The author, Alexander Campbell, who wrote "Daughter of Exile," has achieved a romantic serial which is refreshingly different from most love stories. The theme is handled with a certain lightness of touch, but without relaxing the grip which a good romance always exercises upon those who delight in a fine piece of fiction.

Here an interesting group of characters are seen against some unfamiliar backgrounds, and the situations and thrills have a freshness that is in harmony with the dominant note of originality.

CAPE TRAVERSE ROUTE URGED AT MEETING

A large gathering of the residents of Cape Traverse, Carleton and Augustine Cove assembled in the Cape Traverse Hall Thursday evening to discuss the road paving of the Charlottetown-Borden highway as it affects these communities. After appointing several committees and considerable discussion the meeting adjourned to meet again on Tuesday evening, August 8th when it is expected that representatives of the government, Charlottetown City Council and Board of Trade will be present. This meeting it was emphasized is non-political and without prejudice to the proposed paved highway between Tryon and Trueman's Cove.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved: That we, the residents of Carleton, Cape Traverse, Augustine Cove, and Tryon West, here assembled, go on record as urging the paving of the road between Carleton and Tryon via Cape Traverse as part of the Borden-Charlottetown Highway.

Further Resolved: That we voice our disapproval of the proposed link between Albany and Carleton, believing the best interests of the province would not be served by such expenditure.

Further Resolved: That the representatives of the government be invited to attend a public meeting to be held in Cape Traverse Hall, Tuesday evening, August 8th, and the Charlottetown Board of Trade and City Council be invited to send representatives to this meeting.

FILM STAR IN HOSPITAL

"She's okay," said Clark Gable to friends who telephoned today at a hospital to ask about his wife, Carole Lombard. Miss Lombard, who for two days was taken to the hospital late last night for an emergency operation.

Strange Engagement

Parted Lovers' Unromantic Pact

DOROTHY ELLINGTON, daughter of Leonard Ellington, an authority on the origin of man, shed not a tear when her betrothed, Rupert Featherstone, was sent to South Africa for two years, to conduct certain investigations for the girl's father, into the remains of pre-historic creatures.

The father was prepared to agree to immediate marriage, but the lovers seemed content to wait until the two years were over.

There were no tears at parting, and, most extraordinary of all, each destroyed all photographs of the other before Rupert left, relying, they said, on "mental images."

Such was the girl whom Frank Carter—villain, romantic and impetuous—had as companion on the boat in which he was travelling to South Africa to take part in a great speed contest. The two years were up and Dorothy was still minded to marry Rupert, who celebrated his fiancée's arrival by finding the jaw-bone of an ape-man.

On discovering this astonishing attitude to love in a girl so attractive, Frank took upon himself the task of "humanising" her.

To reveal the results of Frank's attempt, and the ultimate meeting between Dorothy and Rupert, would be to anticipate one of the many delightful aspects of the Guardian's new serial story "RACING DRIVER" the first instalment of which is to appear in a few days.

Pimlico Special "Dream Race" Now Mooted

BALTIMORE, Aug. 4.—(A P)—Talk was in the wind tonight of a Pimlico special "dream race" that might settle not only the Johnstown-Chalcedon feud but also the issue between the east's and the west's favorite horses.

The Maryland, Jockey Club, which staged the famous Seabiscuit-War Admiral duel at Pimlico last year, has not yet arranged a special for this fall's meeting, but turfmen hereabouts are discussing the possibilities of a five-horse, invitation race.

Interest was whetted today when the club announced it had received word from Charles S. Howard, California sportsman whose "Biscuit" whipped the Admiral, that his speedy Argentine importation, Kayak 2nd, would be available if another special develops.

Others mentioned as likely to be invited to compete in the Pimlico Special are William Woodward's Kentucky Derby winner, Johnstown; W. L. Brann's Preakness winner, Chalcedon; Millsdale Stable's Sun Lover, which ran second to Chalcedon in the Arlington classic; and T. B. Martin's Cravat, which ran next to Kayak 2nd in the Hollywood Gold Cup.

Simmerings Around The Sport Front

By ALAN RANDAL Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The word from Saratoga Springs is that Bob Pastor is the guy to follow if you want to bet the right way. The horses are bringing him more money than he's making in admissions in his nearby training camp for two days.

There the crowd is noble for chief introduces him in his work-outs for a bout with Joe Louis as "the next world's heavyweight champion" to the same old light camp champion, Conny Smythe, the "Little Corporal" of Toronto's hockey Maple Leafs, is doing right well for himself at the Spa.

Promoter Mike Jacobs has extended his fistie empire to Boston. He has arranged to stage a series of fights in the Garden of Newark comes up with an offer of $20,000 for Henry Armstrong to put his waltz wraith on the line against Freddie Cochrane of Boston N.J. late in October. Chicken feed, eh Henry?

Along Broadway the feeling is that Rex and Yankee are against good pitching, are just another club trying to get along. That's the way they looked against Detroit and last week Ed Smith of Chicago to White Sox, as though they look none too good. As the AP's Whitney Martin puts it, a clever pitcher can make the Yanks look like Mother Hubbard.

Sixto Escobar, who wears the bantamweight fight crown, reports that by Oct. 2 he'll be ready to meet any outstanding challenger for a flat guarantee of $10,000.

Baseball Brief: Pete Gray was one-armed but even at that he was a sensation in the outfield. So he left his home in Nanticoke, Pa., to play with the Bay Parkways in the Metropolitan Baseball League... and play he did, catching screaming liners and batting eight for 10 in a doubleheader. But he found Gotham a small town, smaller than Nanticoke. Furthermore, nobody in Gotham played pool or poker like his pals in Nanticoke. So though the Parkways offered him two raises, he went back to Nanticoke, the really small town where they play big time pool and where a ball game means two bucks instead of the $70 or $80 a week the Parkways paid. Now there's a guy who knows what he wants, at least.

TORONTO, Aug. 4.—(CP)—Another day of price trimming on the Toronto stock market, in harmony with New York weakness, was accompanied by a sharp decline in volume to 366,000 shares, the smallest of the week and about 20,000 shares under the turnover in Thursday's session. Base metal shares led the decline showing a set-back of a full point in the index, while the gold shares lost 32, industrials 49 and the west-ern oils 08.

Tyrolese Baffled as Hitler Blandly Ignores Their Plight

Some 300,000 German-speaking people living in the South Tyrol were transferred, by the Treaty of St. Germain signed in 1919, from Austria to Italian sovereignty. But they remained, spiritually, a Germanic people. Now Fascist Italy has decided to solve this "minority" problem by compelling the Tyrolese to leave their homeland within three months to two years and "return" to Germany.

A background of life in this unhappy land is sketched in the article below by Alice Rohe, American woman journalist who knows the South Tyrol intimately and visited there only recently.

(BY ALICE ROHE)

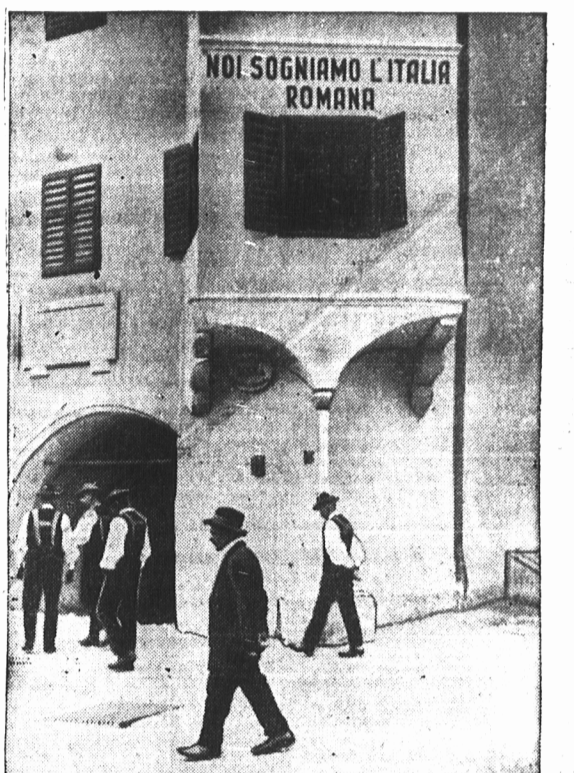

(Written for NEA Service)

The writing on the wall throughout South Tyrol gives a touch of ironic humor to the tragic tale being written in that beautiful, unhappy land.

"WE DREAM OF A ROMAN ITALY" runs the Italian legend over the entrance to the municipal building of Scena.

The German speaking farmers can't read a word of it.

Today, however, that handwriting on the wall is all too clear

German-speaking South Tyrolese natives, most of them ignorant of the Italian language, pass beneath sign in Scena which reads—in Italian—"We Dream of a Roman Italy."

A Typical Farm house in the South Tyrol.

to them. The dream has come true as a nightmare to these home-loving people who, up to the time they were presented to Italy by the post-World War "peace arbiters" lived in peace and industry under their model, efficient communal form of autonomous government.

One by one the natives throughout South Tyrol have seen their own religious mottoes effaced from their gayly frescoed houses. The sayings of Christ and of Prophet gave way to the mottoes of Mussolini: "My country is this: To make the Italian people strong, great, prosperous, free." "One faith, love of country; one desire, to make the Italian people great." Etc.

read these Italian writings on the wall. As a little girl said to me: "Es ist sehr schwer für meine Eltern." (It's very hard for my parents.) She whispered, for the non-German speaking Fascist post-detta appeared in the window and glared suspiciously over the Sunday through.

In the beautiful homeland which their German ancestors settled over 1300 years ago, a Germanic language has been used, except in Trent, the ancient Roman Tridentum. The South Tyrolese concern themselves with their simple beliefs in religion, liberty, industry. Until Fascist degermanization began they thought of themselves only as Tyrolese—a people apart, Time was, even in the first two years of Italian occupation, when Sunday morning reunions were gay and picturesque affairs. This was the one day when the plous farmers and their wives could leave their toil. They came from near and distant mountain homes to attend mass and transact business.

When church was over the little square was bright with colored kerchiefs and full skirts of the women the brilliant coats and suspenders of the men whose flower or feather-bedecked hats proclaimed their martial state. (The married men wear green hats, the bachelors wear red.) A little courting among the young folk, a little gossip among the women as the men visited the rathaus to settle some business. Then they paired to the gayly frescoed Gasthaus to sing an old folk song over a glass of wine or beer, before departing for mountain homes and another week of toil.

Today there is no music, for even if bewilderment and threatened exile did not sadden them, the South Tyrolese are forbidden to sing a German song under penalty of arrest.

Hitler Looks the Other Way

No wonder why they are bewildered that Adolf Hitler, with his crusader's credo to save every drop of German blood and Kultur from alien oppression, is peevish when reminded of their unhappy plight.

Yet in South Tyrol the eradication of German culture and blood symbolizes Der Fuehrer's whole and "holy" cause. That he can dismiss reference to them as a plot to stir up trouble between him and his Berlin-Rome axis pal is incomprehensible to these honest Tyrolese.

And today, as they face betrayal and exile from their beloved mountains, they recall the assurances of the Italian military governor, Pecora-Geraldi: "The Italian state, founded on the principles of liberty and justice, knows how to treat with equity and love those of its citizens who speak a language different from its own. . . we guarantee German schools and every liberty will be left."

These words, uttered less than 20 years ago, echo ironically as Tyrolese wonder what the future holds for them.

buying in the afternoon lifted the price back to 2.20 before the close for a net loss of 5 cents.

The recently active junior golds drifted lower under light profit-taking. Francoeur was an exception. It opened at 63 and closed at 63 1/2 for a net gain of 2 cents.

God's Lake, Arntfield, Bankfield, Brouhan, Sladen and Naybob eased off 1/2 to 3 cents.

International Nickel dropped back 3-4 to 49 1-4 and small fractions were lost by Noranda and Smelters. The close was down the cheaper base metals, including Walte-Amulet, Pend Orelle, Sherritt and Aldermac.

Bell Telephone weakened a full point, International Metal "A" preferred 2 1-2 McColl pld 1 1-2 and Steel of Canada pld 1 1-2.

These words, uttered less than 20 years ago, echo ironically as Tyrolese wonder what the future holds for them.
