MR. AND MRS. ALGER S. POLLARD

Double Ring Ceremony Is Held At Clyde River

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the Presbyterian manse, Clyde River, on Dec. 21 when Shirley Sellar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacDonald, Churchill, became the bride of Alger Stanwood Pollard, son of Mrs. Adella Pollard, Toronto, and the late Arthur Pollard New Haven.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Raymond Gillis.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length bouffant gown of white chantilly lace and net. The fitted bodice was styled with vee neckline and long tapered sleeves. The full hooped skirt of nylle illusion was shirred with chantilly lace ruffles. A sequined tiara held in place her shoulder length veil. She carried a bouquet of cascade red roses and white carnations.

The bride was attended by her sister - in - law, Mrs. Wendell MacDonald who wore a gold brocade gown with matching accessories and carried a nosegay of bronze and yellow mums.

Dalvay Pollard, brother of the groom was best man.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. MacDonald chose a brown dress with matching accessories, and a corsage of yellow carnations.

A reception was held at the Queen Hotel. The tables were decorated with bouquets of mums, and the bride's table centered with a three - tiered cake topped with a miniature bride and groom.

The toast to the bride was proposed by William Ball and was responded to by the groom.

A telegram was received from the groom's sister and read by the best man.

For travelling the bride chose a beige dress with fur jacket and matching accessories.

Prior to her marriage Miss MacDonald was guest of honor at several showers.

Mr. and Mrs. Pollard are residing in Charlottetown where the bride is employed at the Co-op Super Market and the groom is employed with Scott Bros.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Peter Scouts The Menu Decides 'Home's Best'

"Looks as though we may get some falling weather out of this" the younger farmer offered in the yard this afternoon, surveying the quiet sky and the reach of valley.

"Maybe rain" we suggested, feeling the wind, light and mild on a cheek. James smiled and shook his head.

"No, no rain, Ellen" he said. "I'm thinking the mild spell we've been having is now about over. I reckon it's snow that's ahead."

"Too bad" the younger farmer commented. "Now that what we had has settled so well."

"Oh, we may not get much" James offered, following the younger farmer off to the barns, and the stable - cleaning there.

After a period of idleness, due to winter - drifts here and there about, since diminished by the mild weather, and pleasing the farmers, the tractor is once more in service. Not that there were not in a way satisfied to use the horse and sleigh at the various haulings, but that the machine tends to speed up the work.

Although it is not a practice at Alderlea to have the younger children catch rides on the tractor, an exception was made this afternoon for Peter, when his mother accompanied him on an outing along the fields with his dad. What an enjoyable excursion that was for him, bringing a sparkle to his eyes and a blush of rose to his cheeks!

"Hey, did you read this?" Mack queries with a chuckle, from the couch. "Listen!"

"Farmer's little boy talking to his father after a bad crop year: 'Dad, what was your ambition when you were a little boy?'

"Farmer: 'To wear long pants, Son — and I've got my wish. If there's anybody who wears his pants longer than I do, I'd like to see him!' "

"And isn't that the truth of it!" Mack comments. "At the same time, I would guess that he doesn't much care."

This was the day we iron our clothes" — those pieces gathered in from the Monday wash.. A day too to sew, maybe to make some article of clothing for some little needy one, to finish off a sock, to prepare meals. And while waiting for James to come in from his chores to supper, to sit by a window, watching, though as it happened vainly, for the beacon - light of the evening star to appear.

What did we have for supper? Peter, a visitor then, and sometimes our guest at the meal, taking in the lie of the land, and not finding the dish of herring we were to have to his liking, reached for his jacket and cap.

"I think" he offered, "I'll go home for my supper. We're having — now I'm not sure what we're having at the first, but it's going to be apple pie and ice cream for dessert!"

A mild day, gently gray was ours today. One of winter. Yet, we noticed happily, the gloxinias, not long planted, were already showing their pretty velvety leaves, in promise of engaging bloom in the summer to come.

Until tomorrow — Diary — Good - night.....

Hospital Aid Prepares Annual Fashion Parade

The annual Spring Fashion Show sponsored by the Junior Ladies Aid of the P.E.I. Hospital has, after 17 years become a smooth, almost professional production.

Just as fashion designers and manufacturers work a season in advance, so too do the conveners and committees of this fashion show. As early as October, Aid members began organizing for their special Centennial Year effort.

An auxiliary Centennist committee was formed to prepare an historical sequence as a tribute to the provinces. Models have been selected to represent personalities from Canada's confederation history, and a whole century of costumes will be shown, complemented by Mrs. Eileen Woodruff's authentic period coiffures.

Clothes for the contemporary show, loaned by local firms, are carefully chosen to portray fashion trends as well as style and comfort. From the practical to the romantic, this is an all-inclusive production.

Anna Murnaghan and Mrs. Roger Perry are preparing and instructing the following models, Mrs. Andrew MacRae, Arlene MacDonald, Helen MacKenzie, Mrs. W.C. Ranahan, Mrs. Robert J. Murowski, Mrs. J.T. Davies Jr., Mrs. Lemuel E. Prowse, Mrs. R. Ivo Cudmore Betty Ching, Marilyn Best, and Eileen Hayter.

Children's clothes will be shown by the Saunders twins, Leslie and Laurie, Janet Cox, and Douglas Sear.

Modelling the centennial costumes are Connie Davies, Mrs. Sterling Beaton, Mrs. J. Harold Shaw, Margaret Collings, Mrs. D.H. Hill, Mrs. Frank MacKinnon, Mrs. William Thompson, Mrs. T.A. Laidlaw, Mrs. Charles Bentley, Miriam Hyde, Mrs. Burton Howatt, Mrs. J.K.L. Irwin, Mrs. T.D. DeBlois, Susan Roberts and Heather Armstrong.

Mrs. Alfred McNeill and Mrs. Walter Auld are co-conveners of the Centennial Parade of Fashions, which will be shown at the Charlottetown Hotel March 16, 17 and 18, at 6:00 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. each evening, with a luncheon show on Tuesday.

Ticket Conveners are, Mrs. Russell Ewing and Mrs. Robert Younker.

Other committee conveners are: Centennial committee, Mrs. Athol Roberts; centennial decorations Mrs. Ross Parker; commentary arrangement, Mrs. Louis Johnston; publicity, Mrs. Lloyd Cox, Jr., door prizes, Mrs. Harold Howatt; photography, Mrs. Ian Craig; make-up, Mrs. Hammond Kelly; music and decorations, Mrs. Douglas Cameron and Mrs. David Scales; children, Mrs. Clive Stewart; wardrobe, Mrs. David Jardine; clothes committee, Mrs. George Rogers, Jr.; program, Mrs. William Hambly assistant—Mrs. Hugh Simpson; national advertising, Mrs. Ronald Drysdale; backstage co-ordinator, Mrs. Donald MacKay.
