"Honolulu" At Prince Edward Two Days Only

Eleanor Powell, acknowledged to be the world's most accomplished tap dancer, proves her title again in "Honolulu," which opens at the Prince Edward Theatre today.

This lavish new musical has all that the Broadway shows of modern times can offer and more. Robert Young has the male lead in a dual role, carrying the pleasantly light weight of a humorous, but plausible story. Comedy is provided by George Burns and Gracie Allen, of Screen and radio fame, and the music is superb.

A large and talented supporting cast includes Rita Johnson, Clarence Kolb, Jo Ann Sayers, Ann Morris, Willie Fung, Cliff Clark, Edward Gargan, Eddie Anderson, Sig Rumann, Ruth Hussey, Edgar Dearing and Kealoha Holt, selected in a contest embracing all the islands as Hawaii's champion hula dancer. Then there is also the most famous of all Hawaiian orchestras, Andy Iona's Islanders, lending authenticity to the musical background of the hula numbers.

Miss Powell offers "Hymn to the Sun,' based on the traditional dance of Hawaii; an imitation of Bill Robinson's famous stair dance, and finally, a novel number done with a skipping rope.

Young appears as a Hollywood star who wants to get away for a rest. At an "opening" he encounters his double and induces him to exchange identities for a while. The scheme works. On a boat for Honolulu, the actor, now free of his fame, meets a cabaret dancer, played by Miss Powell, and falls in love with her. But in Honolulu he faces the past of his double, a planter, who not only is engaged to a girl Young has never seen but is wanted for embezzlement. The complication is adjusted when the planter is induced to return.

Edward Buzzell, former Broadway musical comedy star, directed the picture and his cunning hand is evident throughout.

Indian Princes Keep Door Open For Federation

UNITED INDIA CONSTITUTION WORKING IN PROVINCES AND PROGRESS MADE WITH STATE POTENTATES.

(By The Canadian Press)

BOMBAY, July 31—An important stage in the negotiations for an all-India Federation has been reached. The new constitution is already working in the provinces, it remains to link these with the Indian States in a Federal Government at the centre, the India News-Bulletin says.

Some time ago the revised draft of the Instrument of Accession—the document by which the Princes would signify their intention of joining the Federation—was circulated among the states. In June a number of Indian Princes and their ministers met at Bombay, as the time is approaching when the states must submit their replies to his Majesty's government through the Viceroy. The conference disapproved certain provisions of the revised draft of the Instrument of Accession, but recorded its belief that "it could not be the intention of His Majesty's government to close the door on an all-India Federation."

The conference was influenced by a report made by a committee under the chairmanship of the veteran Hyderabad statesman, Sir Akbar Hydari. The committee has suggested modifications in the draft but reiterates its conviction that "there is in fact no alternative ideal for India except that of an All-India Federation, provided it ensures all the essential safeguards advocated by the committee and offers an effective assurance of the continued autonomy and integrity of the states. If the vital matters to which the committee has drawn attention can be satisfactorily adjusted, the committee is of the opinion that there would then exist a satisfactory basis on which accession could be concluded by individual states with due regard to the particular interests of each."

Sundry "Experiments"

The Indian states provide an almost unlimited field for constitutional experiment. Aundh State, in Western India, whose ruler overhauled his government in consultation with Gandhi, is to have a "travelling ministry" that goes from village to village disposing of business on the spot. "The idea seems sound," the News-Bulletin comments. British India has often been told it would have better government if district officials could get away from office files and tour more.

In the Eastern States the Raja of Seraikella has announced the establishments of village Panchayets (councils), and a legislature 50 per cent elected. The states of the Eastern States Agency contain many aboriginals and a question is now being discussed in the Press is how aboriginals can be fitted into any scheme of political reform. This is important in Seraikella where, in 1931, 97,500 of the 143,526 inhabitants were returned as Hindus and 43,853 as of tribal religion (aboriginals). The ruler of Bamra State is also taking steps to bring his people into closer touch with the administration.

Selling Direct To The Consumer

Selling direct from our gardens to the consumer is beneficial to all concerned, and no middleman between, and the consumer is insured of fresh vegetables direct from our gardens.

It is a well known fact that corn and green peas picked 24 hours, the natural flavor has disappeared, this applies to almost all green vegetables more or less. Tourists and tourists' cabins, summer hotels, etc., should take advantage of this.

Come and take them away, and save delivery expenses, a mutual benefit compact, a cash and carry plan, and the moral of this is quite evident. See the vegetables are fresh and buy from J. J. Gay & Son, Head of Prince Street, Charlottetown. Phone 264.

CAPTAIN J. J. MURCHISON

Dr. Lantz of this city received a cable yesterday from Buenos Aires, South America, bringing the sad news of the death of his uncle, Capt. J. J. Murchison, aged 78 years.

Captain Murchison had not been in good health for the past two or three months, but his condition was not considered serious and he and his wife were planning to come to Prince Edward Island to spend part of the summer at the old Murchison family home in Pinette.

Captain Murchison, after following the sea, established an extensive contracting and stevedore business in Buenos Aires, which is now being carried on by his sons.

Ever since going to Buenos Aires many years ago, Captain Murchison and Mrs. Murchison have visited Prince Edward Island every two or three years.

He leaves to mourn, besides his widow, four sons: Benjamin, James, John and William in Buenos Aires; and three daughters, Mrs. T. Trobert and Miss Emma Murchison in Buenos Aires; Mrs. Purviance of Santiago, Chile, and Mrs. Back of London, England.

SILHOUETTE JEWELS

LONDON—A jewelry fashion for wear with black consists of a tiny fan brooch of oblong baquette diamonds. On either side of the fan is a "fluffy" design in sapphires in the shape of a cloud, as if the fan were silhouetted against a pale-blue sky.

Little clip-on earrings match; each is a diamond fan and can also be worn as a dress clip or hair ornament.

Aquamarines look well on black. A broad bracelet of these stones, alternated with diamonds and flexibly set in platinum, is worn over elbow-length black suede gloves.

GOOSEBERRY JELLY

Delicious as a tea-time spread or as a relish to serve with roast duck or goose is gooseberry jelly, and the recipe is easy. Ingredients: To each pint of gooseberry juice allow ¾ lb. white sugar.

Choose sound, ripe berries, top, tail and wash and put them into a pan over slow heat. Bruise the berries as they simmer to allow the juice to flow freely.

Strain through a sieve, but do not press the fruit at this stage otherwise the jelly will cloud. Measure the juice, return it to the pan and boil fast for fifteen minutes.

Add sugar, stir until dissolved, then boil fast for five minutes or until a little, tested on a cold saucer, will "jell" nicely. Seal in clean, dry jars.

Remember that preserves should be kept in a cool, dry airy place. Slatted shelves will help the air to circulate freely round the jars.

Strange Engagement

Parted Lovers' Unromantic Pact

DOROTHY ELLINGTON, daughter of Leonard Ellington, an authority on the origin of man, shed not a tear when her betrothed, Rupert Featherstone, was sent to South Africa for two years, to conduct certain investigations for the girl's father, into the remains of pre-historic creatures.

The father was prepared to agree to immediate marriage, but the lovers seemed content to wait until the two years were over.

There were no tears at parting, and, most extraordinary of all, each destroyed all photographs of the other before Rupert left, relying, they said, on "mental images."

Such was the girl whom Frank Carter—virile, romantic and impetuous—had as companion on the boat in which he was travelling to South Africa to take part in a great speed contest. The two years were up, and Dorothy was still minded to marry Rupert, who celebrated his financee's arrival by finding the jaw-bone of an ape-man.

On discovering this astonishing attitude to love in a girl so attractive, Frank took upon himself the task of "humanising" her.

To reveal the results of Frank's attempt, and the ultimate meeting between Dorothy and Rupert, would be to anticipate one of the many delightful aspects of the Guardian's new serial story "RACING DRIVER" the first instalment of which is to appear in a few days.

The author, Alexander Campbell, who wrote "Daughter of Exile", has achieved a romantic serial which is refreshingly different from most love stories. The theme is handled with a certain lightness of touch, but without relaxing the grip which a good romance always exercises upon those who delight in a fine piece of fiction.

Here an interesting group of characters are seen against some unfamiliar backgrounds, and the situations and thrills have a freshness that is in harmony with the dominant note of originality.
