King And Queen

for the newspaper women who all curtsied as well as their three joints would permit. "My heart was right in my mouth," one girl reporter said a minute after the Queen passed by. Her Majesty heard the remark, looked back and laughed heartily.

Informal Affair

The reception was an informal affair. The reporters were to have been presented to Their Majesties on the dock but the crush of war veterans who objected to the newspapermen standing before them was so great that arrangements were made to take them on the pier.

They stood for half an hour on the lower deck waiting for Their Majesties, but because of the crush there they were herded to an upper deck where they lined up in an oval while Their Majesties walked among them.

There were no introductions. The King and Queen called a few by name and seemed to know them all by their appearance.

The shouts of veterans on the dock singing "Tipperary" drifted in to the ship and at times almost drowned out Their Majesties' words.

The royal couple had thankful and encouraging words for all the reporters. They both looked fit and the King seemed very much at ease. He chatted with everybody, seemed in no hurry to get along and was more free with the newspapermen than he was when he met them in Ottawa on May 18.

"We're sorry to leave you," he told a Canadian Press reporter. "But I imagine you're glad to see the last of us. You've all done a tremendous job splendidly and I can't quite understand how you got around the country so quickly. You've been almost everywhere we've been and still have had to write your articles. I really think you've had a harder job than we have."

Then turning to look over the group, he said: "Thank you so much; we'll remember you all with gratitude."

PLANS ACTION

sin incident by Sir Thomas Inskip, Dominions Secretary.

Mr. Chamberlain told the House of Commons that a Japanese spokesman in Tientsin, important North China port, had indicated the object of Japan's blockade of the British and French Settlements there was to obtain "a much wider form of co-operation from British authorities in China."

"It is clear that if this statement represents the views of authorities in Tokyo then the Japanese are using the incident to make demands wider and more far-reaching than the handling over of the four men."

Question Of Policy

The Prime Minister referred to the four alleged Chinese terrorists whose protection by British authorities in the face of Japanese demands for their surrender, led to the Tientsin blockade.

"Such demands would raise an important question of policy in which other great powers are concerned no less than this country, and the closest touch is being maintained with the French and United States Governments," he warned.

He said that food supplies were reaching the British Settlements despite the blockade but prices were rising. "British military authorities are taking all precautions for maintaining order and H. M. S. Lowesoft (patrol ship) is moored alongside (the settlement)."

"Because the situation is 'obviously a grave one,' Mr. Chamberlain said clearly the broadcast speeches of the King and Queen at Halifax and also the cheers they evoked from the immediate audience.

One Fatality At Halifax During Visit

(By The Canadian Press)

HALIFAX, June 15.—One death was reported, and accident patients were under treatment at three hospitals tonight in the wake of Their Majesties' visit to Halifax and farewell to Canada.

An unidentified man was struck and killed by a truck at 6:45 p.m. ADT as he was walking along the Dutch Village road in the suburbs of the city. He had evidently been walking away from the city after taking part in the royal visit festivities.

At the Halifax Infirmary was Mrs. William Knickie, of Lunenburg, who came to the city to see the King and Queen. She took up her post on the waterfront late in the afternoon, to get a good view of the royal yacht sailing out of the harbor.

Mrs. Knickie was sitting on the edge of a plank extending over the edge of a wharf. The person who was sitting on the other end of the plank got up. The Lunenburg woman fell almost 18 feet into the water.

At the hospital, she was reported to be suffering from shock. Youthful Jacqueline Wales, one of the 20,000 school children who were massed on Citadel Hill this afternoon to see Their Majesties, suffered a sunstroke and was taken to Children's Hospital. She was reported to be "doing well."

Two fainting cases, both women, went to Victoria General Hospital following what had threatened to become a serious jam at the point where Their Majesties left the Public Gardens to get into their car.

As the royal party came out of the park, the millinery through closed in behind them, and several persons were crushed against the huge iron gates at the Gardens' entrance.

Before the gates could be opened to relieve the pressure, the women had fainted. Their unconscious forms were swept backward in the crush as the gates were swung inward. They were taken to the hospital in an ambulance.

Final Salute Is Fired By Yacht Squadron

(By The Canadian Press)

HALIFAX, June 15.—The final royal salute from Canadian gunners was heard by King George and Queen Elizabeth was fired tonight from the decks of the yacht Chauve Souris, flagship of the Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Squadron.

As the gleaming Empress of Britain headed for the open sea past the yacht squadron, the blue ensign over the clubhouse was dipped in salute to the royal yacht and her precious passengers.

The salute was immediately acknowledged as an answer pennant was run up on the mainmast of the Empress.

Meanwhile, from the decks of the Chauve Souris, the head of a long line of squadron boats, a signal gun barked the 21-gun royal salute.

A specially-organized choir of 1,000 voices, massed on the squadron breakwater, sang God Save the King as the Empress, trailed by about 65 small craft in full dress, went past. It was presided by the H. R. C. S. Skeena and the H. M. C. S. Saguenay, while immediately astern came H. M. S. Southampton and H. M. S. Glasgow.

The famed fishing schooner Bluenose, her decks crowded with spectators, was sandwiched between the trailing cruisers.

Railwaymen Proud Of Part Played In Visit Of Royalty

(By The Canadian Press)

HALIFAX, June 15.—The royal party travelled in Canada by rail, and Canadian railwaymen from coast to coast are proud of the part they have played in making it the tremendous success it was.

Literally thousands of employees of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific organizations participated in the hardest task they have ever been called on to perform, and from Quebec to Victoria and back to Halifax everything went smoothly.

At least 7,000 of the 8,000 miles the royal party travelled in Canada was covered by rail. On all the lines the royal train passed over every bridge, every culvert, every grade crossing, every stretch of track where accidents might happen, were inspected and guarded for hours before the royal train went by.

Every main-line switch on the royal route was spiked down before the pilot train—which ran half an hour ahead of the royal train—went by. In addition, a guard train followed an hour behind, just in case any mechanical breakdown would necessitate exchange of parts or even whole locomotives.

(By The Canadian Press)

OTTAWA, June 15.—(CP)—A renewal of "allegiance and devotion" was voiced to the King and Queen in a telegram sent by Brigadier W. V. Foster, Dominion Command of the Canadian Legion, on the occasion of Their Majesties' departure from Halifax.

Brigadier Foster's wire read: "The officers and members of the British Canadian Legion of the Empire Service League throughout Canada and the United States bid Your Majesties Au Revoir, god speed and a safe return home. The war veterans of Canada are grateful for the kindly interest Your Majesties have shown in them on every occasion. They are proud of the responsibility which was in part assigned to them of having safeguarded Your Majesties' journey through Canada. Your Majesty's visit has inspired in us a deeper sense of the unity of the peoples of the British Empire, and in wishing you bon voyage we embrace this occasion of again renewing to Your Majesties our allegiance and devotion."
