Police Move To Check Hallowe'en Vandalism

By STAN BOWLES
Guardian-Patriot Staff Writer

Traditionally celebrating Hallowe'en the streets of all communities throughout the province will be taken over tonight by dozens of pint-sized ghosts, goblins and a variety of other fanciful characters, making door-to-door visits intent on the customary trick or treat.

For many of the young folk the door-to-door jaunt will be of short duration before proceeding to one of the several Hallowe'en parties being staged by some of the service clubs at various halls in the city. Others will attend parties for small groups in private homes.

Tonight will also mean a door-to-door canvass of a different nature. A group of senior school students will be making calls, urging citizens to 'shell out" in aid of UNICEF—the relief fund for children sponsored by the United Nations.

But despite the constant annual warnings by police officials there will without a doubt be a certain element of the population which will also be making the rounds. These persons are generally not the type who are looking for treats but are bent more toward the causing of malicious damage to whatever takes their eye.

ISSUE APPEALS

Both Chief of Police C. W. MacArthur of the city police and Inspector A. S. McNeil, commanding officer, P.E.I. Division, RCMP, have issued appeals to these persons to refrain from this type of celebrating, and have warned that special precautions are being taken to curb them.

Chief MacArthur said that although behavior in the city in past years has been extraordinarily good, some vandalism may be expected. "We hope common sense will keep anyone from destroying anything valuable, such as street lights, which cost about $35 to replace," he said.

He urged that all parents should impress upon their children Hallowe'en is for children —to keep their celebrating within reasonable and clean bounds. "We expect juveniles and others to have a lot of fun, but keep this a sane and safe Hallowe'en" he said.

To try and keep the celebrating within safe limits, the chief announced that all members of the city force will be on duty throughout the night, and they will be augmented by a large detachment of special constables and private cars.

NO ROAD BLOCKS

Inspector McNeil has also urged both parents and teachers to caution school-aged children not to destroy property or erect road blocks, but to keep their pranks down to the usual window soaping and door-bell ringing.

He stated there is an unruly adult group who present a different problem and who are a concern to all. These persons seem to relish in damaging private and public property along with the placing of highway obstructions such as, trees, gates, farm machinery or anything else that they figure will make a road-block.

The Inspector said "if only these people could be made to realize that they are endangering the lives of other persons and are causing great concern to the old, helpless and infirm by their acts, I am sure they would not repeat this hazardous stupidity."

These road blocks and the throwing of rocks and missiles at passing cars has caused considerable damage in the past, "we are lucky that this has not caused a fatality," he said.

MAXIMUM STAFF

To ensure the maximum public safety, the inspector announced that all RCMP personnel, including the headquarters staff, will be on duty all night, using all available transport including a number of ghost cars.

The attorney general has promised full co-operation of the courts to ensure that all guilty of vandalism or damage will be fully punished in order to prevent repetition.

"For sons Hallowe'en is a lark, and for misfortunate citizens it can be a nightmare," he said. "But for the police it is an annual eight times fatiguing and unrewarding work, and we ask that all responsible citizens give us every aid and support possible," he said.

Rotary Test Beneficial Says Speaker At S'side

SUMMERSIDE — "Painless personality testing brings improvement", declared Rev. T. H. B. Somers, pastor of the Kirk of St. James, Charlottetown, as he spoke to the regular dinner meeting of the Summerside Rotary Club yesterday.

Mr. Somers spoke on the "Four Way Test of Rotary". He said the tests were simple questions that Rotarians can ask themselves regarding anything anywhere about any line of action or proposal. The four questions are "Is it the truth? Is it fair to all concerned? Will it contribute towards goodwill and friendship? and, Is it beneficial to all concerned?

"It's such a concise thing", noted Mr. Somers, "it's a complete statement of ethical principles in 18 words that are all monosyllables, can be transmuted to the intelligence level of the third grade and is universally applicable by almost anyone to almost any situation".

Elaborating on the four questions, Mr. Somers said "it isn't a code, a creed or a rule, but rather it is simply and practically a stimulus to self appraisal —a springboard to voluntary self-approval."

The guest speaker stated that the test is now being used as a measuring stick in education and on the governmental and international levels. He gave a brief history of the origination of the four questions that compose the test. He told of how Herbert J. Taylor, a Chicago businessman originated four ideas that he thought would aid his faltering business. Later these questions were remodelled with the assistance of three other men and were written finally in 1932 into their present state.

"I do not maintain that this principle, if put into practice, will increase your business or profits", noted Mr. Somers, "but it will certainly increase your goodwill, friendship and confidence."

He told how Rotary provides members unique opportunities in friendship, education and service. "Rotary changes casual contacts into glowing friendships", he asserted. "You and I owe the world something. We hear of man's claims and rights but not of his responsibilities to put back into life what he takes out of it".

Mr. Somers was introduced by Chief Justice Thane A. Campbell and thanked by C. C. Hickey.

Guests in attendance were Rev. C. R. Webber, pastor of Trinity United Church, Summerside and Charlottetown Rotarion Mr. Justice George J. Tweedy.

SHOWDOWN

HANDED TO REPORTERS

Four documents were handed to reporters at the inquiry as SIU lawyer Joseph Nuss made a formal bid for all records and reports from Upper Lakes Shipping Company on its use of private detectives.

In addition to a summary of Mr. Nuss' request, the press documents included photostatic copies of two news stories, one from the AFL-CIO news about the use of private detectives as labor spies, the other from the Montreal Gazette about a private detective and Michael Sheehan, president of the Canadian Maritime Union, an archrival of the SIU.

At the same time as the reporters received their documents, a set was handed to an official of the Steelworkers Union, who turned it over to J. A. Geller, lawyer for Upper Lakes, who handed it to the judge.

Mr. Justice Norris described the documents as propaganda.

"I must say I am shocked that these things should happen," he said, asking the SIU lawyers if the documents had been distributed to the press with their knowledge. He asked Mr. Hanson whether he knew about the documents, but the American lawyer was cut off when he referred to propaganda documents—distributed by Upper Lakes shipping.
