CENSUS OF WAR SHIPS.

Dangers of Chloral.

Prof. Tyndall had taken sleeping draughts of one kind or other for years. His "usual quantity," according to Dr. Buzzard, was one and a half teaspoonfuls every night. It had evidently become a habit with him, even more than a necessity; or it was a necessity only because it was a habit. Yet, we have the authority of the British Medical Journal, says the London Daily News, in an article devoted to this particular case, for the assertion that ninety-nine in the hundred of those sleeping doses are worse than useless, even for any purpose of relief worthy of the name 'Insomnia," we are told, "is not a disease, but a symptom," and it is the clear duty of every sufferer to ascertain the cause, with a view to its removal by legitimate treatment. Of all the empirical treatments that by chloral is probably the worst. The temporary relief which it affords tends to divert attention from more radical measures. The sham solace being always at hand, the true one is never sought. Chloral has slain its thousands before this; it ought not to claim as many more victims before it is laid aside forever. Or, if it does, this great national loss we have just sustained should be held equivalent, for the purpose of warning and example, to the total count.

A Slack Consuming Boiler.

The increased cost of coal and slack in the Midland iron and hardware districts is stimulating inventive energy in the direction of economizing the use of those articles of fuel, says an English journal. Experiments recently concluded in the Tipton district have resulted in the production of a steam boiler, specially apapted to iron works purposes, which promises to bring down the cost of the fuel to the lowest limit, and which, moreover, will consume with advantage slack of the most inferior quality. In the hardware industries of the Black country the adoption of the gas engine as a motive power becomes more conspicuous week by week, and the old fashioned steam engines and boilers are being almost daily disposed of at breaking-up prices. In domestic circles, also, the tendency of enterprise is in the same direction, and the gas companies are not slow to push forward the sale of heating and cooking stoves, adapted to the requirements of large and small households.

Novel Application of Electricity.

The proposition of equipping the central office of the Water Department of Boston with electrical apparatus for showing the supply in the reservoirs, the pressure on the mains, and the condition of the numerous gates, is receiving considerable attention by the heads of the department at the present time, says the Electrical Review. The benefits of such a system cannot be overestimated, as it obviates the possibility of danger and waste through the negligence of employes, and enables the superintendent to have the works of the entire department constantly before him. By this means he could tell at a glance the height of water in the different storage basins, any sudden variation in which it is important he should know at once, and also the condition of all the gates, whether they were open or shut. City Engineer Jackson and Electrician P. A. Dowd have the matter in charge, and are endeavoring to devise a system which shall be thoroughly efficient and practical.

Bees in Her Head.

The Texas goddess of liberty has more than a bee in her bonnet. She isn't a Populist of the Mrs. Lease order, but a 17-foot high statue poised on the highest pinnacle of the State Capitol at Austin. In cleaning the statute a few drys ago it was discovered that a swarm of bees had made their home in the hollow head of the goddess, using the nostrils as an entrance, and had filled it half full of honey.—Philadelphia Record.

Automatic Aerial Camera.

A camera having as automatic shutter is suspended from a parachute detachably connected to a balloon proper. there being electro-mechanical means for reducing the lifting power of the balloon, and including a barometer in circuit, whereby an automatic exposure will be made when a predetermined height has been reached, and the descent of the camera with the parachute or balloon will then be made.

Deafness Caused by Cattarrh.

Capt. S. F. Belyea, of Greenwich, King's Co., N. B., suffered from an aggravated form of catarrh which had in his case induced serious deafness, closed the nasal passages so that he could scarcely breath and caused him great pain and trouble. He tried many remedies, but all failed until he got Hawker's Cattarrh Cure, three 25 cent packages of which effected a cure. "I can honestly say" says capt. Belyea "that I am practically well, and I take great pleasure in recommending Hawker's Catarrh Cure to those who may be suffering from this very troublesome disease."

THE SWINE AND THE FLOWER.

I shrank to meet a mud-encrusted swine,
And then he seemed to grunt, in accents rude,
"Huh! Be not proud, for in this fat of mine,
Behold the source of richness for your food!"

I fled, and saw a field that seemed, at first,
One giant mass of roses pure and white,
With dewy buds 'mid dark green foliage nursed,
And, as I lingered o'er this lovely sight,
The summer breeze, that cooled that southern scene,
Whispered, "Behold the source of Cottolene!"

—M. E Wilmer.

THE WELL-DRESSED WOMAN.

Care and Thought Rather Than Money Make Her What She Is.

Little Miss Shiftless, who imagines that she would be well dressed if she had the dress allowance of Miss Croesus over the way, is deluding herself. She would not be well dressed on Miss Croesus' allowance unless she managed to have given her at the same time the dantiness of Miss Croesus' maid and the taste of Miss Croesus' milliners. And with those she may be well dressed on her own modest allowance.

Miss Croesus' tailors and milliners and all the tribe that minister unto her adornment preach the sermon of suitability to her. They will not allow her to have a brown coat made for her green frock, or to wear a blue hat with her gray one. She learns at an early date that gray gloves are not to be worn with a black and tan costume. The great lesson of unity in dress is forced upon her mind while she is still young. And if little Miss Shiftless would also learn this lesson she would look as well in her serges as her neighbor does in broadcloth.

Miss Croesus has a maid. When that chile of fortune comes in and flings her clothes on a chair, kicks her boots off and gets into a dressing-gown for a rest, Mannette or Lizette softly gathers up the discarded garments. She wipes the boots free from dust; she sees if the inside soles are soiled, and if they are she takes them out, inserting new ones, which cost but little. She stuffs the toes with cotton, or perhaps she has a wooden shape for them. This prevents the shoes from becoming shapeless and loose. She puts them neatly away where they will not rub against each other. She brushes Miss Croesus' frock, sees that braids and bindings are as they should be, and puts them neatly away. the skirts hanging in a roomy closet, the big-sleeved bodice folded in deep drawers. In both closet and drawers is a little sachet of Miss Croesus' favorite perfume. And all of these things Miss Shiftless might do if she would.

She might keep a store of shields on hand and put them in when they were needed. She might always have hooks and eyes, braids, bones and elastic in her room to use, not just before she needed to wear a gown, but when, on taking it off, she first discovers that it is becoming worn. By such means she may be well dressed, for it is not so much Miss Croesus' money as the care bestowed upon her clothes that makes her the attractive young person she is.

When Eggs are Dear.

Pumpkin pies can be made very palatable without eggs. Use more pumpkin, and a large table-spoonful of flour for three small or two large pies, with sugar and other ingredients as usual.

RICE PUDDING.—One quart milk, half a teacupful of rice, salt, one teacupful of sugar, a small piece of butter. Put cold into the oven, stirring occasionally for the first hour; bake slowly for two and one-half hours. A cupful of raisins, or vanilla flavoring, makes a nice addition.

EGGLESS PLUM PUDDING.—One large cupful of bread crumbs, one cupful each of suet, chopped fine, or butter, molasses, raisins and sweet milk, one tablespoonful of soda, one tea-spoonful each of salt, cloves and cinnamon, and two cupfuls of flower. Steam two and one-half hours.

ONE EGG SPONGE CAKE.—One cupful of granulated sugar, one egg, one half cupful of cold water with vanilla or lemon added, one and one-half cupfuls of flour. Beat eggs and sugar, add water and flour alternately. Bake immediately in a hot oven.

DOUGHNUTS.—One cupful each of sugar and sweet milk, one scant tablespoonful of butter, one egg, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, flour enough to make a soft dough. Fry in hot lard.—The Housekeeper.

The Family Writing Desk.

A desk is not, as many people seem to consider it, a purely literary luxury. Every house where letters are written, bills received or receipts given, should have one quite as much as the houses where the great novels are written and the great poems composed.

The family desk need not be an elaborate affair. Very neat and quite capacious desks are reasonable in price. A very few dollars will purchase an entirely unobjectionable one, with a shelf above for bric-a-brac and a shelf below for books. In the pigeon holes bills, unacknowledged family letters, family invitations and the like may be safely stored. There is plenty of room to write, plenty of space for two or three sorts and sizes of paper, inkwells, pens and the like. There the housekeeper may make out her shopping lists, file her bills and receipts and generally try to conduct her business on less haphazard plans than usually prevail.

Of course, the family writing desk is not the place for each member of the household to store confidential letters. Each person should have in his or her own room some sort of a desk or substitute for a desk, in which purely personal epistles should be kept.

The Care of Flour.

Flour is like butter, it absorbs smells readily. It should not be kept in a place where there are onions, fish, vegetables or other odorous substances, or in a damp room or cellar. Keep it in a cool, dry, airy room, where it is not exposed to a freezing temperature, or to one above 70 degrees, and always sift before using.

French Toast.

Three well-beaten eggs, one pint of milk, a quarter of a tea spoonful of salt. Into this mixture dip slices of stale bread and brown on hot buttered griddle. Dredge with sugar and serve hot.

Assimilable Phosphorus is the brain and nerve food, par excellence. One bottle of Puttner's Emulsion contains more of this invaluable element than a gallon of the much vaunted stimulants, Liquid Beefs, etc., of the day.

Do you Cough? Hawker's Tolu and Wild Cherry Balsam is a sure Cough Cure.

THE STRONG POINT about the cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla is that they are permanent. They start from the solid foundation—Pure Blood.

Every Inflamation, and all Pain subdued and cured by Pond's Extract. Avoid crude Imitations.

Mrs. Ogden Snyder
Albany, N. Y.

"I Owe My Life to Hood's Sarsaparilla"

"Words are powerless to express the gratitude I feel toward Hood's Sarsaparilla, for under God, I feel and know that to this medicine I owe my life. Twelve years ago I began to bleed, followed by pains in the stomach, and later with affections of the kidneys, accompanied by severe pain. I gradually grew worse until three years ago physicians told me the trouble was

Caused by a Tumor

For several months I had been unable to retain any food of a solid nature. I was greatly emaciated, had frequent hemorrhages, and was satisfied the doctors were right in saying my life was nearly over. One day a friend suggested that I try Hood's Sarsaparilla; I did so and for 3 or 4 days I was sicker than ever, but I kept on and gradually began to feel better.

I Began to Feel Hungry and after a time, retain solid food, increased in weight, the saffron hue left my skin, the bleeding subsided, and I felt better all over. For the past two years my health has been quite good, and I have been able all the time to do the housework for my family. After what it has done for me I never hesitate to recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. Ogden Snyder, No. 10 Indiana Street, Albany, N. Y.

HOOD'S PILLS are the best after-dinner pills, assist digestion, cure headache. Try a box.

Nervous, Tired, Weak.

That most dreaded disease, typhoid pneumonia left me with a cough, sore throat, tired and nervous. I could not sleep nights. To add to my many troubles, last winter I had La Grippe. It seemed I would not live until spring. I tried
