night clothes. Breasts should be carefully inspected in front of a mirror. They should look carefully as to the shape of their breasts. The fact that one is larger than the other has no special meaning or significance. They should look for dimpling of the skin. They should first raise their arms, as the raised arms bring out any flattening or broadening of the nipple, any retraction or sinking of the nipple, any erosion of the nipple; these signs and a blood or serous discharge from nipple tell of disease.

The second step is to lie on back on bed or couch, a small pillow placed under breast to be examined to keep it level with other breast, and the inner side of breast palpated with the fingers for any lump. The outer side of breast should be gently palpated with fingers and any lumps reported to a physician. Self-examination of breasts should discover cancer early and save many lives.

Lovingly Remembered and Sadly Missed by Eileen, Edwin and Family.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our son-in-law Daniel C. MacEachern, Cardigan, who passed away October 15th, 1951.

What would we give to clasp his hand,
And hear his voice again,
And see the face we miss so much,
Come smiling through the door.

Sadly Missed and Fondly Remembered by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ferguson and Family,
