Need For More Blood Donors Is Stressed

The necessity for greatly increased attendance at future blood donor clinics was the subject of much discussion at a special meeting of the Charlottetown members of the Provincial Blood Donor Committee held at Red Cross Headquarters on Friday afternoon.

The commanding officers of the different branches of the Reserve Army met with this committee to make plans for a clinic to be held at the Armouries in Charlottetown on the occasion of the next visit of the Mobile Red Cross Blood Donor Team to the Province during the week of November 29th.

Hon. Paul Martin, Minister of National Health announced yesterday that his Department has requested the Canadian Red Cross Society to undertake the collection of blood for the processing of gamma globulin. This is in addition to the Society's present commitment to supply whole blood for civilian hospitals and blood products for emergency stock-piling purposes.

The responsibility of the Canadian Red Cross is limited to the collection of blood. The processing will be undertaken by the Connaught Medical Research Laboratories, University of Toronto, with financial assistance from the Federal Government.

The total quantity of gamma globulin produced by the laboratories will be allocated and distributed by the Department of National Health, on the advice of an advisory committee, to provincial public health authorities and will not in any way be the responsibility of the Canadian Red Cross Society.

Gamma globulin is that part of human blood which contains protective antibodies against certain diseases and is believed to be effective in the prevention or lessening the severity of paralysis in poliomyelitis. It takes approximately one pint of blood to make an average dose of gamma globulin. Gamma globulin is not a cure for polio, nor is it a vaccine, and one dose protects a child only for a period up to five weeks following injection.

Only a small quantity of gamma globulin was manufactured prior to the summer of 1953 even with the processing laboratories working at maximum capacity. It is hoped additional blood and increased processing facilities will assure sufficient quantities of gamma globulin to combat polio in Canada during the 1954 season.

New Antibiotic Lozenge Strikes at Sore Throat

SMOKING

STRAIN

Toronto (2)—A new lozenge that immediately acts to take away the pain of sore throats caused by minor irritations and infection was released to Canadian druggists this week.

A development of Adrem Ltd., largest all-Canadian proprietary drug house, the new product is named Adremicin and is a combination of powerful antibiotics and a local anaesthetic or pain deadener.

The lozenge must be allowed to dissolve slowly in the mouth. As it dissolves, tyrothricin and bacitracin, two antibiotics, are released to the inflamed area along with benzocaine. While the benzocaine is effectively relieving the pain, the antibiotics act to destroy such bacteria as streptococcus and staphylococcus.

As many common colds have as their first symptom a sore throat, Adremicin might well head off many colds this season.

Sore throats caused by excessive smoking, or undue strain such as shouting, respond almost immediately to the pain-relieving action of Adremicin. The product is also said to relieve tickling coughs associated with the common cold and smoking.

Chemists who developed the new product point out that Adremicin is designed for the person who has the occasional sore throat and that those who have a long-standing or chronic throat condition should consult a physician. Also they say

As the Adremicin lozenge slowly dissolves in the mouth, it releases powerful antibiotic agents that fight against strep. and staph. germs and kills pain almost instantly.

Adremicin is most effective when used at the first indication of soreness, hoarseness, or inflammation. If used in the initial stages, Adremicin may ward off further throat irritation or a subsequent cold.
