THE FRONT YARD AT 65 KENSINGTON ROAD

THE BACKYARD AT THE SAME ADDRESS

Kensington Rd. Residents Protest 'Dump' Conditions

Kensington Road residents were of the opinion last night Charlottetown has found a new site for its dump—on their front lawns and backyards.

Residents in the area near the dump were up in arms over the amount of garbage blowing on to their lawns, backyards, trees, porches and shrubbery.

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Martin, 65 Kensington Road, said "it wasn't safe to open our front door or our living room would fill up with cardboard boxes and paper."

The backyard of the Martin residence was piled high with paper, boxes, and other material, deposited there by gale force winds, blowing from the direction of the dump.

According to Mr. Martin this has happened five times in a little over a month and he has cleaned it up every time, but this time "the city is going to clean it up. We're not going to do it."

He said it was no place for a dump "in the middle of a residential area."

When the high winds reached their peak of 95 m.p.h. at 8 o'clock, a fire was burning at the dump, and live cinders were blowing across the Martin property and nearby areas.

"They were full of promises before the election," Mr. Martin said, "now, they say there is nothing they can do about it.

"Just before the election I was told the dump would be cleared up or closed down. A fence was built at the dump but it didn't stay up 24 hours.

"I gave them until noon that day to clean the garbage off my premises and when I came home at noon it was done. Now, after the election, they say they can do nothing.

"They can build a fence! The provincial government has enough money to throw around, why can't it protect the people?"

Mrs. Martin said she called the city engineer and the sanitary engineer and was told "there was nothing could be done about it."

She said the situation last night was the worst it has ever been and "Charlottetown should be proud!"

Next doo at the home of William Arbing, cardboard boxes, paper, and cans, were piled around the back door. The backyard was also filled with the waste material. Early in the evening a large piece of stove pipe was sent crashing into their back door.

Reports indicated the dump material was blowing to the St. Peter's Road also.

LOCAL BRIEFS

SPENT CHRISTMAS

Clarence Carver has returned to Millview after spending Christmas in Charlottetown, the guest of Mrs. Doris Yates.

IS PATIENT

Mrs. Melbourne MacEachern of Long Creek is a patient in the Prince Edward Island Hospital.

SINGS NEXT MONDAY

Lois Marshall, internationally acclaimed Canadian soprano, will perform in the Prince of Wales College auditorium on Monday, Jan. 7 instead of the date incorrectly listed for her concert in Saturday's paper.

IDENTIFICATION WRONG

The identification of the men comprising the Brooklyn Trio, whose picture appeared in this newspaper last Saturday, was in error. The members of the trio shown were Malcolm (Mac) Munro, John Bears and Willard Bruce.

SEES ROBIN

Elaine Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Campbell, 132 Upper Queen Street, Charlottetown, made an unusual discovery on Boxing Day when she spotted a robin perched in a tree in the back yard of her home. The weather was extremely cold, but the robin seemed to be weathering it very well.

Three Fined For Failing To Pay Bill

Three persons were fined in city police court Saturday on charges of having obtained food at the Flying Dutchman restaurant and failing to pay for it.

The accused were Laurie MacDonald, John Carson, and Merrill Brown, all of Charlottetown. Magistrate A.J. Haslam fined each $10 and costs or five days, and ordered that the bill of $9.72 be paid.

For possessing liquor in a place other than his residence, an accused was fined $20 and costs or 30 days.

On the docket were five drunk and incapables. Two were sentenced to 20 days in jail; one received a fine of $20 and costs or 10 days, and two were given fines of $10 and costs or five days.

following a resolution to that effect by Council during a meeting two years ago. However, the proper procedure for effecting it had not been followed and as a result the newly added territory had not been actually restricted.

The matter was brought to a head by issuance of a writ of mandamus out of the Supreme Court by an oil company to compel the city to grant it a license to operate a service station— reportedly on Euston Street. It was said other oil companies were seeking the same right.

This addition to the by-law adds to the zoned area: all that portion of the City of Charlottetown bounded and circumscribed by a line commencing at a point on the northern side of Euston Street, said point being 250 feet west of the western boundary of Prince Street, thence eastwardly along the northern boundary of Euston Street to the western boundary of Esher Street, thence southwardly along the western boundary of Esher Street to the northern boundary of Fitzroy Street, thence westwardly along the northern boundary of Fitzroy Street to a point 250 feet west of the western boundary of Prince Street, thence northwardly parallel to Prince Street to the point of commencement.

THIRD READING TODAY

Both changes received first and second readings Saturday and were agreed to unanimously. Third reading will be given at another special Council meeting at 9 o'clock this morning.

Involved in the first mentioned change is a petition before Council from William Brown asking permission to move the Hennessey Funeral Home from its present Kent Street location to the former Aitken property on Longworth Avenue. The proposed new site is in the restricted area and the move has been believed blocked by refusal of one or more property owners in the area to agree on admission of the funeral home.

It was this refusal which brought to Council's attention the fact that the clause requiring signatures of such residents applied only to this particular section and not to any other zoned part of the city.

Removal of the clause, it was stated, would permit Council to deal immediately and directly with similar requests.

However, several Councillors felt there should be a 'cooling off' period between announcement of a zoning change request and second reading of the amendment to the by-law. This, it was felt, would give all citizens a chance to acquaint themselves with the facts.

City Native Is Retiring

MONTREAL (CP) — Capt. R. J. Ligtermoet has been appointed harbormaster of the port of Montreal, replacing Capt. E. H. Cameron, a native of Charlottetown who has been harbormaster here since 1953.

The appointment, announced here Friday by Port Manager Guy Beaudet of the National Harbors Board, is effective New Year's Day.

Capt. Cameron left a job as a bank clerk to begin his career in shipping with Canadian National Steamships in 1919. He came to Montreal as dock master in 1935.

Capt. Ligtermoet, 47, formerly deputy harbormaster, is a native of The Netherlands.

(Capt. Cameron, known locally as 'Hurricane Harry', was a son of Capt. Cameron, who was captain of the S.S. Empress which operated between Summerside and Point du Chene, N.B. The family lived on Pownal Street in Charlottetown, near St. Joseph's Convent).

CITY ZONING

on the matter of Town Planner Walter DeSilva who stated his belief authority for changing bylaws should rest with Council and not with 200 or 300 people and Council should decide on the basis of what was best for the entire city instead of what affected one small area. He proposed holding public hearings so everyone could become familiar with zoning proposals before they were put into effect.

Councillor Walter Cox, chairman of the town planning committee, said no changes should be made at present until after the 'master plan' to be outlined in Mr. DeSilva's report had been studied.

Mayor Gaudet asked Mr. DeSilva if his report, expected in January, would include proposals for procedural steps in amending zoning regulations. He was assured it would.

ZONED AREA EXTENDED

The second amendment simply added additional territory to that already zoned by the by-law. The section involved had previously been considered a part of the zoned area

New Year's Greetings Extended By Mayor

"As Mayor of the Capital City it is a pleasure to once again extend New Year's greetings to all our citizens and all our good friends and neighbors throughout the province," said Mayor A. Walthen Gaudet in his annual New Year's message.

"The year 1962, the 200th anniversary of the founding of our city, has been another year of progress for the City of Charlottetown, and all essential civic services have continued to be supplied to fill the everyday needs of our citizens.

"Our new Charlottetown civic assessment now in progress, the Charlottetown housing study now almost completed, the opening of the new 56 home co-op housing development on North River Road, the investigation and report on our traffic and parking problems, construction of our three new elementary schools, and annexation of the remaining area of the former Spring Park School district with the City might be mentioned as among the highlights of the year.

"Meantime Charlottetown looks forward to the provincial Confederation Centennial here in 1964 with keen anticipation and notes with pride developments toward the early construction on Market Square of the Confederation Memorial Building honoring the Fathers of Confederation. Our own plans are being developed to participate fully in that Centennial and by way of again advertising the same we once more sent our 1962 Confederation Centennial float to the Grey Cup parade in Toronto.

"Once again the best of good wishes from all of us at City Hall in Charlottetown for a Happy New Year in 1963," the Mayor concluded.

wherever they try to fight . . . our mandate has now crystallized around the U Thant plan (for reunification of The Congo) and, although aspects of the plan have been overtaken by events, what we seek is full implementation of the U Thant plan."

The plan of Secretary-General U Thant calls for Katanga to share its rich mining revenues with the Leopoldville central government and, among other things, would merge the Katanga and Congo armed forces.

DEFENCES WANING

UN announcements and radio messages to diplomatic embassies in Leopoldville told of waning Katangan defence activity.

The border town of Kipushi, a copper and zinc mining centre of 15,000 where Tshombe had set up headquarters after fleeing Saturday from Elisabethville, fell to a force made up of an Irish infantry battalion and Indian armored cars. Kipushi is 15 miles west of Elisabethville, the fallen Katangan capital.

Tshombe had already pulled out, having crossed the Northern Rhodesian frontier.

A UN spokesman said Ethiopian troops also have taken Keyberg, another Katangan stronghold on the main road south to Rhodesia. In the north the Ethiopians have advanced nearly 10 miles from Elisabethville on the road to Jadotville.

Tshombe arrived by Royal Rhodesian Air Force plane in Salisbury and met with Rhodesian federal Prime Minister Sir Roy Welensky and other officials.

"I must get back to Katanga immediately," Tshombe told the newspaper men who were summoned hastily for a press conference on the veranda of Welensky's official residence in Salisbury.

"I shall not leave Katanga permanently because the UN wants to force a solution on us.

IN CHRISTMAS CARDS

Stamp Collecting Hobby Pays Off

At least one young man in Charlottetown has found that the hobby of stamp collecting pays off in unexpected Christmas cards.

Brian Wonnacot, 77 Walthea Drive, recently received the official Christmas card of president Gamal Abdul Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

A keen stamp collector, Brian wrote to president Nassar in 1956 to obtain some Egyptian stamps. He didn't think he would get any reply but shortly after, he received an envelope bearing 8 stamps of the republic with the president's card enclosed.

The Christmas card was "a real surprise" as he had not gotten one from this source before. Opening from the back the card pictures the flag and symbol of the UAR, and inside, printed in Arabic and English "President Gamal Abdel Nasser extends his best wishes for Christmas and the New Year."

Brian has been collecting stamps for about ten years now and has approximately 10,000 in his collection. He also has about 30 penpals around the world.
