REV. W. G. HOGG

Children's Party Has 'Pirate' Hosts

Despite the wet weather yesterday afternoon, approximately 30 orphanage and physical handicapped children were treated to a children's party on-board the H.M.S. Tenby, one of two British frigates berthed at the Railway Wharf.

The party turned out to be one that the children won't soon forget, as they relived the swash-buckling days of years gone by, when bands of pirates roamed the seven seas.

These modern day pirates, of yesterday, waited on the children hand and foot and treated them with all the "goodies" which children like to eat, ice cream, candy and cake, etc.

The children also made good use of the slides, swings, rocking chairs, tilts and other things which were there to make the two hour party more enjoyable.

Oil Industry Is Illustration Of Diplomatic Aid To Industry

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP)—The oil industry has had a graphic illustration this year of the assistance that diplomacy can give to business.

At this time last year, the market outlook for Canadian oil was poor.

American cabinet ministers, the government argued that the U.S. claims that it was acting on security grounds—to preserve a U.S. industry that would be vital in an emergency—was invalid.

In effect, Canadian representations were that to impose quotas in peacetime was inconsistent with the need for both countries to pool their oil resources in time of emergency.

With large supplies in the producing countries, competition for markets was keen. To make matters worse from the standpoint of Canadian oilmen, the United States had embarked on a program of voluntary oil import quotas.

The effect of the 1958 business recession, the oil quotas and the general world picture of over supply was reflected in the oil export figures last year.

The manner of administering the import program also left the Canadian industry uncertain of its position until presented with a fait accompli in the form of a quota, determined by administrative action in the face of continuing pressure for protection from the U.S. industry.

Canada also argued that the Exports in the year sagged sharply to 30,368,000 barrels from 48,755,000 in 1957. Officials said this was due largely to the quotas and to lower prices of competing overseas supplies.

The picture darkened still further in the early months of this year as the U.S. government gave signs of embarking on a system of mandatory import quotas to protect the U.S. producer from foreign competition.

Throughout this trying period, the Canadian government steadfastly took the position that the U.S. action should not apply to Canada.

In a series of diplomatic notes and in face-to-face talks with

Formal Ball, Street Dance Features Royal Navy Visit

One of the first street dances seen in Charlottetown since Centennial Year celebrations in 1955, will be held this evening in honor of the officers and men of HMS Tenby and HMS Salisbury, which docked at the Railway Wharf yesterday.

The dance will be held at Fort Edward at Victoria Park from 9 until 12 p.m., weather permitting.

After leaving here August 19th, the two frigates will head for Montreal where they will be joined by two other naval ships and all four will then proceed to the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto.

This fleet is believed to be the first British naval force to be seen in the Great Lake area since the War of 1812.

The squadron is expected to remain at Toronto for approximately six days and then proceed to Cleveland, Ohio where the crew members will witness a ball game between the Cleveland Indians and the New York Yankees.

The Salisbury, commanded by Commander A. G. Watson, R.N., is the first of Britain's new aircraft direction frigates and is a member of the 8th Frigate Squadron. Displacing 2,300 tons, she has a complement of 220 officers and men, a length of 340 feet and a beam of 40 feet.

Her primary duty is to act as a radar picket to provide early warning of an air attack to the fleet.

H.M.S. Tenby, commanded by William Richard Dalrymple Gerard-Pearse, M.V.O., R.N., is a first rate anti-submarine frigate and took four years to build.

She displaces 2500 tons is 370 feet in breadth. She has a ship's company of 15 officers and 200 men.

Since commissioning Tenby has spent nine months with the Mediterranean Fleet, mainly on patrol round Cyprus, and the remainder with the Home Fleet, including a month on patrol with the Icelandic fishing fleet.

This morning the commanding officers of the two ships will make their official calls on the Mayor, Lieutenant Governor and Premier, who will make return calls later in the day.

Tuesday evening the squadron commander, commanding officers of the two ships will be in attendance at a ball at Government House, given in their honor.

Red Chinese Stir Thinking

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP) — It's coming around to that time again when the government has to think about Communist China.

The United Nations General Assembly will open Sept. 15. India announced last week it will seek discussion of Red China's admission to the UN.

And the discussion may be a lot more lively than in recent sessions because Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev will likely address the assembly about a week after its opening.

The question of admission of Communist China to the UN has not come to a vote at recent UN sessions. It has been neatly sidetracked by resolutions to put off discussion to another day.

Whether the matter gets any farther this year remains to be seen but if it does come down to a vote Canada's position may be extremely delicate.

TIED TOGETHER

The question of possible Canadian recognition of Red China and that of Canadian approval or disapproval of that state's entry into the UN are closely tied together. It would seem contradictory if Canada voted for China's admission to the UN but maintained its policy of non-recognition.
