Souvenir Photographs

Advance orders for photographs of our P. E. Island Transvaal contingent have at last been all filled. Now is the time for those who did not leave orders to obtain these interesting souvenirs.

Everyone should have one. The boys will soon be at the front. They'll probably see considerable fighting, and when they come won't they be heroes. All the stories they will have to tell.

The photos are in two sizes. Both are clear and sharp. One is mounted on a card 14 x 17 inches and makes a splendid picture for framing. The price is $1.00

The other is mounted on a card about 7 x 9 inches—just the thing for the mantelpiece. The price is 35 cents. It will be mailed, post paid to any address.

The day before he left Charlottetown Rev. T. F. Fullerton, the noble chaplain who left home and all its environments to look after the spiritual welfare of the boys sat for a photograph. An excellent likeness was the result. This photograph may be had in three different sizes. Price 30, 40 and 45 cents. Either will be mailed to any address postpaid.

All of the photographs were taken and are being finished by Westlake Bros, Charlottetown. In Charlottetown the photos may be had at THE EXAMINER office, or at Johnson & Johnson's downtown drugstore.

THE DAILY EXAMINER

NOVEMBER 24, 1899.

AN HONEST PROHIBITIONIST.

Some of the apparently most enthusiastic advocates of prohibition during the plebiscite campaign were prominent in paying their homage to Sir Louis Davies during his recent visit to the province. Some of these same gentlemen are busy canvassing for Messrs. Irving and McKinnon, and appearing on public platforms in their interest, notwithstanding the fact that these candidates are supporting an administration which struck a deadly blow at prohibitive legislation by passing a License Act. The actions of these persons throws great doubt on their sincerity as regards prohibition. As far as they are concerned, their object, in the light of their present action, was simply to press for a plebiscite so that they would be in a position to harass the Conservative Government which they thought would be in power when the popular vote would be ascertained. There never was a more thorough piece of humbug than the Laurier plebiscite. The expressed will of the people was to be ascertained, and the party pledged itself to abide by the decision. There never was a hint given beforehand that a clear majority of the names on the voters' list must vote for prohibition in order to entitle the verdict to be made law. A strong appeal was made to the temperance men to support Laurier, because he had taken his life in his hands in the interests of prohibition.

At a meeting held recently, in the basement of the Baptist Church, Halifax, to discuss the political aspects of prohibition with reference to the plebiscite and the approaching election, John T. Bulmer, Esq., a supporter of Laurier in 1896, uttered sentiments which present a creditable contrast to the cringing, time-serving conduct of some of our prohibitionists in P. E. Island. He described the action of Sir Wilfrid as "the great treason," and dealt most effectually with the plea he made in parliament last session as to his recalcancy on this question. Sir Wilfrid said:

"There was not a man living who expected at the time the plebiscite was taken that the duty would be imposed on the Government of introducing a prohibitory measure unless, at least, one half of the electorate recorded their vote in favour of that policy."

In reply to the above excuse Mr. Bulmer presented a bit of interesting history as to temperance legislation. In 1881 Mr. Boulton, M. P. for East York, introduced a bill in Parliament to amend the Scott Act by providing that the Act should not go into force in any place unless a majority of the voters on the list voted for its adoption. This is precisely the principle that Sir Wilfrid Laurier applies to prohibition to-day. Here are what leading Liberals said about the Boulton amendment:

The Hon. Edward Blake said:
"A majority of the registered voters is a thing under our present system practically unattainable, and therefore you are practically, if this bill passes, placing a barrier, not to be passed over, to the operation of the law."
The conclusion I draw is, that experience in this country has established that you cannot, no matter how strong the sentiment, get out under our present system a majority of the registered voters; and therefore the member for East York (Mr. Boulton) is proposing, not a means by which this law can be enforced where there is a strong demand for it, but a means by which it can never be placed in operation."

The Hon. George Ross, now Premier of Ontario said:

"Is it common honesty? (meaning the bill) If my hon. friend can point me a clause in the Temperance Act of 1878 that has the stamp of dishonesty as clearly on its face as the simple statement in his own bill, I will abandon the act altogether. Would it not be an outrage on common decency for parliament to place on the statutes a bill by which living man would have no more weight than a dead man."

The Hon. David Mills, now Minister of Justice, said:

"Now hon. gentlemen have assumed that those who fail to vote in favor of temperance legislation are opposed to legislation of that sort. Now I do not believe that that assumption is well founded. In my opinion the great majority of those who fail to record their votes are perfectly indifferent. They are willing that the experiment shall be tried if a majority of those who vote favor it and they are willing to permit licenses to be granted if a majority take that particular view. They neither throw their influence in favor of prohibitory legislation nor do they throw their influence against it."

Mr. Bulmer went on to show that Laurier voted to reject the Boulton amendment and that every temperance man in the House joined in condemning the infamous proposition to have the vote on the Scott Act taken on a majority of the registered vote. They, one and all, mercilessly condemned it, ridiculed it and showed that the same principle, applied to the election of members, would leave the House of Commons without a quorum. Mr. Bulmer wound up his eloquent and manly speech by saying that:

"The prohibitionists of this country know what it is to have their eyes plucked out by those whom they took to be their friends, and to-day like blind Samsons, we are toiling in the Philistine mill—defeated, broken, disappointed and cast down, and if we do not defeat every man supporting the present government the word prohibition will not be mentioned at Ottawa for the next fifty years."

—A correspondent writes: "The Liberals of King's are not a happy family. They recognize that the nomination made under his own presidency at Dundas of their candidate for the Federal House is weak as water, and that there are several sore heads among the bell-wethers of their flock. On Saturday last, under Sir Louis' august protection, they met again in a hole and corner way in Georgetown to fix up matters. About half a dozen supervisors and the Dundas nominee were all that materialized. The session was held with closed doors, and a general cementing of the party was the burden of their song. Some of the supervisors said to their Conservative friends: 'We had to go, but we know the game is up for our man.' The candidate humbly informed some Conservatives also that he was 'merely arranging for another meeting to let Dr. Robertson down easily.' The doctor, it appears, is not in a humor to be patronized by a flinging in Liberalism like the Dundas candidate. Even Sir Louis' smile can't fetch him."

—Mr. Rufus Pope says that he has never seen the Conservative party in the Eastern Townships of Quebec so united as at present. The candidates that will be selected by the Conservatives at the next election will, he says, receive the united support of all the Conservatives in all of the Eastern Townships, which will return more Conservatives than ever."

MORE DEBENTURES!

MORE debentures, a heavier permanent encumbrance,—this, if our advices from Belfast are correct, is the boldly announced policy of the Hon. Donald Farquharson.

There are, it may be admitted, circumstances under which the issue of debentures can be justified, as for instance when it is certain that the public improvements to be supplied will yield sufficient net revenue to pay the interest accruing in respect to them. We have a water and sewerage debenture debt in Charlottetown resulting from the construction of works of common utility. This debt is all right, because the receipts of the sewerage and water commissioners will cover expenses, including the interest. But in the case of the huge Provincial debt heaped up by the party now in power, there is no such justification. No revenue accrues from the $120,000 sunk in the election of 1893, or from the long roll of deficits which go to make up the $600,000 debt of the Province. There will be a small revenue resulting from the tax recently imposed upon the pupils attending Prince of Wales College; and the government might be excused if it incurred a small debenture debt to ensure the construction of the new college building. But we know of nothing else for which debentures ought in any case to be issued by the Provincial Government. If we had great and varied natural resources from which to draw, as Nova Scotia or New Brunswick or Ontario, we might be able to afford a debenture debt. But with nothing except the farmers' pockets to supply the interest money which it involves, a debenture debt ought never to have been issued and certainly should not be increased. As a prudent farmer, this Province ought to live within its means and yearly income.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

—It is reported that the troopers on the road to Kimberley are marching in the lightest order. The officers are carrying only a waterproof sheet and blanket, Lord Methuen sharing the ordinary rations.

—The mail from Picton continues to arrive "late" and we may have to enter a protest and expose the cause. It is intolerable that private interests should persistently interfere with a public right and convenience.

—Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been forced to admit that the "Business is Business" Government made a mistake in throwing open to United States vessels the Canadian coasting trade on the Upper Lakes. He pleads that they "will never do it again."

—We now want confirmation of the report that the Canadian Contingent has arrived at Cape Town, and to know that Lord Methuen's force has relieved Kimberley, and to hear the result of General Joubert's excursions into Southern Natal.

—As to Manitoba the conditions are exactly the reverse of those in Prince Edward Island. There the Liberal Provincial Government is extremely anxious to be known as independent and apart from the Liberal Dominion Administration. The latter has no railways to build in Manitoba just now, and is extremely unpopular.

—As a result of munificence of a friend of McGill University, who has contributed a large sum of money for the purpose, a new chair will be established, to be called the Dawson chair, in memory of the late Sir William Dawson. The foundation of the new chair is conditional on the provision that Lady Dawson will enjoy the income during the remainder of her life.

—A Mr. Campbell, M. P., supporting our Liberal Government, has adopted the same tone towards Toronto that Sir Louis Davies did towards Belfast and Murray Harbor. In a recent speech he said that "large expenditures were being made for public works in Montreal and in other cities, but not one dollar would be given to Toronto while she maintained her present attitude" in opposition to the Liberal powers that be.

—At one time we purchased more from Great Britain than from across the line. Now the story is changed. Look at this:

| | Bought from Great Britain | Bought from United States |
|-----------|---------------------------|---------------------------|
| 1894..... | $38,717,000 | $55,034,000 |
| 1896..... | 32,979,000 | 58,574,000 |
| 1897..... | 29,412,000 | 61,649,000 |
| 1898..... | 32,500,000 | 78,700,000 |
| 1899..... | 37,000,000 | 91,000,000 |

It is important to note, as the Mail and Empire remarks, how the change has worked. We have a "British preference" under which we buy $1,700,000 less from Great Britain than in 1894, and $36,000,000 more from the United States than in 1894. We have a "British preference" under which the United States is a better market in Canada by $55,000,000 than Great Britain has. We have a "British preference" under which the Americans increase their sales to us from $55,034,000 in 1894 to $91,000,000 in 1899. We have a "British preference" which admits $10,000,000 worth of British products free of duty, and $48,000,000 of United States products free of duty.
