SAFE SOOTHING SATISFYING

Originated by an Old Family Physician in 1810.

You can safely trust what time has indorsed for nearly a century.

There is not a medicine in use today which possesses the confidence of the public to so great an extent as Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. For more than eighty years it has stood upon its own intrinsic merit, while generation after generation have used it. The best evidence of its value is the fact that in the state where it originated the sale of it is steadily increasing.

Johnson's Anodyne Liniment

I. S. JOHNSON, ESQ. My Dear Sir:—Fifty years ago this month, your father, Dr. Johnson, called at my store and left me some Johnson's Anodyne Liniment on sale. I have sold it ever since. I can most truly say that it has maintained its high standard and popularity from that time to this. JOHN B. RAND, North Waterford, Maine, Jan., 1891.

"Best Liver Pill Made."

Parsons' Pills

Positively cure Biliousness and Sick Headache, liver and bowel complaints. They expel all impurities from the blood. Delicate women find relief from using them. Price 25c; five $1. Sold everywhere.

This certifies that Dr. A. Johnson, whose name is signed to every genuine bottle of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, in the month of Jan. 1849, first left at my store some of the same I have supplied my customers with it ever since, (over fifty years) with increasing sales. Do Flies Talk?

An ingenious inquirer, armed with a microphone, or sound magnifier, has been listening patiently through long hours to the curious noises made by house flies, and reports his belief that they have a language of their own.

The language does not consist of the buzzing sound we ordinarily hear, which is made by the rapid vibration of their tiny wings in the air, but of a smaller, finer and more widely modulated series of sounds, audible to the human ear only by the aid of the microphone.

Probably this fly is perfectly audible to the fly ears, which, as every schoolboy knows who has tried to move his hand slowly upon them, are very acute.

The hope is expressed that, since the heretofore inaudible whispers of flies have been detected and recorded, some inventor may construct a microphone which will enable us to make out the language of the microbes, and so surprise them in the horrible secret of their mode of operation.

Early Exercise for Growing Boys.

I have noticed a tendency to permit children to sit up much later than is good for them, the natural result being a too prevalent fondness for the bed in the morning. If a boy wants to keep himself in prime condition, to grow up strong and vigorous, let him get up in the morning long enough before breakfast to have first ten minutes of brisk work with a pair of light wooden dumbbells, then his cold bath, and afterwards a sharp walk of fifteen minutes. Any boy who will follow this plan will discover before many weeks that he is easily superior to his classmates in almost any athletic work he undertakes, while headaches and other ills too common to growing lads will be unknown to him.—Harper's Bazar.

A Surprised Guardsman.

A French paper tells the story of a lady who entered one of the cars of a train holding in her arms a dog. This was against the rules. Dogs must be paid for if they travel on trains in France. The trainman announced:—

"Dogs must be paid for."

"Not mine," said the lady.

"No exception can be made, Madam."

"I always carry it in England."

"You cannot in France. You must give up the dog and pay."

"I will not pay. Can I leave the dog?"

The guard held out his hand and took the dog; it was stuffed!"

Shameful Poverty.

"Mamma," said little Helen one day on returning form school, "some little girls asked me to-day if I had any little brothers and sisters, and I just ran away without saying anything."

"Why did you do that, dear? Why didn't you say no?"

"Because, mamma, I was too ashamed to tell them that we were so poor that I was the only little baby we had ever had at our house."

THE "BIG" FOUR

A Quartette of Remedies that are Effecting Wonderful Cures.

"I was sick for three years," says James Simpson, of Newcomb Mills. "I tried various alleged patent cures and several boxes of a certain pill which has been greatly cracked up. I got no relief. Then I tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since I have been able to work every day and feel like a new man. Your pills alone cured me at a cost of 25c."

"I have been subject to severe colds every fall and spring," says Miss Hattie Delaney, of 174 Crawford street, Toronto. "I used many cough medicines, but none cured me until at a cost of 25 cents I tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine."

"My husband was troubled with the worst kind of piles," writes Mrs. Jane Potts, of Meyersburg. "He was often unable to work. Since using your Chase's Ointment he is completely cured. It is truly worth its weight in gold instead of the price you charge, only 60 cents."

"I bought a box of your Catarrh Cure for 25 cents at Mr. Boyle's drug store here," says Henry R. Nicholls of 176 Rectory street, London, Ont. "I am thankful to say it cured me."

THE RABBIT PEST.

They Have Been Trying for Years to Dispose of the Plague In Australia.

Some years ago the Government of New South Wales offered a reward of £25,000 to anyone who suggested a really efficient method of getting rid of the rabbits. This offer stood open for several years, and more than 2,000 schemes were offered, coming from all parts of the world. Many were tried, but none was found to be wholly satisfactory, and finally the offer was withdrawn, and the Australians tried to make up their minds to the inevitable permanence of the pest. Ferrets, stoats, and weasels were imported and bred in thousands, and they have done good work. Poisons of all sorts were tried with but little success. Cats were introduced, and they also did good service. But the rabbits multiply at such an astounding rate that they have much more than held their own and have spread into new regions, destroying a large proportion of all crops wherever they have penetrated.

Directly and indirectly South Australia loses fully £500,000 a year from rabbits. The Government of Victoria has been working hard since 1880 trying to keep down the plague, and has spent more than £300,000 in the work. The amount of money spent by farmers and their landowners is incalculable. One man, owning a large estate, has spent £15,000 in the past few years fighting rabbits. The Government estimates that no less than 37,750,000 acres of land, farming and grazing, in the Colony of Victoria, is infested with rabbits.

Many schemes have been offered for making use of the rabbits commercially, and thus recouping at least a little of the loss they cause. Many thousands are killed and their skins used, and something of a trade has been built up in the shipment of rabbits to England and elsewhere for food, either canned or frozen. But the world can't live on rabbit meat, and it would need to in order to afford the Australians a profitable way of making use of their rabbits. The skins are largely used for many purposes. One concern in Victoria uses 374,000 rabbit skins every year, and in the last seventeen years about 68,000,000 skins have been exported from Victoria.

A Boys' Republic.

At length Mr. George's experience had prepared him for the evolution of the complete idea of his miniature republic; and his young commonwealth—destined, as I believe, to take its honorable place in the history of education—was duly launched last summer with a membership of about 200 children, who remained in the camp for a period of two months. This republic is not for the smallest children, and the average age is perhaps about 15, the limits being from 12 to 17. The keynote of the plan introduced by Mr. George is perfect liberty, under a reign of self-imposed law. When he is asked how he makes the Junior Republic work, Mr. George replies that he does not try to make it work, that the boys and girls do that for themselves; that he does not impose any laws, because his republic is not a monarchy; and that the laws of the republic are made by its congress, composed of representative citizens. Of course Mr. George has provided at the outset a certain general framework for the guidance of his little community. The constitution of the United States, and our familiar everyday institutions, supply the model on which the miniature republic at Freeville proceeds to work out its destinies.—From "Vacation Camps and Boys' Republics," by Albert Shaw, in May Review of Reviews.

Not a Corner Drug Store.

The pharmacy of Karl J. Ferrein of Moscow, Russia, is the largest in the world. As many as 1,200 prescriptions are put up in a day. The dispensing is done in a glass-domed room, where twenty-four or more assistants are employed, and a clerical and apprentice force nearly as numerous gives a portion of its time to the reception, entering, and delivery of the goods ordered and prepared.

If poisonous ingredients enter into the composition of a medicine to be prepared, the checking of weights is done by a weigher specially appointed for that purpose. Two hundred and ninety-three men and boys find employment in the retail and wholesale departments of the establishment. The average number of prescriptions is not far from 300,000 annually. The founder died in 1887, but his two sons perpetuate their father's name and methods of business.

Where "Vanity Fair" Was Written.

In 1847 Thackeray went to live in Young street, and once pointing out the bow windowed cottage to an inquiring friend is said to have remarked, "Go down on your knees, you rogue, for here 'Vanity Fair' was penned, and I will go down with you, for I have a high opinion of that little production myself." Here he also wrote "Esmond," and one of the houses close by in Kensington square has been chosen as the home of Lady Castlewood and Beatrice.

In 1862 Thackeray removed from Onslow square, where "The Newcomes" and "The Virginians" had been composed, to the house he had built himself in Palace green, still remaining in the old court suburb, with its leaf trees and gardens, to which he was so much attached. Here it was that the completion of "Denis Duval" was cut short by his lamented death in the following year.—Chambers' Journal.

A WONDERFUL PHOTOGRAPH.

Shows Us With Delightful Realism a Father Feeding His Child.

The new system of multiple photography, whereby a great number of impressions of the same person or objects are taken in a moment or so of time, exhibits life to us in a very natural and realistic manner.

This is one of the most interesting features of this wonderful invention, for the old fashioned photograph represented human nature in the most unnatural manner possible.

It is notoriously difficult to look pleasant when sitting for a photograph. The subjects of instantaneous multiple photography do not have the same difficulties, for they are either ignorant of what is going on or they are not required to pose.

A more pleasant example of a multiple photograph could hardly be found than the one which is reproduced in the Sunday Journal. It shows us a father feeding his little child, whose mother, seated on the other side of the child, looks smilingly on.

It is a delightful little scene of domestic happiness. It is a photograph that touches the heart. When such results as this can be produced by one of the wonders of modern science, we must not accuse that science of being neglectful of the beauties of life.

The father is evidently a man of the poor class, otherwise he would not be photographed in his shirt sleeves, and in the act of feeding his child. But this conduct is what endears him to us. The man who can take such evident pleasure in the simple but worthy act of feeding his little child must be truly happy, and the sight of happiness is grateful to all rightly constituted persons.

By means of this wonderful photograph you may follow this gentle action from its inception to its conclusion. You see not only the raising of the spoon, with the food, and the gradual turning of the man's head as he brings the spoon near the child's mouth, but also the tenderness which accompanies the action. The youngster looks up happy and smiling, and the mother is equally so.

The photograph is a fine study for a lover of human nature.

A "Riley" Entertainment.

A "Riley" party was recently held by one of our church charity organizations. It proved a decidedly unique affair and quite a profitable one also. The decorations of the church parlors consisted mainly of paper, which was most artistically entwined about pillar, post and picture. A large picture of James Whitcomb Riley was placed upon the wall facing the entrance, and over it in pasteboard letters,

"When the frost is on the pumpkin,
And the fodder's in the shock."

Almost all the young people who had gotten up the entertainment were dressed to represent Riley's characters, and several of the most important presided over the booths. At one, which was literally covered with paper flowers, "Lizabeth Ann, she can cook best things to eat," sold cakes and pies. At another Riley's poems and photographs were sold, and at still another "The raggedy man! He works for pa," knocked down apples from an improvised apple tree as fast as he could sell them. And among the purchasers were "Little Orphant Annie," "Granny's come to our house," "The fishing party," "Max and Jim," "Pa and ma and me, all three," and many others.

While all were busy buying and tasting the good things,

"The old band' marched in—
And stylisher and grander tunes; but Somehow—anyway
I want to hear the old band play
Sich tunes as 'John Brown's body' and 'Sweet Alice,' don't you know?
And 'The camels is a-comin'' and 'John Anderson, my Jo.'"

And the impromptu band played them. Later in the evening some of the Riley poems were recited.—Ladies' Home Journal.

That

Extreme tired feeling afflicts nearly everybody at this season. The hustlers cease to push, the tireless grow weary, the energetic become enervated. You know just what we mean. Some men and women endeavor temporarily to overcome that

Tired

Feeling by great force of will. But this is unsafe, as it pulls powerfully upon the nervous system, which will not long stand such strain. Too many people "work on their nerves," and the result is seen in unfortunate wrecks marked "nervous prostration," in every direction. That tired

Feeling is a positive proof of thin, weak, impure blood; for, if the blood is rich, red, vitalized and vigorous, it imparts life and energy to every nerve, organ and tissue of the body. The necessity of taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for that tired feeling is, therefore, apparent to every one, and the good it will do you is equally beyond question. Remember that
