LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.
No Ice at Souris.

SIR,—The following extract appeared in DAILY EXAMINER of the 30th ult;—
"Mr. Lord returned from Souris this morning, and reports the Straits full of ice and the Northern Light unable to move out.
The Patriot's statement that no ice was to be seen is to be explained by the fact that its informant was in a fog."

Mr. Editor, if the Mr. Lord referred to in the above is Mr. Artemas Lord, of the Marine Department, I am very much surprised, as I always considered him above suspicion. But whoever he was that reported that the Northern Light could not move out, reported falsely, and must be in worse than a fog, as there has not been as much ice here this winter as would impede the navigation of an Indian canoe. To-day, the 2nd of February, the Northern Light is lying at the wharf in clear open water, and although there is more scattered ice in sight to-day than there was at any time this winter, there is not anything that would obstruct a small boat. The water is clear as far as we can see from here, and we can see Cape George.
I am Sir, yours, etc.,
GABRIEL McDONALD.
Souris, Feb. 2, 1886.

Georgetown Notes.

A. M. Cunningham, Esq., of Halifax, is here at present. He is boarding at the Revere House.
Messrs. Forrest & Co.'s can makers are busy preparing cans for next summer's work. They have about three thousand cases made up.
That dreaded disease, smallpox, was in our midst again, but I think it is likely a thing of the past.

The editor of the Patriot appears quite sore about the Georgetown notes being bogus. He thought he had some good points abusing the N. P. Query:—Who is the most grieved about the joke?

Business is quite brisk here at present.
The High School is doing good work, under the able management of Ewen Stewart, Esq.

Mud digging is the order of the day here at present.
Mr. Philip Campbell saw a black fox on Bridenell ice yesterday.

ROBINSON CRUSOE.

Cardigan Bridge Notes.

Trade has been fairly good this winter, and many persons can daily be seen hauling limestone, timber and produce to and from this village.
Jas. E. Macdonald, Esq., is building a schooler for shipping cattle, etc. Mr. D.
S. McLaren is the foreman in charge, and we understand he has an interest in the vessel.
The stone cutting establishment of Wm.
P. Lewis, Esq., is constantly turning out choice specimens of headstones, monuments and other stone and marble work. The fact that orders from Souris, Georgetown, Montague and Charlottetown are filled at this establishment, shows that first class work is done.

The Farming Implement Factory of Mr.
James Smith, and the Carriage Factory of Mr. A. McKay, resound with the hum of industry, and good articles can be obtained, at reasonable prices, from these gentlemen.
Wm. Minto, Esq., has leased the store of Geo. F. Owen, Esq., and the latter has Mr. James Murphy fitting it up in first-class style. Mr. Minto intends opening about the 1st of April, and is bound to sell good and cheap merchandize.

With the many advantages possessed by Cardigan Bridge, as an outpost, property in this neighborhood is bound to advance.
Mr. A. McKay has joined the noble army of Benedictines. Another column of your paper, no doubt, will have the particulars.

The sympathy of the village was aroused by the news that Mrs. William P. Lewis had joined the great majority. An excellent neighbor, a kind mother, and a sympathizing friend has left this world, and many days will elapse ere the void created will be filled. Mrs. Lewis had been ailing for some time, but had not been over a week or so seriously ill. To her husband and family we respectfully tender our condolence and sympathy in their affliction.
Cardigan, Feb. 3, 1886.

A German farmer says he found that cows milked three times a day give much more milk than when milked only twice. But a farmer should not attempt six milkings a day with the expectation of doubling the quantity. The well might give out.

A California blacksmith is dangerously ill with glanders, contracted while shoeing a horse. And a Pennsylvania woman is suffering from a sprained ankle, contracted while "shooing" a hen. The Norristown Herald says there seems to be a fatality about this shooing business.

"I beg your pardon, sir; but is not your name Smith?" "No, sir, my name is Montrose." "Excuse me. My mistake."
"Certainly. Don't mention it. It's not very flattering to one's pride and self-respect," Mr. Montrose added with a smile, "to be classed among the great plebeian army of Smiths; but such mistakes will occur. Er—will you favor me with your name, sir?" "Yes. My name is Smith."

A CARD.—To all who are suffering from errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c.
I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America and sent self-addressed envelope to Rev. Joseph T. Inman, Station B, New York.

Moonshiners in Kent County.

A Chatham exchange contains the following: Information was received at Chatham some time ago that Crossman and Hickey, carriage builders at Buctouche, were operating an illicit still. Mr. Lawlor went down at once and searched the place, without finding anything. It is now known that the still was moved while the officer was on the way. Mr. Lawlor advised the parties to get a license, if they wished to engage in distilling, as they would be caught after a time. Crossman appears to have entered into negotiations with Buctouche parties to back him in the establishing of a licensed distillery, but without result. A few days ago Mr. Lawlor received another telegram from Buctouche in reference to the still, and proceeded there and made a thorough search of the suspected premises. The still was found in a cask loft of the carriage factory that could be reached only by ladders. Instead of a worm there was a copper tube running around under the eaves and finally descending to the cellar, where the spirit ran into a concealed receiver from which it was pumped as required. The whole machinery was most ingeniously contrived and concealed. The spirit was made from molasses, and flavored in imitation of whiskey, gin, etc. etc. The business has been going on a long time, and every liquor dealer in Kent is supposed to have been a customer of the still.
Hickey skipped out after making a hurried collecting tour, and Crossman, who appeared for trial and pleaded guilty, declines to implicate his customers. There is a good deal of talk about persons in official positions having long been aware of the existence of the still, if not sharers in its profits. Inspector Hanford, to whom Mr.
Lawlor handed the case, is prosecuting Crossman. The officers got on the track of only one lot of illicit liquor. They seized about twenty-five gallons at the Exchange Hotel, Richibucto.

Planets in February.

February does not fail to present objects of interest of lovers of the stars, says the Providence Journal. The three planets, Jupiter, Venus, and Saturn, play prominent parts on its starry records. Venus, after her superb career as evening star, disappears from the western sky, only to reappear before the month closes, "under the opening eyelids of the morn." Saturn is the meridian before 10 o'clock in the evening, when the month commences, and after that time is beautiful to behold as he pursues his westward course among the stars. Jupiter is superbly brilliant as he makes his advent in the eastern sky, about the time that Saturn reaches that meridian, rises majestically towards the zenith, and holds the sceptres of the skies as Saturn sinks out of sight. While Venus passes inferior conjunction, thus illustrating two important epochs in the movements of the inferior planets. The moon is not to be outdone by her superiors in the order of creation, and contributes her share to the entertainment of the month by occulting the planets Jupiter and Uranus, and the bright star Aldebaran for observers on some portions of the earth's surface. The February full moon will be lovely, as she "runs high" in the heavens, floods the frost-bound earth with silvery light, or casts blue shadows over its snow-covered landscape. Thus planets, moon and stars unite in furnishing material for those who watch the course of the wondrous orbs that darkness reveals to admiring eyes.
