RIGHTED AT LAST

BY MARY CECIL HAY

Author of "The Arundel Motto," "Nora's Love Test," "Back to the Old Home," Etc.

"A bad result of being your own mistress," grumbled Mrs. Payte. "Why was it?"

"She never answered our letter," Honor said. "She did not care for us, so how can we care for her?"

"The others do, don't they?" Phoebe laughed.

"Care for her? why of course not, Mrs. Payte. We're only trying to make ourselves agreeable to her."

"To be sure—that's what I mean. Most natural it is; and Honor should not hold herself aloof. Well, it isn't too late yet, that's one good thing. Take my advice, and write her a long, flattering, fond letter. Don't think about whether you really love her or not—that's not the question. She has money to leave to some of you, and, without caring a button about her, you may ingratiate yourselves. Young people seldom care much in reality about old women, and a little pretence is fair enough in such a case as this."

"That's what I say, and all of us," assented Phoebe, with a ready burst of heavy laughter, "all but Honor."

"All the same, Honor must own it is true, if she has any honesty at all," persisted the old lady, taking off her hat for a moment to smooth her small gray curls, and looking, the while, into Honor's face with ironical scrutiny.

"No; I do not own it, Mrs. Payte," the girl said, shaking her head, with her pretty, gentle smile. "I do not own that pretence is fair, and I do not own that young people do not care for old women."

"Well, I have seen more than you have, and I've a right to say it. Who is this?"

The abrupt question made the invalid start, and Honor looked round to see the cause of it. At the cottage gate stood the horseman whom, a few moments ago, she had been watching. He dismounted, fastened his horse to the gate, and then walked leisurely down the narrow path, three dogs following closely at his heels, evidently aware that they were not to go beyond the limits of the box-border.

"You've been riding a long way, Mr. Keith," began Mrs. Payte, with her usual abruptness, when he offered her his hand.

"Forty miles at least, since day-break," was the brief reply. But Mrs. Payte, without exactly knowing why, considered it a stumbling-block in the way of further questioning. She went through an elaborate ceremony in her introduction of Phoebe, and then turned to repeat it for Honor's benefit; but, to her surprise, she found Mr. Keith and Honor shaking hands.

One minute afterward Honor had slipped away. Feeling that her presence would not be missed just then, she went to perform one errand on which her mind was bent, and which she always did perform in her visits to East Cottage. Hurrying round to the back-door, she entered a small kitchen, neat but barely furnished, in which a young woman sat sewing, near

THE WHEELS OF HEALTH.

There is no better exercise for a young woman in thoroughly good health than bicycling. On the contrary, if she suffers from weakness or disease of the distinctly feminine organs, if she rides, at all, such exercise should be very sparingly indulged in. Women are peculiarly constituted and their general health is peculiarly dependent upon the health of the specially feminine organism.

It is the health of these delicate and important parts that "makes the wheels of general health go round." Their strength and vigor are as important to a woman as a man's are to a man, and a watch, or a sprocket and chain to a bicycle. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all medicines for delicate women. It makes them strong where they most need strength. Taken during the "interesting interval," it banishes the usual squeamishness and makes baby's admission to the world easy and almost painless. It fits a woman for in-door work and out-door sports. Honest druggists don't advise substitutes.

"I cannot say enough in praise of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as it has undoubtedly saved my life," writes Mrs. Florence Hunter, of Corley Logan Co., Ark. "I miscarried four times; could get no medicine to do me any good. I tried the Favorite Prescription and after taking several bottles, I made my husband a present of a fine girl. I think it is the best medicine in the world."

A man or woman who neglects constipation suffers from slow poisoning. Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. All medicine dealers.

and the possession of such wealth would spoil many a man and woman, too. It is beyond my power to imagine whom it would not spoil."

The sharp eyes under the brown hat went from Honor's face to Phoebe's and back again to Honor's; Mr. Keith following their gaze, still leaning idly there against the window, with the three dogs waiting at his feet.

It was the little old lady herself who broke the pause which followed her last words.

"I have a great wish to go to Abbotsmoor. I suppose I must pocket my pride and ask for an invitation."

"Will you go in my place, Mrs. Payte?" cried Honor, impulsively, "and let me stay with Mr. Disbrowe?"

"Now, Honor, how can you be so silly?" explained Phoebe. "You know how angry Lawrence would be."

"Will you?" said Royden, turning his eyes quickly from Honor's vexed face, "let me drive you there, Mrs. Payte? I am invited to bring a friend; please to be that friend."

There was a little blunt demurring, but it was arranged, nevertheless, and the old lady seemed as well contented as she ever seemed about anything.

They chatted a little longer, and then Royden prepared to go.

"What a beautiful fellow this greyhound is," said Honor, laying her hand lightly on the glossy, dun-colored head. "What is his name, Mr. Keith?"

No Cure for... Bright's Disease

In its advanced stages—The Reason Why—Prevented by the Timely Use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

To understand Bright's Disease is to know that in its advanced stages it is past the reach of human aid. The cells of the kidneys undergo a wasting change, which leaves them dead so far as performing their functions is concerned. Just think of having the kidneys dead. Think of the poisons left in the system when these organs could no longer perform their duties as filters of the blood.

It would be difficult to conceive of anything more dreadful, and yet this is the goal to which every case of neglected kidney disease must lead. When the back aches, when urinating is difficult or too frequent, when there are deposits in the urine after standing for 24 hours, there is no time to lose in procuring Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

It is not claimed that they will cure Bright's Disease in its last stages. They are an absolute cure for kidney disease, and so long as the kidneys are not entirely wasted away they will give new strength and vigor and enable them to resume their duties of filtering the blood.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will stop backache and headache in short order by removing the cause, and will positively prevent Bright's Disease. One pill a dose, 25c. a box. At all dealers, or Edmansson, Bates & Co., Toronto.
