Ottawa Sources Speculate Balcer Seeks To Lead PCs

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — A prime topic of corridor discussion on Parliament Hill last week was whether Leon Balcer, former Conservative transport minister, is moving into contention for the party leadership.

Even Conservatives who say the 46-year-old Mr. Balcer is not their first choice for party leader seem to concede that he took a long stride in that direction with a speech in the Commons last Tuesday.

Mr. Balcer was his party's chief spokesman in explaining why the Conservatives would not vote for a non-confidence motion which had anti-nuclear arms aspects.

He reiterated that the Conservatives object to nuclear weapons in Canada. He said the Conservatives also are anxious to overthrow the minority Liberal government.

Why then would they not vote for a motion expressing non-confidence in the Liberal government for "subservient acceptance" of nuclear arms?

GIVES REASONS

Because, said Mr. Balcer, the motion also criticized the Liberals for accepting them for storage "within the territory of the state of Quebec."

That was separatist talk, he argued. It was illogical to propose a policy on nuclear arms that applied to Quebec and not the rest of the country.

The non - confidence motion, proposed by Creditiste Leader Real Caouette, ran counter to Canadian tradition and national unity. "In fact, it reveals an anti-constitutional attitude."

"This is not the way to build a country. . . .

"We have not been elected to bisect the country but rather to consolidate and favor mutual understanding not only between the two great races which form it but also between the different provinces.

"I am proud of being a French-Canadian . . . I am not here to legislate only in matters of interest to my province. I am here to take an interest in the affairs of the whole country.

"I know for a fact that the Province of Quebec will be strong and prosperous inasmuch as the whole of Canada is strong and prosperous, and vice versa."

ROUNDLY APPLAUDED

Mr. Balcer got an enthusiastic round of applause from his own members and from government benches, from Quebec MPs and from MPs of other provinces. His speech seemed a ringing call to national unity of a kind not often heard from Quebec.

But his words were not the sole spur to speculation within Conservative ranks about Mr. Balcer as leadership material.

Some Conservatives argue that it was Mr. Balcer who gave the party effective leadership in dealing with a question on which the party seemed to be caught on the horns of a dilemma.

Would vote against the motion be interpreted as a change in the party's opposition to nuclear weapons? Would a vote for the motion be interpreted in English Canada as destructive of national unity and a move toward separatism?

Fewer than 24 hours before Mr. Balcer spoke, a number of Conservatives expected that party leaders would vote in favor of the Creditiste non-confidence motion.

CHANGED MINDS

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker has said that as soon as he saw the motion he knew the Conservatives couldn't support it. Many of his members didn't hesitate to tell reporters before the vote that they could "never vote for the State of Quebec."

But a second group of Conservatives say it was Mr. Balcer who convinced the leaders to vote against the motion on grounds of national unity and national policy.

Where the truth lies may never to be known. But Mr. Balcer to many Conservatives was the right man, saying the right thing, at the right time. And that's enough to get him into the leadership stakes.

Mr. Balcer's stock in the party hasn't always been so high. After he opposed Mr. Diefenbaker for the leadership in 1956 he dropped from the forefront of party affairs.

ROSE RAPIDLY

Although he was the senior Conservative from Quebec when the party came to power in 1957, he was awarded a minor cabinet post as solicitor-general. He remained there until moving into the bigger job as transport minister after George Hees was shifted to the trade portfolio in 1960.

He kept out of trouble and gave creditable performances in both posts, inside and outside of Parliament. He was popular among his Quebec colleagues and equally popular among many of his colleagues from English Canada.

One Ontario Conservative who isn't a Balcer supporter in the leadership stakes expressed his view this way:

"I had many of our ministers campaign for me in my riding. But not one of them created as good an impression as Leon Balcer."

Record Summer Trade Boosts Trade Surplus

OTTAWA (CP) — Swelled by record summer trade, Canada's trade surplus at the end of September stood at $232,900,000 — more than triple the figure at the same stage last year.

Figures released today by the bureau of statistics showed the improvement results from expanding traditional overseas surpluses and trimming more than $100,000,000 off the big deficit with the United States.

Trade Minister Sharp has forecast a 1963 trade surplus of between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000.

Total exports in the January-September period were $5,000,400,000, an 8.2 per cent gain over the corresponding 1962 period.

Imports advanced less at 1.3 per cent to $4,767,500,000.

The end-of-September trade surplus last year was $74,800,000.

Canada's total trade—both imports and exports—in the third quarter, July to September, established a record as exports rose 9.9 per cent to $1,762,200,000 compared with the same quarter last year, and imports gained 6.9 per cent to $1,549,300,000.

Result was a third - quarter trade surplus of $111,000,000 against $59,000,000 for the same three months of 1962.

Trade figures for the first nine months, compared with the same period last year, in millions of dollars:

	1963	1062
Exports
United States	2,894.2	2,766.9
United Kingdom	750.1	667.7
Other Commonwealth	294.6	234.4
Others	1,061.5	952.5
Total	5,000.4	4,621.5
Imports
United States	3,273.8	3,256.7
United Kingdom	383.1	432.0
Other Commonwealth	276.4	230.1
Others	834.2	777.5
Total	4,767.5	4,696.3

EXPORTS RISE

Third-quarter exports to the United States rose 5.1 per cent to bring the nine-month total to $2,894,200,000, up 4.6 per cent.

Imports from the U.S., which had declined in the first half of the year, increased 4.6 per cent in the third quarter to reach $3,273,800,000 for the January-September period. But this still is only a fractional increase of 0.5 per cent over last year.

The long decline in imports from Britain began to level out.

Imports for the third quarter dropped 3.4 per cent to $137,200,000 but, because of sharper declines in the first and second quarters, the January-September total stood at $383,100,000 which is 11.3-per-cent lower than last year.

Exports to Britain, meanwhile, continued to rise. They rose in the third quarter by 14.1 per cent to $275,300,600 and in the nine-month period by 12.3 per cent to $750,100,000.

The trade surplus with Britain thus widened to $367,000,000 from $235,700,000 at the same point in 1962.

IMMIGRATION RISES

OTTAWA (CP)—Immigration to Canada in the first nine months of 1963 was up sharply from last year's same period, the immigration department reported Saturday. There were 69,344 arrivals compared with 56,586. Of these 19,122 were from Britain and 10,315 from Italy.

BUY WHEAT

TOKYO (Reuters)—The Japanese food agency announced Monday Japan and Canada have signed a formal contract for the sale to Japan of 800,000 tons of Canadian wheat. The wheat will be bought by Japan at a price lower than the prevailing international quotation during an eight-month period from next month. The contracted price was $1.96¾ a bushel.

Opening lead — four of spades.

It stands to reason that a player should never subject himself to a guess, and thus create an opportunity of making a mistake, if there is a way of avoiding such a situation. The principle is self-evident, but its application depends in part on recognizing that the situation exists.

Here is a typical case. West leads a spade against three no-trump and East plays the king. It is only the first trick, but the fate of the hand depends largely on South's play to this trick.

If South plays the nine, he is sure to make the contract, as the cards lie. But if he takes the king with the ace, he will have to make a good guess later to make the hand.

Let's first see what happens if South wins the king with the ace. He can cash four clubs if he wants to, but he will then have to choose whether to play a heart or a diamond next.

If he guesses wrong and plays a heart, East grabs the ace and returns a spade. West's spades thus become established, and, since he has the ace of diamonds for an entry, declarer makes only eight tricks and goes down one. If South had guessed to lead a diamond instead of a heart, he would have made the contract.

Now let's see what happens if South ducks the king of spades, as he should. East can do no better than return a spade, which declarer takes with the queen.

South no longer has to guess whether to play hearts or diamonds first. He cannot go wrong either way. Suppose he tackles hearts first. East takes the ace, but, since he has no spade to return — as a result of the holding at trick one — he can do nothing constructive and South makes four notrump.

The same result accrues if South tackles diamonds first. West can take the ace and establish his spades, but he is then out of the picture because his entry card is gone.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
