gentleman - Robert, John Trudnick; Mrs. Ames, Alida Raynor; Margaret Ames, Margaret Dawson; Alice Ames, Elaine Monkley; Mr. Crawford, Ronald Leard. A Romance In Grey - Sarah, Ann Botts; Lucy, Ruth Huestis; Mrs. Fanshawe, Betty Lou Trudnick; Fanshawe Fanshawe, Mary Mollison; Tottie Barrett, Wilma Jenkins; Lydia Barrett, Marina Doyle; George Wentworth, Eric Perry.

Mermaid Farmer Fatally Injured

Mr. Joseph Lemuel Matheson of Mermaid died in the P. E. I. Hospital yesterday from injuries received in an accident May 3. He was in his 67th year.

Mr. Matheson, who lived formerly at Wheatley River, was working with a son at erecting a wire fence. They were moving a strand of barbed wire across the road when a car passed and became entangled in it. As a result Mr. Matheson was badly injured about the legs. The injuries led to his death yesterday.

Survivors include a son, Russell, and his wife.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon.

Sharp Increase In Canadian Exports This Year

OTTAWA, May 8 - (CP) - Sales of Canadian products abroad jumped sharply in the first quarter of this year, the Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Domestic exports to all countries were $809,200,000, up 25 per cent from the $646,900,000 of the first three months of 1950. The Bureau said that, while higher prices accounted for part of the increase in export value, there also was a gain in the volume of goods sold.

For March, exports of $290,000,000 were 27 per cent up from the $228,200,000 in March of last year. Increases were shown in value of shipments to the United States, United Kingdom, other Commonwealth countries as a group, Latin America and Europe.

Exports to the U. K. moved upward for the second successive month, reversing the downward trend of the last year. For the month alone, they went to $39,665,000 from $30,120,000 a year before, and for the first three months of 1951 they were $113,294,000 compared with $109,101,000. About three-fourths of the increase in exports to all countries during the first three months was in shipments to the United States, which amounted to $52,586,000 compared with $44,008,000. For March, the figure rose to $29,200,000 from $28,200,000.

All of the nine major commodity groups showed March increases to the U. S. except chemicals and Allied products. The wood and paper group moved up most sharply, to $85,570,000 from $78,160,000. Shipments in wood and paper, and also the non-ferrous metals accounted for the increased value of shipments to the U. K. in March. The wood-paper group rose to $8,814,000 from $1,483,000.

Family Rosary Crusade Founder Speaks In Ch'town

Rev. Patrick Peyton, C.S.G., founder and director of the Family Rosary Crusade, addressed a large gathering of Roman Catholic clergy and laymen assembled at the Charlottetown Hotel last night for a preliminary dinner meeting of the Family Rosary campaign in the Charlottetown Diocese.

His Excellency, Bishop James Boyle, presided over the meeting and spoke to the gathering. Other speakers were Rt. Rev. Gregory MacLellan, P.A., V.G.; Sir William MacMillan and Mr. Melvin MacQuinn, Souris.

Clergy and laymen chairmen from over the forty parishes in the diocese were present to organize for the five weeks campaign designed to restore the practice of reciting the family Rosary to every Catholic home in the Province.

"God has seen Canada doing what no other country has ever done," stated Father Peyton. "He has seen her priests, doctors, lawyers, judges and leaders put back in the last half of the present century what was thrown out in the first half - family prayer."

He told how the crusade to have the Family Rosary started in Canada, was commenced in the Kingston Diocese in 1948 upon the invitation of Bishop Kidd.

"90,000 people of that diocese pledged themselves to recite the Family Rosary," he continued. Two years later the Vicar General of that diocese stood up publicly and said that the number of his seminarians and nuns had been doubled in the interim."

Father Peyton told how his work spread to the diocese of Vancouver, Edmonton, St. Boniface, through cities in the United States, Toronto, Quebec, England and now to the Maritimes.

He opened his remarks by pointing out that the family is the basic unit of society and that only by holding the family together could that society be maintained.

To hold that family together, Father Peyton asked that every husband and father led the family in reciting the Rosary. "The Rosary is the answer to the enemies of God's home," he stated.

The success of the crusade would depend upon the work of the people in the diocese, he continued. He outlined the work that must be done in the schools and churches and for the parishes at Summerville and Charlottetown which he hoped would bring together from 50 to 70% of the Catholics in the diocese.

Right Rev. G. J. MacLellan introduced Father Peyton. He impressed upon the members the importance of the Family Rosary and showed them the beauty of the prayer.

Bishop Compliments Laymen

Bishop Boyle complimented the laymen of the diocese for their apparent determination to make the crusade a success.

Dr. MacMillan stressed the value of prayer in relation to the medical profession. He also told of the many homes he had seen destroyed through the lack of some force to keep the family together.

"We are at World War III," he stated, "and the other two world wars shrink into insignificance beside it. Prayer in my opinion will be more weapon than any weapon," he added.

He told of his own devotion to the Mother of God and stated that he would never leave home without the Rosary in his pocket. I have said the Rosary twice a day since my wife died 30 years ago.

A film "Hill Number 1" depicting the scenes surrounding the resurrection was shown. Miss Maureen Blake sang a solo and dinner music was supplied by Messrs. Al Blanchard and Alfred McKearney.

United Church re-enters Japan. Next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. J. Mutch. Hymn 441, "Guide Me O Thou Great Jehovah" was sung, and the meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Jenkins, followed by a social hour.
