

GOVERNMENT HOUSE DINING-ROOM

Vice Regal Party Are Guests Of The Governor

A total of thirty - nine guests were present at the official dinner in Government House on the evening of Wednesday, May 14, in honour of His Excellency, Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Governor General of Canada.

Accompanying the Governor General were Commander F. J. D. Pemberton, Comptroller of the Household, the Governor General's daughter - in - law, Mrs. Lionel Massey, Flight Lieutenant Jan MacMillan, Aide - de - Camp and Lieutenant Alan Henley, R. C. N., Aide - de - Camp.

The other guests besides the vice - regal party were members of the judiciary, the Government and their wives.

Two refectory shaped tables were placed respectively in the main dining - room, approximately thirty by twenty feet, and the adjoining room.

These tables were covered with white damask table cloths. Silver and cut glass bowls were placed at intervals on the table. The flowers used were white pom-pom chrysanthemums and pink snapdragons. The dishes were cream and gold. The flat silverware was both plain and ornate in design.

His Excellency Most Reverend Bishop MacEachern offered grace. The toast to The Queen was given by His Honour, The Lieutenant Governor.

Rev. Donald Campbell, president of the Ministerial Association of Prince Edward Island, was a guest.

In the drawing - room much interest was shown by guests in the interesting pieces of furniture belonging to the Hyndman family. Among these was a slipper chair embroidered in wine colored needlepoint. There was also a portrait of Mrs. Robert Harris, wife of the Canadian Artist. Mr. Harris was a grand-uncle of the governor. The picture of Mrs. Harris is lovely and the period is of the 90's with the flattering clothes of that time.

In the personal living - room of the Hyndmans is a pulpit desk which belonged to the Governor's grandfather.

The Governor General will sleep in a four poster ornately carved bed in a room facing south and overlooking the harbour. The bed has a canopy and there is a three - step piece of furniture which assists in climbing into the bed.

The vice - regal party were greatly impressed with the beauty of the old Georgian architecture, Government House and its fine hospitality. They are looking forward to other happy events during their Prince Edward Island visit.

Planned Office Party Was Attractive And Easy

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN
"The office shower you helped us plan for Jane was a great success," writes a young business girl. "It was held after hours and was so pretty and easy."

"We cleared the largest desk, covered it with a paper tablecloth, set out pink flowered paper napkins, silver paper cups and flowered green paper plates. Amusing little gifts for the bride-to-be were wrapped in pink and silver paper and flower decorations were nosegays for the guests."

"The evening before, we girls made the cookies you suggested, which are out of this world! The punch we made on the spot. Instead of giving expensive individual presents, we pooled our money and bought the free form double candleabra we used on the table and a lovely glass punch bowl with matching ladle as our gift to the bride-to-be."

PINK PUNCH
The Day Before (or Party): Fill a heart-shaped (or other) mold with water and freeze in the coldest part of the freezer.

To Make: Combine 1 c. sugar with 2 c. water; boil 5 min. Cool. Add 1 (6 oz.) can frozen pineapple - orange juice concentrate 1/2 c. lemon juice, 1/2 c. grenadine and stir until blended. Chill until ready to serve. Add 1 qt. ginger ale.

Unmold the ice molds; place in a punch bowl. Pour over the punch; garnish with fresh strawberries. Serve with the frozen ice block and fresh strawberries. Makes about 2 qts.

Tomorrow's Dinner - Chilled vegetable juice, curry of lamb, flaky rice, hot broccoli salad.

With millions of lonely widows in our population, the project might be developed on a national scale, don't you think? (I would appreciate your publishing this).

C. D.
Dear C. D.: I'm not sure it would be a boon to widows, to huddle together for mutual sympathy. Isn't it better to stay in the main stream of life to the fullest possible extent - mingling with people as people, not with specific reference to their major wound scars? - M. H.

NEEDS SOCIAL CLUB
Dear Mary Haworth: Recently I became a widow. Due to the good fortune of having good neighbors, who saw that I wasn't left alone for long periods, I have made a fair recovery from shock and grief.

Now I am very conscious of the sympathetic help that widows can give one another - because to have been a widow is to realize the problem of despair, in that crisis when life seems to have lost its purpose.

There ought to be a medium - an organization - for widows, whereby they could find and know each other on a more personal basis, than church, work and civic activity provide. We

ELLEN'S DIARY

Lovely Maytime Brings Its Many Regular Duties

We do have the nicest chats with the birds and the animals about. Wordy, when the children are present, or it may be wordless as today. Silly? Perhaps, though there are those who declare that it is humans' loss not to have the gift of understanding them, since they do speak in knowing tongues of their own.

"What's them?" a sparrow-bird neat and pretty, questioned peering curiously over the edge of the back - verandah roof this afternoon at the baskets James was carrying from the house to a piggy across the yard.

She had set down for the moment the golden feather she was bearing off to a broad eaves' nook above, to provide downy material for cushioning her couch-to-be, or perhaps in its prettiness, it came to mind fancifully, to add a touch of beauty to her surroundings to help shorten for her that period of domesticity which should before long bind her to the nest.

"What's them?" we repeated her question with a friendly smile. She nodded, eyes sharp as she followed James steps out of sight.

"You must be a newcomer to this neighborhood?" we queried. "You can say that again!" she giggled shyly "Jes' come."

"Those" we said, "are piglets - youngsters, just come. They have been having extractions - first teeth removed. Like the appendix or tonsils, they are usually to be taken out. In any event when these sharp teeth are nipped off, there's then more content in the sty. And it must be done out of sound of the mother. So the farmers bring them to the kitchen. It doesn't take long. Only a few minutes and they are ready to be returned to her.

"Do piglets always come in the daytime?"

"Oh dear no. At all hours, mostly through the night," we replied. And then looking back through the years of our farming at Alderlea, we chuckled "If all the piglets that had first teeth removed in the old kitchen were placed nose to tail, or vice versa, the line would circle the globe!"

"Monotonous - a little?"

"Oh no. Every occasion is different and interesting. Sometimes there is only a small litter, while at others there are so many, one immediately begins to make a list in mind of the things she will buy! A new hat, or a frock. . ."

"Counting chickens. . . I know" she smiled. "And anticipations are thrilling in themselves."

"And sometimes there is winter on the farmers' feet when they bring in younglings. Or they scuff through autumn leaves. Or it is summer with the doors wide . . . or sight and scent of the spring as now. And to look in on the small things when they have cuddled down with their mother, is one of the most engaging sights on the farm."

Also a Maytime-litter we had at Alderlea this afternoon with a spring - mist banding in filmy gray the heights of the valley and a bride of sparrow-bird out of a nest bearing nesting material (or a pretty souvenir) to her nest on the eave.

What does James, husband of this house lunch upon? A handful of raisined milk serves cookies and a glass of milk serve to sign and seal now, the busy record of his day.

Until tomorrow - - - Diary - Goodnight. . . .

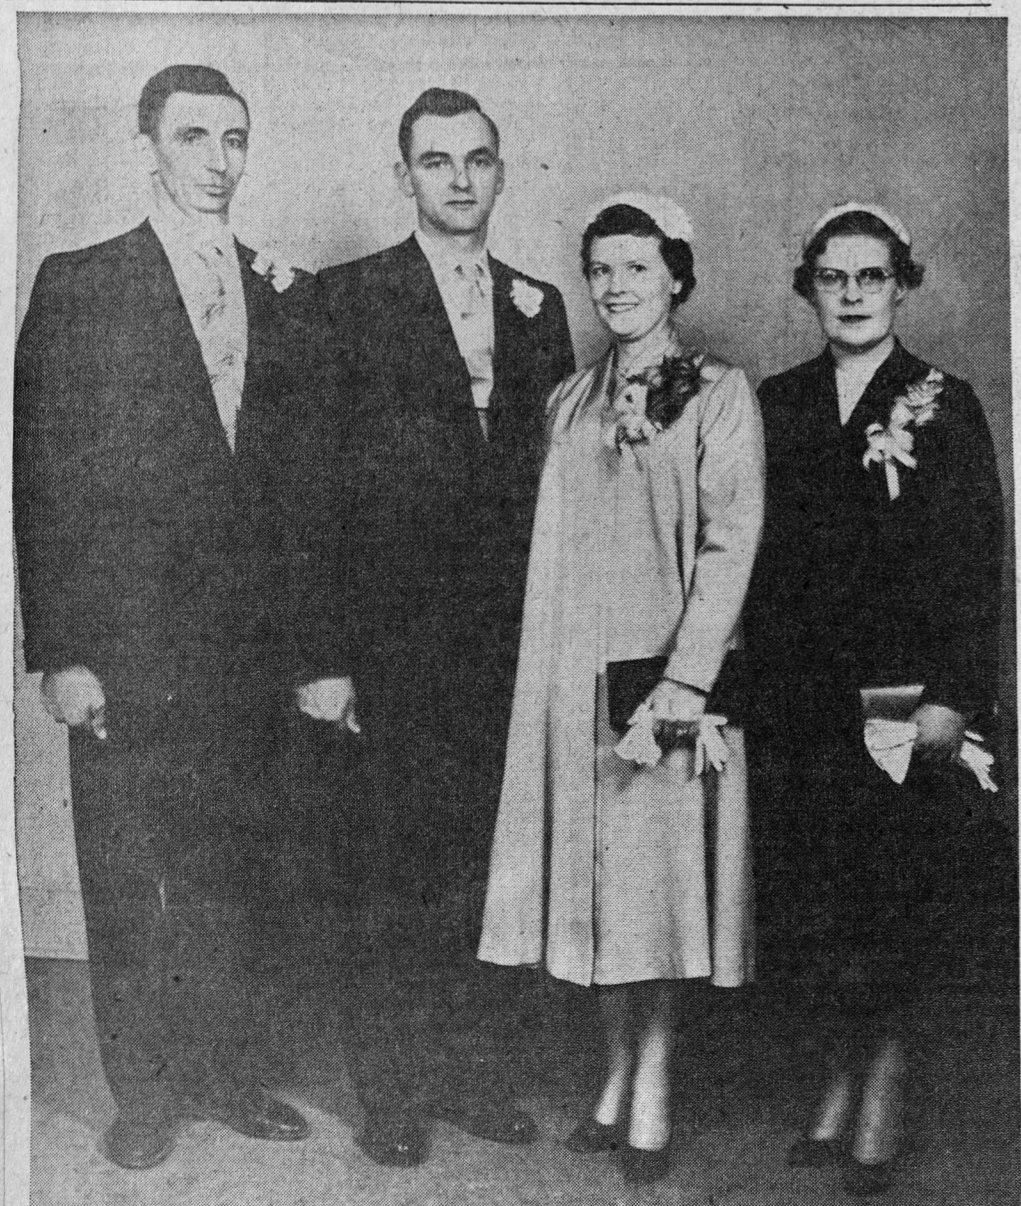

MARY HAWORTH Need To Run Whole Show

Dear Mary Haworth: I am considering marrying a divorcee who has a seven-year-old son.

It appears that this divorcee's former husband makes a 200-mile trip, a couple of times a year, to see her and their son - bringing presents and acting in a very friendly manner.

My quandary is this: In the event that I marry this woman, I should want to legally adopt the boy and guide him - along with his mother's guidance, of course - in the direction I thought best.

But inasmuch as his father is, apparently, still interested in the boy, I feel that he might exert his influence on him in various

CRUSTY DINNER ROLLS
Measure into a large bowl 1/2 c. lukewarm water; crumble and add 1 cake Best Yeast - or stir in 1 tsp. granulated sugar and sprinkle with 1 envelope Best dry Yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, THEN stir well. Add 3/4 c. lukewarm water and 1 tsp. salt. Add, all at once, 3 1/2 c. once-sifted all-purpose flour and work with the hands; work in 3 lbs. soft shortening. Knead on lightly-floured board until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl. Cover with a damp cloth and set in warm place, free from draft. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Punch down dough in bowl, fold over, cover and again let rise until doubled in bulk. Turn out on lightly-floured board and divide into 2 equal portions; shape each portion into a long roll about 1 1/2' in diameter. Cover with a damp cloth and let rest 15 mins. Using a floured sharp knife, cut dough into 2" lengths and place, well apart, on ungreased cookie sheets. Sprinkle rolls with cornmeal and let rise, uncovered, for 1/2 hour. Brush with cold water and let rise another 1/2 hour. Meanwhile, stand a broad shallow pan of hot water in the oven and preheat oven to hot, 425°. Remove pan of water from oven and bake the rolls in steam-filled oven for 1/2 hour, sprinkling them with cold water and brushing lightly with cornmeal after the first 15 mins., and again brushing them with cold water 2 minutes before removing baked buns from the oven. Yield - 18 rolls.
