Exceedingly Pleasant Is Island Farm Life

We caught a sign of Autumn mellowness in the summer-sun of today. And we heard a farmer speak of reaping presently "that first piece of grain."

"But not yet," we said, "not this week!"

"Oh yes, if the days are sunny. The harvest-gold on some Island fields! And at Alderlea some hay still to be mowed and saved."

And still the Island entertains her summer guests, her native sons and daughters homing from other strands to spend a holiday and others more and less strangers come now to prove her charms. . . the children from cities who "saw some exactly the same — yes, exactly, on TV at home!" Yet who look with wide eyes on the animals of the farms when they see them perhaps for the first time in the flesh: the youngling pigs and calves, the chickens and rabbits and suchlike. And of those we have at Alderlea which are the best? Invariably the pup and the kitten.

Their elders, some of whom know so little of our way of life, sometimes try to reduce our living to terms of dollars and cents — to "cold cash" as folks say.

"What's cold cash?" we overheard Mack ask his mother recently. "I never saw any."

"It's this way. . ." she began to explain.

"It's anything but cold, isn't it Mack?" his dad chuckled.

How can we measure our benefits in terms of currency, we who live on farms? Our sheltering roofs, the loved fields that respond so kindly to the footsteps of their own. . . the freedom — our masters only the seasons. Are not the values of these beyond reckoning? "Yes, days is the role of the farmwife so toilsome!"

"I believe Mrs. . . was disappointed in you. She expected that being a farmer's wife you would be rising with the lark to get your churning done in the fresh of the morning" a summer guest.

Early Visits To Japan Promote Christianity

The Woman's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada is making a special study of the country of Japan. It is interesting to note that economic progress in Japan over the past four years has been very rapid. While providing for a population increase of one million a year, Japan has been able to increase living standards, expand exports, and at the same time invest about one-fourth of her annual output of goods and services. Between 1952 and 1956, industrial production increased nearly 80 per cent. Japan has been purchasing pedigree cattle in Australia to improve Japan's dairy herds, an excerpt from the book "The First English Man in Japan" by P. G. Rogers, Harvill Press, Ltd., London, 1956, contains an interesting account of early Portuguese visits to Japan and shows how trade and Christianity became linked together. The following is the excerpt:

Japan became known to Europeans in the Middle Ages through Marco Polo's account of his travels in the Far East; but it was not until the mid-sixteenth century that direct contact was made between Europeans and Japanese, the Portuguese having the distinction of being the first Europeans to land in the country.

In 1542 a Portuguese junk bound for a port in China was blown off its course, and finally arrived off Tanegashima, a small island lying near the south coast of Kyushu, the southernmost of the large Japanese islands. The Japanese treated the strangers very well, and allowed them to depart when they had recovered from the rigours of their hard voyage.

Encouraged by the friendly reception, the Portuguese returned to Japan soon afterwards, both to trade with the Japanese and to convert them to Christianity.
