EIGHTEEN MONTHS' PAIN

Ended Effectually and Permanently
by Dodd's Kidney Pills

Central Waterville, N. B., Nov 14—These dull and damp days of November are terrible hard on the Kidneys. Not one person in a hundred escapes. Backache, pains in the loins, Lumbago, and similar Kidney troubles are as plentiful as fallen leaves.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only sure and certain cure for kidney complaints. They never fail to cure.

In proof of this read what Mr F W Harris, of this place says: "After having suffered for eighteen months, with kidney disease, being unable to work, most of the time, and having grown worse while taking other medicines, I used three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, which effected a complete and permanent cure."

The Danish Government has negotiated a loan of 10,000,000 kroner (about $1,600,000) for military purposes.

Mr. Dewar tells us that there is now in Scotland a reserve stock in bond of over $9,000,000 gallons of whiskey, and that the annual output is 12,500,000 gallons more than the consumption. This disposes of the legendary contention that the Scotch can consume more whiskey than Scotland can produce.

Mr. Montague, of Dunnville, Cured of Ulcerated Itching Piles.

Mr. Robert Montague, of Dunnville, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with Itching Piles for five years and was so badly ulcerated, they were very painful so much so, that I could not sleep. I tried almost every medicine known when I was recommended to use Dr. Chase's Ointment. I purchased a box and from the first application got relief. Have used two boxes and am now completely cured."

HINTS BY A BURGLAR

"TOM THE DODGER" TELLS HOW HOUSES ARE ROBBED.

Householders Often Help the Thieves by Neglecting Second Story Window Fastenings—A Good Substitute For Ladders.

Thomas Simpson, alias "Tom the Dodger," who is known in police circles all over the country, was in town the other night, but he got away before any of the "fly coppers" got on to him. He met several persons in a down town resort, and after indulging in a few drinks he became confidential in his talk. Tom's hints to householders were quite interesting. Among those who listened to him was an ex-detective, who had often locked him up years ago.

"You see," said Tom, "the public themselves assist us a great deal or men in my line wouldn't be able to bring off successfully one-tenth of the jobs they do now. For instance, however careful housekeepers and their servants may be with regard to window fastenings on the ground floor, as a rule they pay little attention to those of rooms up stairs, for even when the fastenings are in good order they are often left undone. Now, a man who knows his business never tries the ground floor for an entry unless he is perfectly well acquainted with the run of the house and the habits of the household, and even then he nearly always enters by one of the doors for which a key has been procured or the lock and bolts of which can easily be forced.

"What is the best window fastener? Well, there ain't none any good, unless it's two wedges forced down between the sashes, one on each side of the window. The screw to fix the sashes, as well as the other 'safe' dodges, can easily be undone by cutting out a piece of glass. Now, the wedges, if you 'tumbled' at once that they were wedges, could only be got at by cutting two holes in the glass, and then, if properly fixed, they can't be shifted without making more noise than we care about doing while on business. More especially is this the case if a bell with a coil spring is attached to the window.

"The last time I was 'copped' was through one of them coil spring bells—but not on a window. It was like this: 'The house 'went for' was occupied by an eccentric old man, well to do and owning a tidy lot of plate. The 'spotter' I employed managed to 'get around' and walk out with one of the servants, and from her he learned that the master was very suspicious of the domestics, laying traps to catch 'em giving way dripping or odds and ends and so on and making all of 'em go to bed before he did.

"Well, I felt as if this was rather a ticklish job, but as I'd got a key made to fit the back door I decided to risk it. I did and got into the house as 'easy as winking.' Reaching the drawing room, where I knew the plate was kept, I hauled it from the cupboard, and, as everything had gone off so well, sat down to have a rest before packing it up. Walking on tiptoe I was tiring work, you know. I hadn't sat there five minutes when bang! I felt a crack on the head, and I knew nothing more until I found myself tied hands and feet and two policemen standing over me.

"When my trial came on, and not until then, I discovered that my capture was due to the fact that the master of the house in order to find out if any of the servants came down stairs after he had retired had placed cotton across the passages and staircases about six inches from the ground and attached it to a coil spring bell fixed in his bedroom. In my journey up stairs I had without knowing it broken the cotton and sounded the alarm. Yes, it was a neat 'cop'.

"Are there more attempts at burglary and housebreaking during the dark days? Yes, but why? Just then the not overparticular, rough laboring class get hard up, and they are open to take to anything from purse snatching upward, if there is even a remote chance of making money. The consequence is that directly an opportunity offers to carry out a burglary they 'go for it'—go for it without taking any precaution and relying on brute force, the knife or even the revolver to effect an escape if disturbed. That is why there are so many brutal assaults and murders by so called burglars just at that time of the year.

"Of course the particulars as to rooms, valuables, locks, windows and habits of those living in a likely house, together sometimes with wax impressions of keys, etc., are obtained by the 'spotter,' a man who has nothing to do with the actual burglary, but takes a share in the haul nevertheless. A 'spotter' may be anything from a hawk calling at the servants' entrance, the gas man come to take the meter, a water inspector to see if there is any leakage or simply the (for the time being) devoted follower of one of the servants.

"Just a remark about ladders. In large establishments I have particularly noticed the care with which all ladders are locked up, while just around the corner, perhaps lying in the open, are the clothes posts used for drying or sun airing the clothes from the laundry. Now, it's as easy to swarm up a good square clothes post to reach a first floor window, and when in a hurry it's a lump quicker to slide down one than down a ladder.

"I tell you what will shake the nerves of a burglar as much as anything and perhaps make him drop his tools—that is kicking against a sheet of crumpled newspaper carefully laid in the passage. I got 'bad' that way myself once and made such a noise that I immediately bolted.

"But if you yourself are frightened of burglars paying your house a visit," he concluded confidentially, "the best tip I can give you is to lay in a little yelping, snapping dog—one that will rouse everybody directly a door or window is tried—and let him have the run of the house inside every night. That's the best safeguard there is."—Cincinnati Enquirer.
