their camping places saved for next year.

There is, too, considerable change in the equipment used by campers, canoe trippers and other travellers. Many now carry vacuum bottles filled with hot beverages such as tea or coffee, thus getting away from the camp-fire which inadvertently "got away".

The gasoline or kerosene stove, or the alcohol stove using methyl spirits, is now in common usage in the north. Here, again, it has saved the building of camp fires plus, of course, the inconvenience of gathering wood.

The fact that tourist activities can be developed along lines of forest conservation is a most interesting one. It points up the importance of well-directed publicity to this end, and to the stake which every province has in providing camping site facilities that are conducive to the safety and protection of these natural resources.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Attention is called to the letter in today's Guardian by Chief of Police MacArthur on the menace of fire crackers, and the need for full co-operation in enforcing the law against their unsupervised use.

In one respect the British election campaign closely resembles our recent provincial contest. Both sides are confidently predicting victory, and are wooing "hard and fast" the unprecedented number of uncommitted voters.

With better prices and an estimated 20 per cent increase in catch, the West Prince lobster fishery this year shows a marked improvement over the 1958 fall season. This is a matter of satisfaction to all our citizens.

We are relieved to note, on checking with the Canadian Press, that the Royal Commission on railway matters is not meeting here on November 11, as stated in a news item yesterday, but on November 12. November 11 is, of course, Remembrance Day.

According to a despatch from London, an East-West summit conference is likely to be held either in November or early next year. Arrangements cannot be completed, however, until President Eisenhower exchanges further messages with leaders in Western Europe.

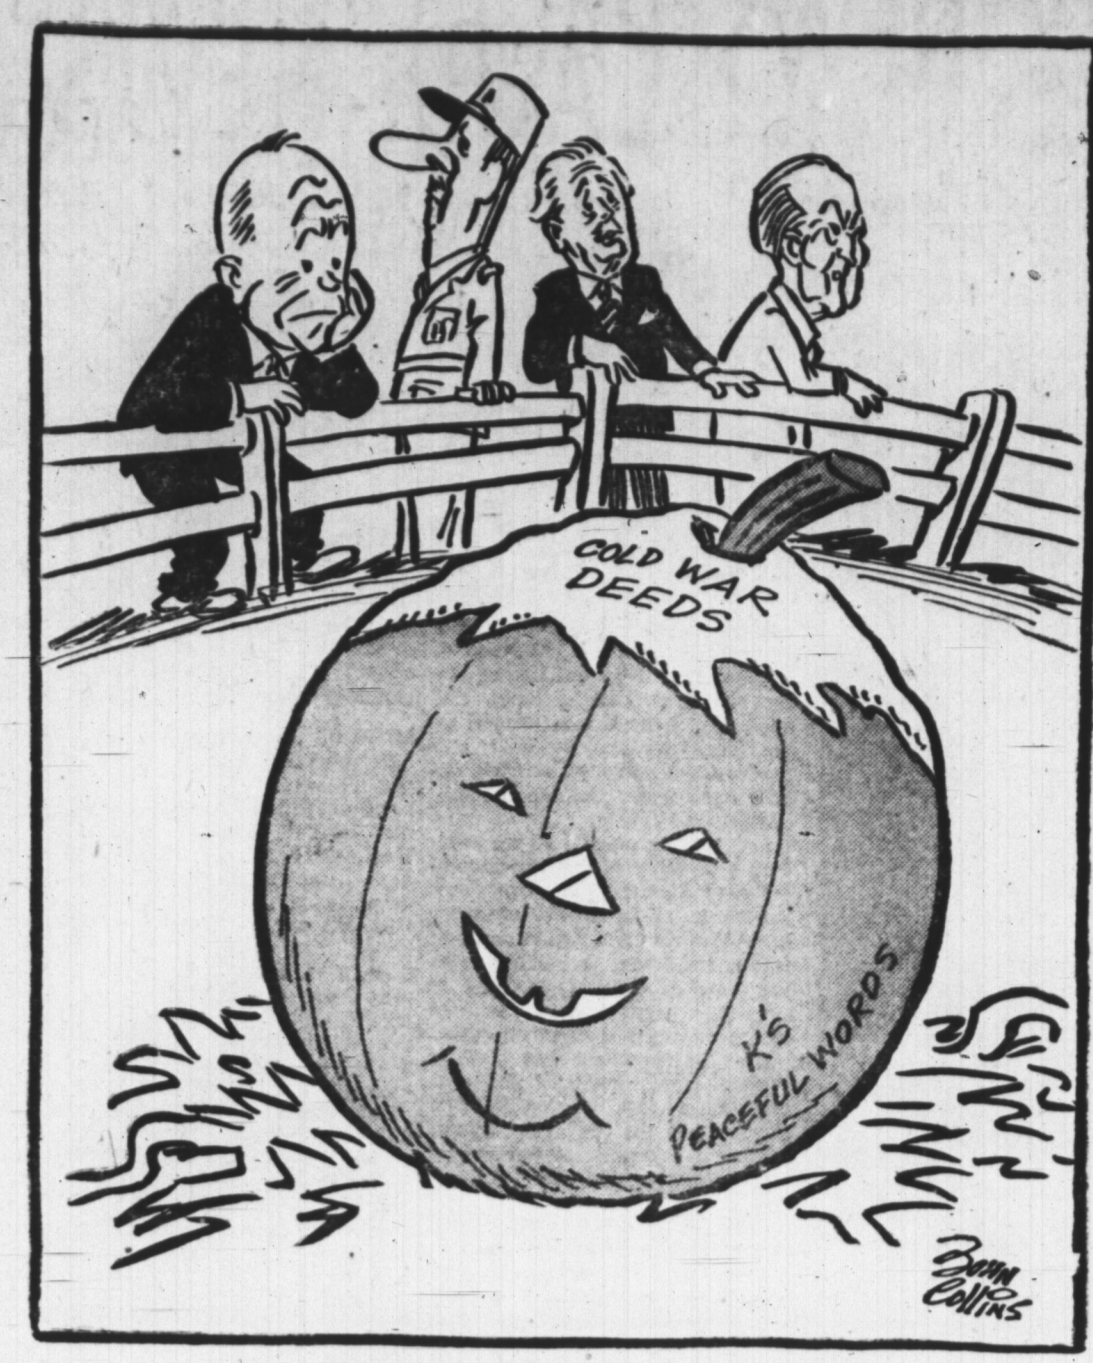

Our farmers here will appreciate the relief felt by apple growers in the Annapolis Valley when the hurricane Hannah, which was headed for the Nova Scotia mainland late last week, shifted suddenly eastward during the weekend. The shift saved the apple crop of some 2,100,000 bushels now being harvested—one of the best harvests in ten years.

Like a voice from the past is this tirade from a leading Laborite in the British election campaign. The Conservatives, he said, are "the party of jingoism and international anarchy, the party of out-of-date colonialism, the party of Cyprus and Suez, the party of privilege, the party of snobs and the servile and the stuffed shirt."

Aiding Forest Protection
In this Province, as elsewhere throughout Canada, a noteworthy development in the past few years has been the increased popularity of camping. One of the results of this could be the increased respect of people in general for the country's natural resources.

Convalescence from the current U.S. steel strike will be more painful than the strike itself, according to an industrial magazine. The strike that started July 15 has caused direct losses of over $3,343 million, with indirect losses estimated at $6,500 million.

In Ontario, officials of the Lands and Forests Department state that the records are improving every year. More people than ever before are using the facilities of nearly 100 provincial parks and are not only under closer supervision as a result, but are personally becoming aware of the fire danger. They are interested in seeing the forests preserved, and

OTTAWA REPORT Those Polish Treasures

By Patrick Nicholson
The Quebec Government. They are now in storage in the Quebec Provincial Museum on the Plains of Abraham.

LEFT AT OTTAWA
The treasures left in Ottawa were restored to Poland last January and returned to their original show-cases in Wawel Castle, but Premier Duplessis declined to return those which he held in Quebec. The late premier took the position that at least part of the collection was of a religious character and had been held in trust by the Roman Catholic Church of Poland.

HOSPITAL INSURANCE
Sir—Many who paid direct, for a year more or less, with the understanding that (e) Page 11 in the Hospital Insurance plan which reads: "Anyone may participate, regardless of age," etc. etc.—mean what it said, are now greatly disappointed to read from The Guardian of Sept. 30: "Patients suffering from infirmities of old age are not considered," etc. Is this fair? I am, Sir, etc.

FIRE CRACKER MENACE
Sir—At the request of a number of responsible citizens, I take this opportunity to write the following letter in reference to fire crackers. Owing to the widespread misuse of these items, it was found necessary to prohibit their being bought, sold or kept in any part of this Province. This was done by Fire Prevention Act, Order in Council, dated October 19, 1957 and amended on Aug. 2, 1951 and November 17, 1952. See also Royal Gazette, Vol. LXXVIII - No. 43, Charlottetown, P.E.I. Nov. 22, 1952. These regulations prohibit Toy Caps, Chinese Crackers, "Fire Crackers", Rockets and Salutes. The reason for this prohibition was the unsupervised use of fireworks by children and teenagers in such a way that they became a danger to the life and limb of the users themselves, to other citizens and to the destruction of property. Should any cynic feel that these dangers are overstressed, may we who have seen the results again draw attention to the fact, that these fire crackers are extremely dangerous, and their continued use, apart from being illegal, may cause unnecessary injuries.

SCIENCE STRESSED
To support his case, he put in to the record the final examinations given by the Russian 10-year school. Originally obtained by the U.S. Office of Education, the exam paper is crammed with such technical terminology as Bezuot's theorem, the Joule-Jenz law and Stolev's work on the photo-electric effect.

MAXIMS
He who gives advice to a self-conceited man stands himself in need of counsel from another.

through their organizations in this country have expressed wholehearted agreement. Quebec Premier Sauve has indicated his willingness to discuss the question with Bishop Cody and to submit it to his cabinet.

NO SHADOW OF CLAIM
Manifestly, neither Canada nor Quebec has a shadow of a claim to these landmarks on the highway of history which are of immense national and patriotic significance to the Polish people. They were brought to this country simply to prevent their being looted or destroyed by Hitler's invading armies. The fact that the Government of Poland is Communist does not in the least alter the inalienable title of ownership which rests with the Polish people.

By restoring the treasures which had been held in Ottawa to their original halls, Premier Gorbulka and his associates have evidenced complete good faith in the matter, and their return has been greeted with nationwide rejoicing. Let us hope that Premier Sauve and his cabinet colleagues will hearken to this latest appeal from both Canadian and Polish sources and will render unto Poland that which is Poland's.

Soviet High School Test

Try these on the teen-ager in your house:
Fourteen grams of calcium oxide were treated in a solution containing 35 grams of nitric acid. How many grams of salt were formed?
How long will it take to heat one litre of water from 20 degrees centigrade to 100 degrees in an electric teapot with a capacity of 600 watts, if its efficiency is 80 per cent.

REQUIRED SUBJECTS
Usually, the Soviet student is 17 years old when he takes the examination. He must pass in seven subjects: Russian language and literature, a foreign language, algebra, geometry, physics, chemistry and history.

Neither Admiral Rickover nor the committee provided the answers to the questions. But any high school graduate should be able to work out the correct solutions. Well, any college graduate, maybe.

Set Youngster On Right Path

By Herman N. Bundesen, M. D.
OUR CHILDREN too often have an unwholesome attitude about the facts of life. It's up to you parents to set your children straight on the moral as well as the physical aspects of the subject.

OTHER ISSUES
I've already advised what you should tell them about the physical changes they experience as they grow older. Now let's discuss the moral and social issues. Society justifiably dictates certain restraints. And the unwritten rules are just as important, just as valid, as are our official laws.

EXPLAIN REASONS
But you must explain the reasons behind these restrictions if you hope to do a thorough job of teaching your children the proper attitude toward sex. Marriage and family life, you must emphasize, are essential for preservation of society. They are perfectly natural states which almost everyone enters eventually.

STRESS RESPONSIBILITIES
Although sexual maturity is reached in the teens, you must explain that ordinarily marriage and mating at this time is undesirable. Tell them that, as parents will have responsibilities to their children and so generally it is advisable for them to postpone mating until they can provide for the well-being of children.

SYMPATHETIC ATTITUDE
If you or your spouse treats sex with fear or disgust, these same feelings are likely to affect your child. Therefore, you must base your relationship with your spouse on an understanding of his or her needs. You should have a sympathetic attitude. Just remember: your youngster looks to you for guidance—in everything.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
E. N. R.: Can you tell me if the ointments and suppositories advertised are of any value in cases of outward and bleeding piles. Answer: Most pile remedies may relieve pain and inflammation but do not cure the condition. You should see your doctor to determine whether your case requires injection treatment or an operation.

FARTHER FLIGHT
What we adventure now is not an end Nor a beginning, but a farther flight Than we have dared.

As long ago as memory can reach. We wandered: nomads, and abol- ishers Of barriers; As far as legends cast their shadows, we Have been extenders of horizons, Freedom-carriers. But we have never been aware of what We did till, looking back, we saw the print Of our enormous steps as we Emerge From limits, from illusions, from the sea To land, to air.

Now breaking through the bar- ricades of sound And gravity, we know Canaveral Will be, one day, To others, looking back, As Kitty Hawk to us.

How can a mere layman be expected to take modern art seriously when so often the "experts" don't understand it themselves? For instance, the other day at a showing of modern paintings in Sweden one of the artists represented turned up and huffily snatched one of his "paintings" from the wall. Turned out that it was really just a painted-smeared piece of cardboard which the artist had used as packing material when he sent in his work.—Calgary Albertan

The Rt. Rev. R.C. Trench (1807-'86), Protestant archbishop of Dublin, in his old age was in constant fear of paralysis. At a dinner party the lady whom he took into dinner heard him muttering to himself, "Come at last! Come at last! Total insensibility of the right limb." The lady relieved his mind by saying, "It may comfort you to learn that it is my leg you have been pinching!"—Irish Digest, Dublin

Thank You FOR PAYING YOUR CARRIER PROMPTLY

Collections by your Guardian carrier are timed to provide you convenient service and best meet his school and study schedules. He may begin collections Friday and continue them Saturday.

Your thoughtfulness in paying him the first time he calls to collect will encourage him in prompt service. It will save him extra work for which he would receive no additional profit. It will give him more time for school and other activities... and be greatly appreciated.
